AVIATRIX OVER OCEAN ON SOLO HOP FOR PARIS

Amelia Earhart Putnam Leaves Harbor Grace Unexpectedly.

MAY NOT END TRIP AT FRENCH CAPITAL

Decides Not to Follow DO-X; Sets Time at 15 Hours; Certain of Success.

Harbor Grace, N. F., May 20 (A.P.).—Amelia Earhart Putnam, smiling and confident, took off from Harbor Grace tonight in her crimson, gold striped plane, with Paris her destination.

Five years to the day after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh sped out from New York on the first solo flight to Europe, Mrs. Putnam took off at 4:51 p. m. (Eastern standard time), determined to be the first woman to fly over the Atlantic alone. Like Lindbergh, she chose Paris for her goal.

A message of confidence for her friends was left by Mrs. Putnam as she stepped, cool and composed, into the cockpit of her plane.

Message to Friends.

"To all my friends, far and near, you will hear from me in 15 hours," she said. "I have sufficient fuel for 20 hours and I will go further if my gas holds out and I find I am not too fatigued."

Her decision to start today came suddenly, influenced by favorable weather reports. Arriving here from St. John, N. B., at 11:31 a. m. (Eastern standard time), she previously had retired, announcing she hoped to leave early tomorrow.

The plane was warming up as she arrived at the airport. Bernt Balchen, famed flier and explorer, and Eddie Gorski, mechanic, who accompanied her from St. John, were working on it. She was laughing excitedly as Balchen and Goraki made a rapid but thorough inspection of the craft. Then her attitude changed to that of grave silence.

Confident of Success.

Satisfied that the ship was fit, Balchen and Gorski joined Mrs. Putnam for a final conference before the takeoff. She gave them each a hearty handshake, said "I am confident of success," and then stepped into the plane.

She made a perfect takeoff, a takeoff as graceful as that which four years ago started her off on a flight with Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon that gave her the distinction of being the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air. The publisher who backed that flight, George Palmer Putnam, is now her husband and the financial backer of her present venture.

Mrs. Putnam's destination was not

HUGE PUBLIC LOSSES IN STOCKS REVEALED

Senate Probers Are Told Publicity Was Used to Snare Investors.

(Associated Press.)

The searchlight of the Senate stock market investigation turned yesterday from huge winnings by the financial giants of Wall street to tremendous losses incurred by the general investing public.

It found that $23,000,000, largely contributed by the investing public, had been paid for a company with a total investment of $1,750,000 and discovered additional evidence that publicity was used to entice the small investor into manipulated stocks.

For the second successive day, William A. Gray, committee counsel, was combination chief witness and prosecutor, but his disclosures failed to hold the interest of the committee as they did Thursday when he told of millions being made almost overnight.

Only a few senators were seated around the long committee table and for the first time since the investigation began most of the spectators chairs were unoccupied.

Gray drew the story of the $23,000,000 purchase from Walter E. Sachs president of the Goldman-Sachs Trading Corporation, and partner in Goldman, Sachs & Co.

The Trading Corporation was formed in 1928, Sachs said, and 90 per cent of the $100,000,000 in stock was sold to the public at 104.

The stock is now selling for about 1¾, Sachs said.

In 1929, Gray testified, with occasional confirmation from Sachs, the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation bought 150,000 shares in the Postum company for $10,750,000.

The Postum company with this money and the Trading corporation with $12,750,000 additional purchased the General Foods Co., later called the Frosted Foods Co., in which only $1,750,000 had been invested, but which controlled patents for freezing perishable foods.

Postum for its minor contribution got 51 per cent of the stock in the

Mishap on Warship Ruins 16-Inch Gun

Star Shell Hits Forward Turret of Battleship West Virginia.

San Pedro, Calif., May 20 (A.P.).—An accident in which a 16-inch, 70-ton gun aboard the U. S. S. West Virginia was ruined by fire from another gun on the same ship was disclosed today after a court of inquiry began investigation.

None of the Navy personnel was injured in the accident, which occurred at sea Wednesday night.

The West Virginia, flagship of the Dreadnaught Squadron, was firing night spotting practice. A star shell from one of her forward starboard 5-inch guns struck the right gun of her number 2 16-inch main battery turret.

Ship's officers said a large piece of steel torn out of the turret gun's muzzle is believed to have ricocheted off the starboard with the shell, else casualties probably would have resulted.

CURTIS' BLAME IS CONFINED TO 'CONTACT' HOAX

Jersey Police Eliminate Him as Suspect in Ransom Theft.

INQUIRY NARROWED TO 2 VAGUE CLEWS

Dr. Condon Signs Waiver of Immunity and Tells Story to Grand Jury.

Hopewell, N. J., May 20 (A.P.).—The hunt for the Lindbergh baby killers revolved about a pair of vague police clews and the aid of the white-haired "Jafsie" tonight, after authorities once more absolved John Hughes Curtis, hoax negotiator, of suspicion in their main quest.

The official attitude toward Curtis, moot subject of a two-day series of statements, finally appeared definite when Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, State police superintendent, announced the Norfolk, Va., boat builder was in a New York hotel the night of April 2 and "his actions are accounted for."

Col. Schwarzkopf then employed virtually his exact words of yesterday in saying "there is nothing that would indicate that Curtis was connected either with the kidnaping or the collection of the ransom." It was on the night of April 2 that Dr. John F. Condon (Jafsie), tossed a packet of $50,000 in currency to an extortionist in a New York cemetery.

Salient Results of Day.

In between these assertions, however, the police head had told of continuing his check of Curtis' whereabouts, saying it would not be completed and corroborated until next week.

Salient among the other results of the day were these:

(1) "Gladly" signing a waiver of immunity, Dr. Condon spent two hours and a quarter telling a Bronx (New York City) grand jury, a detailed story of his entire connection with the fantastic drama.

(2) Two mystery clews were pursued from the police headquarters here. One was the statement of a "known gangster while passing through Maryland" that he had information about the kidnaping and his further assertion just before the child's body was found that the infant was dead. The second clew was a possible connection between the abduction and another case described vaguely as the "attempted King kidnaping."

Dean Rejects Expenses.

(3) An official offer, immediately rejected, to reimburse Dean H. Dobson-Peacock for traveling expenses if he would come here from Norfolk, Va., to confront Curtis, his one-time associate. The clergyman said he would stand on his willingness to meet in Norfolk any accredited police representative.

Col. Schwarzkopf dismissed further

2 of Allen Carpe Party Safe on Mt. McKinley

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 20 (U.P.).—Nicholas Spadevecckia and Percy T. Olton, jr., members of the ill-fated Allen Carpe scientific expedition, are safe at the base camp on Mount McKinley, it was reported tonight by Pilot Jerry Jones, of the Alaska Airways, who flew over them but was unable to land.

Pilot S. E. Robbins, missing since yesterday, also is safe, Jones said. Robbins' plane had apparently broken an axle in attempting to land on Muldrow Glacier.

Reds Plan Scottsboro Riot at Paris Embassy

Paris, May 20 (A.P.).—A special police guard was placed around the United States Embassy here today as the result of resolutions passed by several Communist meetings in Paris and the suburbs calling for a demonstration there to protest the forthcoming execution of seven young Negroes in the Scottsboro, Ala., assault cases.

House Pay Roll Bares Widespread Nepotism

More Than 100 Members, Headed by Garner, Stand Charged With Practice as Secret Records Are Revealed.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A House that has stubbornly refused to drop relatives of members from its pay rolls, callous to critical shafts from without and within, condescended yesterday to throw back the screen of secrecy shielding patronage lists from a curious world.

More than 100 members, headed by Speaker Garner and other House leaders, stood charged with nepotism. Members were catalogued as carrying wives, children, nephews, nieces, "in-laws" and near and distant relatives as secretaries and clerks drawing Government pay.

Action was on the Warren resolution to open pay rolls to public scrutiny. The vote came quickly, unanimously and without debate. Ironically, it was Representative Lindsay C. Warren, author of the resolution, who was presiding when the House decisively voted down an economy bill amendment to abolish nepotism.

"Nepotism" isn't altogether as vicious as it sounds. Webster puts it simply, "Favoritism extended toward nephews or other relatives; undue distinction, especially in governmental patronage, in favor of relatives."

With jobs at a premium, however, recent criticism of the custom has been widespread. It has served as ammunition for many a candidate seeking to oust a House incumbent. Agitation was brought to a head when Representative Ralph Gilbert (Democrat), Kentucky, formally demanded the House make public its confidential records of pay.

Although disbursing rolls thrown open on passage of the resolution disclosed Mrs. Garner as one of her husband's secretaries at $325 a month, nobody was excited about it. The Hill, of course, already knew it, and there will be no criticism here. Mrs. Garner is rated as one of the most efficient secretaries in the House, and an invaluable asset to her husband's office.

There are numerous cases of this kind. Mrs. Ellen M. Rainey, wife of the House Democratic leader, draws $2,500 a year, but she too works hard for her pay. But there are many cases not so deserving.

The payrolls made public by South

452 DELEGATES NOW BACKING ROOSEVELT

Governor Will Net Gain of 106 for Week if Nevada Gives Him 6 Today.

Portland, Ore., May 20 (A.P.).—Joseph Irwin France, of Maryland, the only Republican candidate on the Oregon primary election ballot, ran ahead of President Hoover in first returns of the State voting today. In 19 of the 1,783 precincts France had 500 votes and Hoover 327.

On the Democratic side, Gov Franklin D. Roosevelt in the 19 precincts had 101 votes, William H. Murray 24, and there were three write-ins for Alfred E. Smith.

(Associated Press.)

Franklin D. Roosevelt ran his total delegates for the Democratic presidential nomination to 452 yesterday with the capture of a Tennessee instructed delegation of 24.

The New York Governor also was expected by his managers to win ten more in the Oregon primary, in which he contested with Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma.

Should Gov. Roosevelt corral Nevada's six in today's convention, as his supporters forecast he would, he will have completed the week's campaign with 106 more delegates than he had when Kansas started his boom again last Monday with a score of pledges.

After this week the Democrats will

House's Beer Vote Monday Is Assured

Wets Beat Blanton Effort for Week-End Lull That Would Block It.

(Associated Press.)

A House vote on beer-for-revenue legislation next Monday was assured yesterday when antiprohibitionists insisted on a session today to meet parliamentary requirements.

The rules required that the discharge petition through which 145 members could force the vote on the O'Connor-Hull bill for a 3 cents a pint tax on 2.75 per cent beer must be recorded on the calendar for seven legislative days before a vote would be in order. This rule made the meeting today necessary for a vote Monday.

Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, prohibitionist, suggested adjournment over the week-end, but Tammany members forced the Saturday meeting.

Dollfus at Last Forms New Austrian Cabinet

Vienna, Austria, May 20 (A.P.).—Engelbert Dollfus, minister of agriculture in the cabinet of Karl Buresch, succeeded today in forming a coalition government after fourteen days of negotiations.

Dollfus will take over the chancellorship and the portfolios of agriculture and foreign affairs. The Christian Socialist (Catholic) leader failed in his efforts to unite all four bourgeois parties into an antisocialist bloc, because he could not meet the demands of the Pan-German party. The new government is a coalition of the Christian Socialists, the Heimatsbloc (National Socialists or Fascists) and the Agrarians. The Heimatsbloc has a one-vote majority in Parliament.

2 STATES JOIN FIGHT FOR PARKWAY WORK

Maryland and Virginia Back Local Efforts to Prevent Killing of Project.

Maryland and Virginia yesterday coupled pleas with the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, in an effort to forestall Senate action nullifying the Capper-Cramton act and the projected George Washington Memorial Parkway.

Meanwhile hearings on the District supply bill were brought to an end, following three days and nights of nearly continuous testimony.

Chairman Hiram Bingham indicated he will reopen sessions only to hear George Lord, tax expert for the House Mapes committee, which recommended a $6,500,000 Federal lump sum and $4,000,000 in additional District taxes.

Senator Bingham said he has been unable to find Mr. Lord's whereabouts. Representative Carl F. Mapes (Republican), Michigan, said the tax authority probably is in Detroit, and the Senate group would have no difficulty getting in touch with him "if they really want to."

J. Bond Smith, counsel for the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, representing the Arlington County Civic Federation, yesterday asked the Senate District appropriations subcommittee to drop the Collins amendment preventing

Former Senator Files Bankruptcy

Furnifold Simmons Lists Debts at $134,000; Assets, $110,000.

Newbern, N. C., May 20 (A.P.).—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed here today by Furnifold M Simmons, who retired two years ago from the United States Senate after serving there 30 years. Liabilities were given as approximately $134,000 and assets as $110,000.

T. D. Warren, for the former senator, said the step was taken to insure that all his creditors would share alike in his property. It was stated that three large farms owned by Mr. Simmons had already been sold under foreclosure.

Mr. Warren said his client had hoped that he might return to work in spite of his 70 years and straighten out his financial difficulties, but the failure of a number of coindorsers upon obligations he had indorsed along with general conditions, made this impossible. Liabilities of the former senator, due to his being security for other principals, were estimated at $50,000. In addition, Mr Warren said, judgments aggregating $30,000 had recently been filed against him, which would have covered his entire resources, leaving other creditors without recourse. Included in the listed assets is a farm in Maryland.

Drummond Resigns Post With League of Nations

Geneva, May 20 (U.P.).—Sir Eric Drummond presented his resignation as secretary-general of the League of Nations at a secret meeting of the council today. The resignation is effective in January.

The council expressed appreciation of his work but delayed a decision on the resignation until the next session.

HOOVER FAVORS BANK-INDUSTRY CREDIT GROUPS

Concerted National Action Is Advocated to Help Commerce.

NEW YORK PROGRAM IS GIVEN SUPPORT

Similar Move in All Federal Reserve Districts Asked by Executive.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Announcing his readiness to advance the project as quickly as possible, President Hoover recommended yesterday that the bankers and industrial leaders of the United States organize for concerted action looking toward easier commercial credits.

The plan should represent a vigorous effort to turn the tide of depression and deflation through making available to private enterprise the funds long so needed for trade expansion and plant development. It would seek first to end the present era of distressing credit contraction by translating "into industry, employment and agriculture" the vast resources made available to the national banking system during the last few months by the Federal Reserve System's open market operations.

President's Gratification.

"I am much gratified at the action taken in New York," the President said. He expressed the hope that "similar action may be taken in other Federal Reserve districts."

Coincident with the formal announcement of the new national credit policy it was learned yesterday that recent efforts by some of Washington's better known lobbyists to revive the war-time council of national defense have been summarily dismissed by the President and his advisers. Such a project, the President feels, would involve nothing more than the creation of a useless and futile commission, wanting in authority to act, and empowered only to deal in an advisory capacity with questions already being competently administered by the Cabinet, the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Farm Board and the various emergency organizations set up for depression relief during the last eighteen months.

As a beginning in the new credit program, the President suggested specifically that the Federal Reserve governors in the twelve banking districts set up at once a committee similar to that organized Thursday in New York.

The purpose of the New York organization as set forth in the formal announcement of the project, was to

Discharged Man Shoots Pioneer Aid to Marconi

Rome, May 20 (A.P.).—A discharged employe used three bullets today to settle his grudge against the Marchese Luigi de Solari, the man who participated in the first transatlantic wireless transmission in 1901 by sending a series of dots from England to Guglielmo Marconi in Newfoundland.

The marchese was slightly wounded in the right arm, the right shoulder and the right side of the neck. After a hospital examination he was allowed to go home. He was shot by Serafino Sorrentino, who used to work for him as a telegrapher. Sorrentino told police he had been discharged while he was ill and said he was desperate because he still was a sick man and had a wife and son to support.

DEMOCRATS OFFER HUGE RELIEF PLAN

Big Bond Issue for Public Works in $2,300,000,000 Senate Program.

(Associated Press.)

A $2,300,000,000 Federal unemployment relief program was proposed yesterday by the special Democratic relief committee of the Senate.

The counter offer to President Hoover's compromise called for a $500,000,000 bond issue for public construction. It accepted proposals for $200,000,000 for direct relief loans to the States and $1,500,000,000 for public and private loans, both to be administered by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Proposals for an expanded public works program have been stoutly opposed by President Hoover, and this feature of the Democratic plan was expected to bring negotiations for a new compromise more satisfactory to the administration.

Speaker Garner of the House Thursday proposed a $2,100,000,000 program, divided into $1,000,000,000 for public construction, $1,000,000,000 for loans from the Reconstruction Corporation and $100,000,000 for a relief fund to be administered by the President. This was being formulated yesterday into legislation.

Indications are that the plan he outlined will be put into one bill by the ways and means committee and

Mrs. Byrnes' Funeral To Be This Afternoon

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth E. Byrnes, mother of Senator James S. Byrnes, of South Carolina, who died yesterday at her home in the Shoreham Hotel, will be held this afternoon from St. Thomas' Church. The exact time of the services and place of interment have not been announced.

Mrs. Byrnes was a native of South Carolina. She had been a resident of Washington for many years and made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Lenore B. Fuller, also of the Shoreham. She was 73 years old and had been in declining health for some time.

Lumber Item Work Begun; Approval Expected.

AMENDMENTS "BLOCKADE" UP

Tydings Offers 500 in Protest Action; Early Passage Hope Dims.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Protective tariff seeking—and voting—Democrats in the Senate yesterday nailed down the coffin lid on the historic argument of their party that the Republican ideas about the efficacy of protective tariffs were all wrong.

Democratic votes kept in the billion dollar tax bill tariffs on oil and on coal and indications were that Democratic votes would help keep the other tariff items in the bill, too.

Speeches can be explained away, but a record vote is a record vote and the fact that eighteen Democrats voted to put a prohibitive tariff on oil into the internal tax bill was considered as ending the hope of the Democrats to lay at the door of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill responsibility for the economic ills of the Nation.

Oil and Coal Tariffs Voted.

The oil tariff was kept in the bill, after two days of debate, by a vote of 43 to 37. Although it required two days to get to a vote on the oil tariff it required only a few relatively brief speeches to get to a vote on the next tariff item—the tariff on coal, which was approved by a vote of 39 to 34, and then Senator Wesley Jones (Republican), of Washington, launched the fight for a prohibitive tariff on lumber imports.

The Senate quit for the day, however, at 10:13 p. m., without reaching a vote on the lumber tariff.

Eighteen Democrats voted to keep the oil tariff in the tax bill. These included not only those senators from oil States, but also others who wanted protection for copper or something produced in other States.

Democrats opposed to the tariffs have sought to pin responsibility for their inclusion in the bill on the Republicans, who have a majority in the Senate. But the record shows that almost as many Republicans—16 to be precise—voted to knock the oil tariff out as there were Democrats who voted to keep it in.

Presents 500 Amendments.

The long-chinned, smiling Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, who has led the fight on the Senate floor against the tariffs, presented 500 tariff amendments as soon as the vote on the oil tariff had been announced.

Senator Tydings earlier in the day had warned his Democratic colleagues that they were kicking Mr. Hoover upstairs into another four years in the White House and were kicking him up so fast it looked like Mr. Hoover was sailing up in a fast airplane.

Senator Tydings previously had warned that he had 500 tariff amendments to the tax bill ready, but many thought he was just talking in round figures to scare senators. When he showed he had them ready there was a flurry because it was supposed he would insist on pressing them and if he did that would mean an end to any hope of passage of the tax bill before the end of the month.

Those who have followed the conduct of the tall Marylander, however, were of the belief that he would not

Bankruptcy Recommended For Kreuger's Match Firm

Swedish Commission Submits Final Report on Investigation of Company's Affairs; Finds Evidence of Fraud Extending Over Eight Years.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Stockholm, Sweden, May 20.—A declaration of bankruptcy was recommended tonight for the Kreuger & Toll Co., core of a world-wide financial structure built up by the late Ivar Kreuger and bolstered by fraud in the last, desperate years before his suicide in Paris.

The recommendation was contained in the final report of the Swedish committee investigating the affairs of the mysterious, powerful Kreuger, whose influence penetrated to every corner of the globe and whose prestige was undiminished even up to the hour of his death at a time when he knew disaster had overtaken his financial empire.

The committee found:

1. That there had been fraudulent manipulation within the Kreuger concerns for at least eight years, or longer.

2. That there is little if anything available for distribution to unsecured creditors.

3. That there is no longer any reason for maintaining the moratorium granted to the Kreuger interests after the "match king's" suicide.

4. That the Kreuger & Toll Co. can claim not less than 200,000,000 kroner (about $37,400,000) from Kreuger's estate.

5. That Kreuger had personal debts of at least 500,000,000 kroner (about $93,500,000) in addition to an indirect liability of about 400,000,000 kroner (about $73,500,000).

6. That assets will not amount to

Student Drowned in Canal As 4 Quit Classes to Swim

Tragedy Stalks McKinley High School Group When Edward Culver, 19, Sinks to Death at Widewater, Md.; Body Recovered.

A gay swimming party of four McKinley High School students, who had cut classes yesterday afternoon, turned to tragedy when Edward Culver, 19, of 1214 Evarts street northeast, was drowned at Widewater, in the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal.

Young Culver, the son of Mrs. Mayme Nunamaker, was to be graduated from the high school next month.

With the drowned youth were Eleanor Ketner, of 314 Todd place northeast; L. E. Brown, of 603 Oneida place northwest, and L. E. Sheffield, of 906 Evarts street northeast.

They told Montgomery County police that they had skipped afternoon classes to go swimming at Widewater, which is near Great Falls, Md.

Culver, whom they said was a good swimmer, had climbed down a ladder which led to the water from a small wharf anchored to some rocks.

That was the last any of his companions or the other persons at the swimming place saw of him. Some one noticed that he was missing. When his fellow swimmers reached the spot where he had been they saw bubbles coming to the surface.

Sheffield and Brown, aided by Otho Williams, Robert Sherwin, of Chevy Chase, Md., and Colin Dhu Macafee, of 3743 Kanawha street, immediately began diving to try and bring Culver to the surface. They were unable to locate his body.

Montgomery County Policeman J. S. McAuliffe was notified and he sent the Cabin John Volunteer Fire De-

WHEELER DEMANDS QUIZ INTO LOBBYING

Senate Resolution Quotes Hoover's Statement About "Locust Swarm."

(Associated Press.)

A searching inquiry into the "locust swarm of lobbyists" recently pictured by President Hoover was asked yesterday by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana.

In laying before the Senate a resolution for an investigation of charges of lobbying, while members were debating import levies in the tax bill, Wheeler reminded his colleagues of the President's statement.

Also, he recalled to them assertions on the floor during the tax debate and while the measure was being drafted that lobbyists had sought to influence action.

Because of all of the statements on the topic, from President Hoover, Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania; Nye (Republican), North Dakota; Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, and Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, Wheeler contended an inquiry was warranted. He quoted several of these statements.

Chairman Norris of the judiciary committee, to which the resolution was referred, said it might be taken up Monday. He indicated it probably would be given to a subcommittee for consideration as the first step.

Wheeler's resolution calls for the committee to recommend remedial legislation if "such practice should be prohibited."

A senatorial inquiry into lobbying was conducted two years ago under the direction of the late Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas.

The Caraway committee submitted to the Senate voluminous reports of lobbying activities, but did not recommend any legislation.

There was also on display an exhibition of art and carpentry work by the children of the center, under the direction of Mrs. Hogan and Kenneth Petrie.

Children of the Southeast Community Center, likewise, offered a closing program of drama and dance last night in the auditorium of Hine Junior High School, under the supervision of Mrs. M. W. Davis, community secretary.

Two plays, "Helga and the White Peacock," and "The Pudding Pan" were presented by groups of children under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Jenkins, with dances interspersed by other groups directed by Miss Evelyn Davis and Miss Sarah Bergling. The dance numbers included the Troll Dance, Rainbow Dance, Dream Spirits and West Wind.

WIDESPREAD NEPOTISM SHOWN AS HOUSE PAY ROLLS ARE BARED

Trimble, clerk of the House, disclosed a number of relatives dropped from the rosters only recently, since nepotism gained ill favor in the public mind.

Tully Garner, of Uvalde, Tex., son of the speaker, formerly drew $91.66 a month from the House paymaster as the Speaker's resident secretary. Five days ago Speaker Garner removed his son's name from the pay roll.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, whose opposition to General Counsel Smith of the Veterans' Bureau, for drawing disability compensation over and above Government pay resulted in that official resigning, listed Annie Louise Blanton, at $250 a month, as an employe in his office.

Representative Harold McGugin (Republican), Kansas, most energetic of the House pay cut advocates, formerly carried Nellie B. McGugin on the pay roll at $1,400 a year. She was dropped January 1.

Another recently dismissed was the daughter of Representative Claude Fuller (Democrat), Arkansas. Ruth Fuller was drawing $1,100, and Representative Fuller's wife also was on the roll recently. The Arkansas Democrat normally is inspired by patriotic motives. Thursday he introduced a resolution that all civil service applicants must be able to recite or sing the national anthem.

Mrs. August H. Andresen, wife of the Republican representative from Minnesota, formerly was on the pay roll at $266 a month. She has just been dropped from the roster by her husband.

Representative Victor Chrisgau (Republican), Minnesota, once had as his secretary Muriel J. Doyle, whom he married a year ago. Her name was changed on the roll to Mrs. Muriel Chrisgau, but on the first of February she ceased to draw pay. The name of Rose W. Doyle was substituted at $3,600. Milton Chrisgau is on the payroll at $1,400.

For two years now representatives have had $5,000 at their disposal for secretarial allowance. There is a proviso that not more than $3,800 be paid any one person. The rolls disclosed that when the allowance was raised, some members gave the increase to relatives rather than raise their secretarial force.

Although the House threw out an amendment to the economy bill making nepotism unlawful, a bill prohibiting members from employing relatives, sponsored by Representative John R. Mitchell (Democrat), Tennessee, is now awaiting House action.

MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA JOIN FIGHT FOR PARKWAY PROJECT

further acquisition of George Washington Memorial Park land.

Mrs. Cannon said Virginia has made $25,000 available for purchase of additional territory, and Arlington County plans to match it with $25,000 more from private contributions. She said Congress, in passing the Capper-Crampton act, obligated itself to go through with the project.

Mr. Smith said the National Park and Planning Commission has contributed to the Maryland commission $642,000, and the Maryland commission has delivered to the National commission its bonds in the sum of $428,000.

"At the time when the basic agreement was executed, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission gave assurance to the Maryland commission that approximately $1,000,000 would be available for advancement and contribution to the Maryland commission from existing appropriations," he said.

"There thus remains outstanding more than $350,000 which the National commission, while not obligated to pay, would seem to represent a moral obligation and commitment."

Others supporting the position of Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, for elimination of the Collins amendment, included Horace Peaslee, vice president of the American Institute of Architects; Miss Harlean James, secretary of the American Civic Association, and Charles F. Consaul, of the Washington Board of Trade.

The George Washington Memorial Parkway would extend on both sides of the Potomac from Mount Vernon to Great Falls. Yesterday's testimony followed charges Saturday by Chairman Hiram Bingham that the District's $16,000,000 share of the project was inflicted on local taxpayers by the House as a spite measure.

Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou told the committee yesterday that "part-time" students in the District now number between 3,000 and 4,000, showing a decided increase over recent years. He attributed the situation to economic conditions.

The school superintendent outlined a plan for concentrating educational functions and playground facilities here, by building one large central building for every three existing elementary schools. Adequate playgrounds would be provided at the central structure, and the other three schools would be abandoned under the plan. He urged appropriation of funds for the construction of a wing to the Alice Deal Junior High School. This, he said, would relieve overcrowded conditions at Western High.

FARM ALLOTMENT PLAN IS IN SENATE

New Proposal, With Equalization Fee and Export Debenture Favored.

(Associated Press.)

The equalization fee and export debenture plan emerged from retirement yesterday and returned to the Senate with a farm relief youngster—the allotment plan.

Both the equalization fee and the export debenture plan have been the central points of many farm relief campaigns in the past.

The three went to the Senate in a bill approved by its agriculture committee and sponsored jointly by the National Farmers Union, the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange.

The allotment plan calls for allotment among the farmers of that portion of a crop needed for domestic consumption. For that they would be insured a price equal to production costs.

Chairman McNary of the committee declined to comment on whether action would be had before the Senate hopes to adjourn for the party conventions.

Notice was served by representatives of the three national farm organizations last Monday that they would demand a special summer session of Congress, if necessary, to obtain relief for the farmer.

Supervision of the relief plan embodied in the bill approved by the committee would rest with the Farm Board. It would be empowered to put into effect, when it considered necessary, any one or combinations of the three plans.

Marketing agreements are provided for along with penalties to prevent increased production. The equalization fee would be fixed by the board, while export debentures, except on corn or maize, rice, wheat, cotton and tobacco, would be one-half the duty on imports.

The debentures could be decreased if production increased.

The allotment plan would prorate to the individual farmer the portion he could sell in the domestic market, determined by the ratio his entire production bore to the national production.

Domestic needs would be estimated by the board and the price fixed to equal the cost of production for that amount. The balance could either be held on the farm or sold for export as the board willed.

Dr. F. D. Adams Will Marry Today

Son of Late Washington Physician to Wed in New York.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, May 20.—Dr. F. Dennette Adams, son of the late Dr. Samuel S. Adams, well-known Washington physician and specialist in child diseases, and Miss Elliott O. Blanc, of 18 East Sixty-second street, New York, today obtained a license to be married here tomorrow at the bride's home by the Rev. George Trowbridge, of All Angels Protestant Episcopal Church.

Due to the death a fortnight ago of Miss Blanc's father, Edward H. Blanc, New York attorney, services are to be very simple, with only members of immediate families attending. Among those attending will be Dr. Adams' sisters, Mrs. William A. Borden, wife of Maj. William A. Borden, of Washington, and Mrs. Fairfax Downey, of New York. Dr. Adams' mother, Mrs. Lida Hollister Adams, who lives in Washington, is at present visiting his aunt, her sister, Mrs. C. H. M. Roberts, of Long Beach, Calif.

AVIATRIX OVER SEA ON FLIGHT TO PARIS

announced until just before the start. No reason was given for its choice.

The plane which holds the aviatrix's destiny is a 600-horsepower Wasp motored craft with a cruising speed of 140 miles an hour, a maximum speed of 180 and a cruising radius of 3,200 miles. It carried a fuel supply of 420 gallons of gasoline and 20 gallons of oil, sufficient, she was confident, to keep her aloft for fully 20 hours.

For herself, she carried a quart of chicken soup and nothing more.

A light southwest wind was blowing and the sky was cloudy as Mrs. Putnam sped eastward toward her goal, but she had the cheering promise of clear skies and friendly winds along the way.

Mrs. Putnam's decision to start at once deprived her of the weather reports she was to have received from the German giant of the air, the DO-X, which, at Holyrood, 24 miles away, also was poised for an overseas hop on the second leg of its homeward flight to Switzerland. If the DO-X had started first, the weather conditions would have been sent by radio and received here for Mrs. Putnam's guidance before she took off. There is no radio equipment in her plane.

Fuel and supplies were loaded into the DO-X soon after its arrival at Holyrood. It planned a short flight to Harbor Grace before taking off on a long voyage to the Azores, probably at daybreak tomorrow.

Putnam Is Confident Wife Will Reach Goal

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—George Palmer Putnam, husband of Amelia Earhart, tonight expressed complete confidence his wife would successfully complete her solo flight to Paris. Reached a few minutes after the hop-off from Harbor Grace at the United States Weather Bureau, where he remained much of the day checking weather reports, Putnam said briefly: "I have complete confidence in her. What else can I say?"

Le Bourget Prepares Big Welcome for Flier

Le Bourget, France (Saturday), May 21 (U.P.).—Elaborate preparations were being made here early today to receive the American flier, Amelia Earhart Putnam, somewhere over the Atlantic in the first solo transatlantic flight ever attempted by a woman.

The principal activity centered around police arrangements to handle the large crowd which no doubt will come out. Members of the American colony in Paris are arranging banquets and receptions and from early appearances her landing probably will cause almost as much excitement as did that of Col. Lindbergh.

Quarter-Ton Door Crushes Boy of 8

Was Attempting to Scale Iron Object When It Fell Upon Him.

(Associated Press.)

Eight-year-old Donald Raulin, of 1112 Montello avenue northeast, was in a critical condition at Casualty Hospital last night as the result of injuries sustained when a 500-pound iron door, leaning against a fence in a coal yard near his home, fell over on him when he attempted to scale it.

The door was in the coal yard of A. Cohen & Co., at 1124 Florida avenue northeast. Donald was playing with Benny Binder, 8, of 1110 Montello avenue northeast, who saw his friend crushed beneath the door and summoned help. Leif Jordensen, manager of a nearby filling station, and several bystanders managed to lift the door and extricate the boy, who was rushed to the hospital.

Physicians at the hospital said Donald has a fractured skull. His chances for recovery were regarded as slight. Yesterday's mishap marked the third figured in by the boy in recent months. Once he received hospital treatment for a severe dog bite and another time was hospitalized for two days as the result of an automobile accident.

HOME LOAN BANKING MEASURE ADVANCES

House Group Orders Favorable Report on President's Plan.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's home loan bank bill yesterday was ordered favorably reported to the House by its banking committee.

The measure, revised greatly by the committee, would create a system of Federal home loan banks somewhat in the nature of the Federal Reserve System, to give support to home financing institutions.

A majority of the Democratic committee favored the bill, though over half a dozen of the group either were opposed to some portion or all of the measure.

The measure would create a Federal home-loan board of five members named by the President. This board would establish a system of from eight to twelve home-loan banks having an initial capital of $125,000,000.

Each bank would start with a minimum capital of at least $5,000,000, with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation making up the required subscription for the entire system.

Membership in the system would be opened to building and loan associations, cooperative banks, homestead associations, savings banks, trust companies, State banks and insurance companies. National banks, already having access to the finance corporation and Federal Reserve System, would be excluded.

Menace of Poor Vision In Traffic to Be Topic

Dr. Edwin H. Silver will deliver the last of a series of educational talks, sponsored by the District of Columbia Optometric Association, over Station WMAL tonight at 9:45 o'clock. His subject, "Our Annual Great American Tragedy," deals with the growing menace of traffic accidents and the consequent need for good vision among motor vehicle operators.

As chairman of the motor vision commission of the American Optometric Association, Dr. Silver speaks with authority upon a subject which affects the public generally. His committee not only supervises the research and gathering of statistics pertaining to the influence of eyesight in the safe operation of a motor vehicle but supplies traffic bureaus with the latest data and methods of testing the vision of applicants for drivers' licenses. Dr. Silver will be introduced by Dr. M. Luther Dicus, secretary of the local board of optometry.

HOOVER FAVORS NEW MOVE TO PROVIDE EASIER CREDITS

New York Group's Next Step.

The committee of twelve appointed Thursday by Gov. George L. Harrison of New York Federal Reserve Bank will hold its first meeting early next week, probably on Monday. Government officials here believe that the method of procedure to be employed generally in the credit-expansion program then will be outlined in detail.

The stock market responded spiritedly yesterday to the New York announcement, but the strong advances of 1 to 3 points in the first trading were wiped out as the tickers began to flash the news of the situation now developing in the Senate in regard to the tax bill.

Despite this setback, however, the announcement of the new credit program was favorably received by business and finance throughout the country.

Speculation as to how the new policy might be worked out centered on the suggestion that one of the first steps would be to encourage immediate bond offerings by industries, utilities, municipalities and States which have delayed development projects awaiting the willingness of the banking community to undertake new issues.

But this was admittedly only one of many possibilities. Another was that through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which now is thoroughly familiar with the needs of various sections of the country, a vast amount of the present demand for credit might be diverted from the Government agency to normal banking channels.

Direct Federal Aid at End.

Emphasis was placed on this possibility by the New York announcement Thursday, which mentioned cooperation with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and as one of the primary objectives of the new program. It was further emphasized in the White House statement yesterday.

Viewed in this light, the new program takes form as the most thoroughly organized peace-time mobilization of a nation's financial and credit resources in the history of the world. Although the new national set-up will be entirely a voluntary arrangement between influential leaders, in cooperation with the established Federal agencies, it will command the practical powers and resources of the War Finance Corporation.

This development conforms closely to the view long held by President Hoover that the Nation has at hand the resources and ability "to break the back of the depression" at will. He has maintained from the outset, in 1929, that effective action can come only through the voluntary mobilization of these resources by those accustomed to deal with them in normal times.

Yesterday's developments, therefore, were widely interpreted in informed quarters as a tacit announcement that direct governmental aid to sections, groups and industries is at an end.

President's Approval Of Easier Credit Plan

The President's statement yesterday on formation of banking-industrial committees to facilitate credit follows:

I am much gratified at the action taken in New York by which a joint committee has been appointed representing financial and industrial leaders of that city for the purpose, among other things, of securing that expansion of credit facilities made available through the Federal Reserve Banks and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall be translated into industry, employment and agriculture.

I am in hopes that similar action may be taken in other Federal Reserve districts. It would seem desirable that the governors of the different Federal Reserve Banks should proceed in a similar manner and as soon as the chairmen of such committees are known, I shall be glad to invite them to Washington in order that the whole program may be set up on a national basis.

BIRTH CONTROL CASE IS UP TO COMMITTEE

Johns Hopkins Psychiatrist Witness for Mrs. Sanger at Hearings.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Margaret Sanger's case for birth control was completed yesterday before the House ways and means committee with the indorsement of a psychiatrist, Dr. Adolph Meyer, of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Mrs. Sanger presented him to answer her adversaries' arguments for "birth control by self-control," rather than by dissemination of information by physicians, as Mrs. Sanger asks.

Describing home-wrecking "bewilderments" which he encountered in his practice, due, he said, to lack of just such information as Mrs. Sanger advocated, Dr. Meyer urged the birth control bill.

We have had plenty of experience with the evils of prohibition," Dr. Meyer said. "If we want to teach morals by prohibition, we are on the wrong track."

Asked by Representative McCormack (Democrat), Massachusetts, as to whether he favored putting birth-control information in the hands of the unmarried, Dr. Meyer answered that he had no fear of any responsible adult being fully informed—that what he feared was ignorance.

Testifying on the opposite side of the case was Dr. Howard Kelly, gynecologist, also of the Johns Hopkins staff, who pronounced birth control bad, both physically and morally.

Mrs. Sanger told the committee Dr. Kelly's testimony showed he was not up to date on his birth control information.

Canon William Sheafe Chase, representing the International Reform Federation, opposed the measure in strong terms, declaring it would increase immorality among the unmarried, "largely increase vice business" and would be "obvious indorsement by the United States of birth control theories."

Library Branch Urged By Glover Park Group

Protesting that a library was necessary in their increasing community, the Glover Park Citizens Association at a meeting at the Home Industrial School, last night, adopted a resolution recommending that the District appropriations bill should include funds for the erection of a proposed public library at Wisconsin avenue and R street northwest.

The association planned a Fourth of July celebration in the neighborhood and heard reports from various committees. Mrs. William R. Smith, chairman of the garden committee of the District Bicentennial Commission, addressed the group on the garden contest. New members accepted were Mr. and Mrs. Alfred J. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Herr, and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Mead. The meeting and the dance which followed were attended by about 150.

Players of American U. Effective in "Macbeth"

Shakespeare's tragedy, "Macbeth," was presented last night by the American University Dramatic Club at the gymnasium-auditorium on the campus before a large and appreciative audience. Under direction of Will Hutchins, the production was staged in the Elizabethan fashion, with speed and slight change of scenery but with successfully weird effects.

Leonel Dick, as Macbeth, was the outstanding player of the large cast, while Mary L. Daub, as Lady Macbeth, led the feminine roles. Others applauded for their portrayals were Arthur Murphy, as Malcolm; Henry B. Johnson, jr., as Macduff; Daniel Smith, as Banquo; Helen Buffington, as Lady Macduff; Dan Terrell, as an attendant, and Carlton Skeggs, in a comedy relief bit.

HUGE PUBLIC LOSSES IN STOCKS REVEALED

purchased company and the Trading Corporation received only 49 per cent. Preferential dividend rates also were given to the Postum company.

The Trading Corporation later marked its 49 per cent off on its books for $1 and still later traded it to the Postum company, then the General Foods Corporation, for $900,000 worth of the latter's stock, making a total loss on the operation of $11,850,000.

Gray said $22,000,000 of the money went into the hands of United Foods, Inc., a company organized in Canada, then to J. P. Morgan & Co., and then into United Foods Co. of Delaware.

Morgan Handled Fund.

"We are trying to trace this fund," he said, "that went into the Canadian corporation's funds and then to J. P. Morgan, for the purpose of finding what the distribution was.

"I believe we may be able to show the tax question had something to do with it."

Chairman Norbeck announced after the session that a Morgan representative had been present and felt an "improper picture" had been given of the transaction.

Norbeck indicated the Morgan company would be given a chance to explain. He said he believed there was a "feud" between Morgan and Sachs.

Gray also produced witnesses to testify that John J. Levenson, a stock trader, turned profits of $19,068 over to Raleigh T. Curtis, a former financial writer for the New York Daily News, who advised his readers to purchase stocks in which the trader was dealing.

State Investigated Writer.

The News announced later in New York that Curtis has not been employed by that paper for two years.

Levenson testified that he and associates made $1,136,000 dealing in eight stocks and that he operated an account in these stocks for Curtis, who wrote under the pen name of "Trader."

The witness denied he had turned the profits over to Curtis to pay for publicity, but said the writer was a close friend.

Roger J. Cornell, of the New York State securities bureau, said an investigation he had made showed Curtis was advising readers of his column to buy certain stocks at the same time Levenson was dealing in them.

Gray announced that when the investigation is resumed today, Harry M. Warner, of Warner Brothers, will be questioned in connection with dealing in the stock of that company.

Gray also developed that while Howard F. Hansell, jr., and others were selling Indian Motorcycle stock on the market, A. Newton Plummer, a publicity man, was employed and later paid $26,880.

Hansell denied Plummer was paid for publicizing the stock, however.

VINSON ASKS DELAY IN SALE OF COTTON

Tells House Farm Board Plan Would Break Market; Freight Rates Cut.

(Associated Press.)

A movement to keep stabilization cotton off the market began in the House yesterday almost coincidental with the authorization of lower freight rates for cotton in the South and the disclosure that Massachusetts had yielded the leadership in cotton manufacture to North Carolina.

Representative Vinson (Democrat), Georgia, introduced a resolution directing the Farm Board to impound the 1,300,000 bales controlled by it until the season's total supply falls below the average for the preceding ten years. He believes this would not be for two or three years.

The board has authorized the sale of 650,000 bales beginning August 1.

"To do so in view of the already large carry-over," the Georgian said, "would be disastrous and it would break the market, perhaps as much as a cent a pound."

The freight rate reduction—approximating 20 per cent for Southern railroads—was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Census Bureau made known that North Carolina had toppled Massachusetts from her dominance in the number of spindles operating in her mills.

The rate cut affecting cotton in bales, either compressed or uncompressed, in any quantity—is expected to go into effect June 1 and may be retained until August 1.

It applies to cotton to and from points in the Mississippi Valley, Southeastern and, Carolina territories, including Gulf and South Atlantic ports, Ohio River crossings, St. Louis, Mo., district and certain points in southern Virginia.

Free Rides Taken By Box-Car Army

Rail Protests Fail to Halt Veterans on Way Here to Demand Bonus.

St. Louis, Mo., May 20 (U.P.).—A box-car "army" of 400 World War veterans from the Pacific Coast changed trains in orderly fashion here today and continued their free passage to Washington to demand of Congress an immediate bonus.

They ran roughshod over railroad officials, arriving here in five box cars they commandeered at Council Bluffs, Iowa. Their unobstructed passage was guaranteed at least across Illinois, when Walter Moody, chief of State highway police, refused a request to stop them.

The veterans arrived in St. Louis, sleepy and peaceful, over the Wabash Railroad. They proceeded on to Cincinnati despite objections of the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads. The railroads pleaded with Gov. Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois to stop the veterans' "march" via their routes. The executive turned the request over to Moody. He refused it, and the "bonus crusade" led by Commander W. W. Walters, of Portland, Oreg., went happily along.

Ring to Smuggle U. S. Cars Into France Bared

Paris, May 20 (U.P.).—The Surete Generale said today that a gigantic ring for importation of American automobiles to France without paying the heavy French duties had been discovered. Sometimes the automobiles have been brought across the frontier disguised as old and dust-covered cars, whereas actually they were new machines, the police said.

In other instances the customs officials were bribed, it was said.

WALKER WILL FACE QUIZ ON WEDNESDAY

Trips to Europe and Coast Draw Criticism of Legislators at Meeting.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker, whose frequent sojourns to Europe and the Pacific Coast drew the fire of the legislative investigation today, will face his inquisitors next Wednesday.

He was informed his long-heralded presence as a witness before the committee, seeking evidence of graft and corruption in New York City's government would be required, at the close of a public session devoted to a scrutiny of how and by whom his expenses were paid on a trip to continental spas in 1927 and to San Francisco last fall to plead for Tom Mooney.

Close upon the receipt of this information from Chairman Samuel Hofstadter and Counsel Samuel Seabury, Mayor Walker dispatched a telegram to Mayor Frank Murphy, of Detroit, telling him he could not attend a conference of mayors there on Federal relief for municipalities.

Walker Remains Silent.

A few hours before, Richard R. Hunter, former vice president of the Equitable Trust Co., had told the committee that the mayor had paid $13,000 of his expenses on the European voyage from a letter of credit defrayed by a representative of Ohio interests planning a monopoly on the city's surface tranportation.

Mayor Walker, in keeping with his usual policy, declined to comment on the testimony "until the proper time and before the proper authority."

Counsel Seabury brought out in testimony that 12 days before the credit letter was cashed the mayor had signed a contract between the city and the Equitable Bus Co. to operate on a franchise he pushed through the board of estimate. The State Transit Commission several years later called the Equitable a "financial cripple" and blocked its operation.

Overdraft in Paris Cited.

J. Allan Smith, then representative of the Fageol Motors Co., of Kent, Ohio, paid $10,000 in cash for the letter of credit in August, 1927, Hunter continued, and it was delivered to the mayor at city hall in the presence of State Senator John A. Hastings, known as the "political contact man" for the Midwest interests.

The witness identified bank records showing that the mayor cashed drafts on the letter in Paris, Rome, Munich and Venice and later made an overdraft for $3,000 on the Paris branch of the Equitable Trust. The overdraft was paid by Smith some months later, he said.

Senator Hastings then took the stand and offered an ingenious explanation of the transaction. Smith desired to put himself in the good graces of the president of the Equitable Trust, he said, and asked Hastings to persuade the mayor's party to use the Equitable's facilities.

He accordingly went to Senator Bernard Dowling, now dead but then in charge of arrangements for the voyage, and the latter turned over to Smith what the witness called a "common fund" of $10,000 raised by members of Tammany. He said he refunded the $3,000 overdraft in the same manner to Smith.

$2,300,000,000 RELIEF PLAN IS OFFERED BY DEMOCRATS

submitted to this House within less than two weeks.

The outcome of the Democratic committee's long, secret negotiations was a compromise, as Senator Wagner, of New York, its chairman, had insisted upon a $1,000,000,000 fund for public works, and no such fund was proposed by Robinson, another member. Others on the committee were Senators Walsh, of Montana; Pittman, of Nevada, and Bulkley, of Ohio.

The committee recommended that in order to spread employment the Federal construction contracts and loans for State and private construction should be conditioned as far as practicable on a 30-hour week.

The program, the committee said, "is designed to aid in preventing suffering from hunger; in providing employment; in starting again the stalled industrial machinery of the country by reviving actual orders for commodities; in reviving confidence by checking price deflation, and security liquidation and by promoting the revival of trade, and the increase of demand for commodities and credit."

"The methods selected may be regarded as extraordinary but they are justified by the emergency," the committee added.

"By providing for meeting appropriations for capital expenditures from the emergency construction fund the plan will contribute materially to balancing the budget—a result it is determined shall be accomplished."

Under the new Democratic plan the reconstruction corporation would be authorized to make direct relief loans to governors of States on certification from them that such assistance was needed. The loans would be deducted from future Federal aid highway grants.

Self Liquidating Loans.

The $1,500,000,000 for self-liquidating loans would be made available for:

1. Construction of revenue producing projects by states, municipalities and public corporations.

2. Housing and slum clearance projects undertaken by limited dividend corporations.

3. Construction by private corporations of self-liquidating bridges, tunnels, docks, viaducts, waterworks and similar projects devoted to the public use, provided that none of these loans shall go to institutions already included in the Reconstruction Corporation act.

4. To facilitate the financing of agricultural exports, $40,000,000.

The committee recommended that the public construction program be financed from a 25-year bond issue and sinking fund, the bonds to be issued as needed.

It held that the projects selected should be those already investigated and authorized by Congress with the approval of the President, for which necessary plans are in readiness or preparation and which are needed for the proper conduct of Government business.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, said the plan opened the way for definite action on relief and the problem would be adjusted before adjournment.

"The greater part of the program is in harmony with the suggestions made by the President," he said.

"The proposal for $500,000,000 in bonds is not in harmony with his plan because such a procedure would prevent balancing the budget with all that means to the country at this time. There is $500,000,000 for public projects already in the budget.

"Aside from that my chief difference with the proposal advanced by the Democrats is that it fails to provide sufficient safeguards for loans to be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but that is a detail that may be cared for."

Opposition Indicated.

There were immediate indications, also, that the Democratic program would not be entirely satisfactory to those in the Senate who have demanded direct Federal relief.

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, a spokesman for this group, said:

"I do not want to say I am against any relief proposal without further study, but I do not believe in loans to States or cities. The only condition upon which I could support such a proposition, is to keep people from starving to death."

As plans went ahead on the House side for putting the plan advocated by Speaker Garner into legislative form, Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, said he preferred that of the President to that put forward by the Speaker.

Garner said the present restrictions on the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had prevented assistance to the "great middle class of producers of the country."

He contended the corporation had advanced money to big interests and to the "poorest class of producers—land tenants"—but that "nothing has been done to provide employment or to help the middle class producers."

Would Produce Jobs.

Garner said by increasing from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 the corporation's capitalization and removing restrictions money could be advanced to States, counties and cities, individuals and corporations to be used in activities that would produce employment.

He reiterated that "we can trust the President to administer the $100,000,000 direct relief fund properly to alleviate extreme suffering."

Snell said Garner's plan "presents nothing substantially new that has not been suggested," and declared issuance of $1,000,000,000 in bonds for a public building program would increase the tax burden on the people and result in an outlay that would be nonproductive.

President Hoover's plan to permit the finance corporation to advance funds to cities, counties and States for construction of toll bridges and tunnels, water reservoirs and other productive enterprises would not increase the burden on the taxpayer," Snell said.

TARIFFS ON OIL AND COAL ARE APPROVED IN SENATE

carry his fight to the point of unduly delaying passage of the tax bill. They believed he would content himself with showing in a definite and threatening manner his disapproval of any tariff item in the bill. Even if he tried to press his proposed amendments he would not be successful.

A vote on the oil tariff would have been had sooner had it not been for the fact that each side wanted to continue its negotiations in the hope of frightening or coaxing another vote or two. Proponents of the tariff did succeed in getting two additional Republican votes which they did not have the day before.

But neither side had much to trade. The situation was so mixed up that trading couldn't go very far without having to give up too much, despite importunities and demands of a score or more of powerful lobbyists who conferred with senators as they sat in the galleries or stood in the corridors about the Senate chamber, or in the offices of various members.

Senator George Norris (Republican), Nebraska, who fights along for the sake of the principle regardless of the obvious outcome of the fight, proposed to amend the tax bill by putting into it the export debenture scheme to help farmers.

Senator Norris knew that his amendment didn't have a chance of approval, but he advanced it as being as reasonable as were the tariff items in the bill.

When the result of 43 to 37 on the oil roll call had been announced, Senator Tydings changed his vote. He had voted against the tariff. He changed his vote to favor it so that he could later move to reconsider the vote. He wanted to keep himself in the ring if he could find opportunity to take another swing. The higher income tax advocates did the same thing. The advocates of the general manufacturers' sales tax are lying in wait, but their wait is not expected to do them any more good than are reservations of rights to reconsider expected to do the advocates of higher income taxes or the opponents of the tariffs.

Senator Robert Bulkley (Democrat), of Ohio, introduced a resolution asking for reconsideration of the vote on the Tydings amendment to legalize 2.75 per cent beer and employ the revenue from a beer tax to finance a $1,500,000,000 unemployment relief construction program. That isn't looked on as a major obstacle in the path of passage of the tax bill.

SENATE DEMOCRATS SPOIL TARIFF ISSUE

Voting of Duties on Oil and Coal Spikes Chances of Fight on G. O. P.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Senate Democrats have just about taken the tariff issue out of the 1932 political campaign. At least, they have destroyed their party's chance of appearing consistent if the tariff is made an issue.

This was the conclusion of political analysts yesterday following the voting of oil and coal tariffs into the billion-dollar tax bill.

For two years or more, the Democratic national headquarters here has been denouncing the Smoot-Hawley, or "Hoover-Grundy" tariff act of 1930. Jouett Shouse and Charles Michelson saw it as an important issue in this year's campaign. It was to be blamed for the "panic," for the raising of retaliatory tariff walls abroad, and for the falling off of America's foreign trade. Reams of Democratic publicity have paved the way for such arguments.

Other Duties Expected.

Now, thanks to the efforts of log-rolling Democrats, the Senate has voted embargo tariffs on oil and coal. Presumably other tariff duties will be laid on copper and lumber.

How, it is asked at the Capitol, can the Democratic party consistently criticize the Smoot-Hawley bill when 18 Democratic senators put through tariff duties far more drastic than any in that bill?

The answer would seem to lie in what the more orthodox Democrats in the Senate have said; in the statement of Senator Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, that the new duties constitute a "monstrous legislative outrage;" in the statement of Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland, that the protariff Democrats have "kicked President Hoover upstairs."

One result of the Senate performance is expected to be a more vigorous and more widespread demand that Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, be removed as keynoter of the Democratic national convention.

Was Roosevelt's Choice.

Barkley was Franklin D. Roosevelt's choice for that post.

After his selection he joined in the log-rolling in the Senate finance committee and made it possible to write the tariff duties into the tax bill.

Barkley is primarily interested in a duty on coal, his State being a producer of that commodity. Yesterday, however, he voted for a duty on oil, as well as coal.

There have been two objections to Barkley as the Democratic keynoter—his position on the tariff and his position on prohibition.

It has been taken for granted that the Democratic national convention will denounce the Smoot-Hawley bill and will adopt a wet, or, at least, a moist plank on the prohibition question.

Barkley an Ardent Dry.

Barkley has been an ardent Anti-saloon League dry. It is expected, however, that he soon will retreat from that stand and come out for a referendum, thus disposing of one of the arguments against his eligibility as a keynoter.

On the tariff question, his position is more difficult. He can't retreat on this. How then, ask those who demand his removal as keynoter, can he consistently get up at Chicago and denounce the Republican tariff policy?

In a letter to a newspaper in Kentucky, Barkley explained that the "historic position of the Democratic party has been in favor of a tariff for revenue."

ADMIRAL WILLIAM BENSON.

MURRAY'S AID ENDS MARTIAL LAW ON OIL

Alfalfa Bill, in New York, Says Lieutenant Governor Is "Just a Fool."

Oklahoma City, May 20 (A.P.).—Ending abruptly almost nine months of military proration in Oklahoma oil fields, acting Gov. Robert Burns today revoked the martial law order issued last August by Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray.

Burns declared the order was illegal and should not be in effect. "I am under oath to support the laws and the constitution the same as Gov. Murray," he said.

Lifting of martial law came as Gov. Murray arrived in Hudson, N. Y., to address a farmers' festival in furtherance of his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Col. Cicero Murray, his cousin, who has been in charge of military proration, was with the governor. Advised in Hudson of Burns' order, Gov. Murray remarked that the lieutenant governor was "just a damn fool."

"I'll take care of that when I get back," he said.

Doesn't Hope for Election.

Hudson, N. Y., May 20 (A.P.).—William H. "He-Man" Murray, Oklahoma's picturesque candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, came to the Hudson Valley apple blossom festival today, telling newspapermen: "I'm not fooling myself. I do not hope to be elected."

The Oklahoma Governor flicked a cigar ash from his vest and explained, "I have found that no man can be nominated or elected by either party unless he has a lot of money; and to get that you have to surrender yourself. I won't do that."

While he awaited the afternoon festival, at which he was to speak from a blossom-bedecked bower, he made a series of homely observations on national affairs.

Budget Balancing Plan.

"Here's what I'd do," he said. "I'd make appropriations as economically as possible. I'd abolish a lot of bureaus and particularly those where there is duplication of effort. After that I'd take a percentage from the salary of every man on the Federal pay roll and put the money into a fund to employ every man who has no job. Then, at the end of a year or two you could balance the budget."

The Oklahoma executive added that he did not "take up with this idea of big bond issues."

Lowell Barlow, 24, Dies on Tennis Lot

Death Sudden to Student of G. W. U.; Home Was in Utah.

A certificate of death by natural causes was issued late yesterday by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald in the death of Lowell Barlow, 24, of the Copley Courts, 1514 Seventeenth street northwest, who collapsed early yesterday while playing tennis at Seventeenth and B streets northwest.

Mr. Barlow was playing with Thomas Billings, his roommate, when he collapsed. Rushed to Emergency Hospital, he was pronounced dead by a staff physician. Late in the day the body was removed to an undertaking establishment, from where it will be sent to Bountiful, Utah, home city of the deceased.

A cousin, R. W. Ford, also lived at the apartment with Mr. Barlow, and he notified Mr. Barlow's parents in Utah. Mr. Barlow was an employe of the Department of Justice and a third-year student in night classes at the George Washington University Law School.

Long Draws Sharp Rebuke From George in Tariff Row

(Associated Press.)

Senator Huey Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, halted the tariff steam roller before crowded galleries last night to wave the tariff flag even when his associates begged him to stop lest he do the cause harm.

In the midst of his stormy outburst the red-headed Louisianan drew one of the most severe personal replies from Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, that has been heard on the floor in a long time.

Precipitating the stern rebuke, Senator Long read the tariff items for which the Georgian had voted in the Smoot-Hawley act of 1930.

Almost the entire membership sat tense and the galleries excited as George lashed out at Long.

"Perhaps I ought not to rise to answer the wholly irresponsible talk of the Sentaor from Louisiana," George said, "but no senator ever came into this body who has the authority to criticize or censure, and the Senator from Louisiana will not be accorded that privilege."

Turning directly to Long and pointing at him a finger shaking with emotion, George added:

"I am different from the senator from Louisiana because I am not amenable to the special interests in my State.

"I am going to suggest to the senator from Louisiana that it would be far better to leave the Republican party to answer than to defend them.

"I do not want to indulge on the personal conduct of the senator from Louisiana. I think perhaps he has not been here long. Probably when he has been here longer he will respect the honest convictions of his colleagues.

"It will be, I dare say, a sufficient burst of his strength to take care of his own record.

"If the senator from Louisiana can gather any consolation from the unholy alliance with which he is a part, he is wholly welcome to it. * * *

"I am entirely indifferent to buffoonery and clowning wherever it appears.

"An endeavor to embarrass without the slightest sense or sensibility—I was about to say decency—I condemn."

Long interrupted to ask, "What did I say?"

"I am unconscious that I did anything but read the record of the senator from Georgia."

"If the senator is unconscious of what he has done he confirms what I have said about him," George replied.

ADM. W. S. BENSON EXPIRES SUDDENLY

Cerebral Hemorrhage Fatal to Naval Operations Chief During War.

Death yesterday claimed Admiral William Shepard Benson, chief of naval operations during the World War and at one time the entire membership of the Shipping Board, who had lived at 2420 Tracy place northwest since his retirement in 1919.

Admiral Benson died suddenly at his home of cerebral hemorrhage. He was 76, but had been active in social affairs up to the day of his death.

When America entered the war he went to Europe to coordinate the naval activities of this country with those of the allies. On his return he was retired and made chairman of the Shipping Board in 1920. President Harding asked him to remain in office after the terms of other members of the board had expired, so that he was the only member of the board from March to June of 1921.

Helped Map Treaties.

After the suspension of naval activities on the signing of the armistice, Admiral Benson represented the United States in the drawing up of the naval armistice terms, and later served as naval adviser to this country's delegation to the Versailles conference.

Admiral Benson was born in Macon, Ga., in 1855, and was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1873 at the age of 18. In 1877 he was graduated and received his commission as ensign after sea service on the U. S. S. Constitution. He rose in rank until commissioned rear admiral in 1915 and admiral in 1916.

In 1907 and 1908 he was commandant of midshipmen at the Naval Academy, and he was commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard and the third, fourth and fifth naval districts from 1913 to 1915. Before his retirement, President Wilson and Secretary of the Navy Daniels recommended to Congress that he be made admiral for life. Secretary Daniels, praising him at that time, said that it was due to Admiral Benson's efforts that the Navy was fully ready for action when this country entered the war.

Praised by Pratt.

Admiral William V. Pratt, present chief of operations, was Admiral Benson's assistant during the war. Admiral Pratt said yesterday in a statement issued after hearing of Admiral Benson's death:

"His name will go down to posterity as one of the finest characters that has ever worn the Navy cloth."

He was the first chief of naval operations, being appointed to the new post when it was created in 1915. At this time he was only a captain, but was raised over a number of other officers who stood higher on the list of seniority. He was wholly responsible for America's operations in foreign waters during the war-time period.

Shipping Board Work.

During his service as sole member of the Shipping Board he approved, alone, a number of matters which were later criticized. One of the cases was taken to court, where he was justified and his actions sustained. After his retirement from the chairmanship of the board, he continued as a commissioner until 1928.

Admiral Benson is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary A. Benson, formerly of Baltimore County; a daughter and two sons, both naval officers. The daughter is Mrs. Herman P. Krafft, of Annapolis, while the sons are Commander H. J. Benson, now at the Naval Academy, and Lieut. Comdr. F. W. Benson, gunnery officer of the U. S. S. Trenton.

He was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal both by the Navy and by the Army, the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor by France, the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George by Great Britain, the Order of the Rising Sun by Japan, the Order of St. Gregory by Pope Benedict XV and a gold medal was given him by the State of New York. He was a member of the Army and Navy Club, the Union League Club, the Catholic Club and the New York Yacht Club.

Friends at Annapolis Mourn Benson's Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 20.—Friends of Admiral William S. Benson, of the Navy, retired, learned with deep sorrow of his sudden death, which occurred in Washington. Admiral Benson and his family lived here a number of years, as he served several terms of duty at the Naval Academy, most important of which was that of commandant of midshipmen nearly a score of years ago.

Commander Howard H. J. Benson, son of Admiral Benson, is now on duty at the local naval station, and his daughter, the wife of Prof. Herman F. Krafft, curator of the Naval Academy museum, also lives here.

Singing U. S. Workers Held As Solution to Depression

By JOHN J. DALY

NOW, the Nation is getting somewhere.

Big pools and puddles in Wall street, millions a minute for the operators, tax bills, endless investigations, all these mean nothing, get nowhere.

After all the worry and wonderment, after looking into all these affairs, the Nation is right back where it starts.

Here is a chance for concrete accomplishment, for construction, for advancement, for something worth while—and an obscure member of Congress shows the way; but he shall not be obscure for long. The man has an idea.

Representative Fuller, of Arkansas, has placed before the lawmakers a joint resolution to compel all Federal employes to demonstrate their ability in the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

If there be one man among them who can not sound his A, out he goes, in disgrace, from the Federal forces—off the pay roll, once and forever.

In this way, of course, the Federal pay roll will be reduced to a minimum.

The member of Congress from Arkansas leaves only one loophole. If an employe of Uncle Sam—man or woman—can not croon or sing, he or she may recite the verses of Francis Scott Key's immortal song. This proves that the gentleman from Arkansas is not sponsoring Federal Glee Clubs, with cheer leaders, and the revival of the old rah-rah spirit.

* * * *

ONLY those candidates for jobs who measure up best in the patriotic song test would be given preference, the resolution states.

Here, then, is the first big attempt to solve a perennial problem.

It has been figured out by the astute statisticians that what this government needs is more money and fewer names on the Federal payroll.

Automatically, the Fuller bill if adopted by both branches of Congress, would eliminate nine-tenths of all the government workers. Some of them, indeed most of them, know only the first line of the national anthem, "Oh say can you see," and half of them are so old they can not see either by the dawn's early light or in the refulgent rays of the noonday sun. Cruel as it seems after all their years in harness, they must go!

* * * *

AS FOR reaching that high note in the national anthem, the one that hovers about the line, "the land of the free," that is like trying to cross the Alps on a bicycle. It just can not be done outside of the Metropolitan Grand Opera.

These are hard times and they call for hard measures. While a great number of people would be affected by this legislation, the Government departments would soon be filled with singers and elocutionists. What could be finer? Imagine an entire Federal force marching to work each morning singing and reciting, out of the gladness of their hearts.

"The Star-Spangled Banner, oh long may it wave, O'er the Capitol dome, with its Congress so brave."

If those be the words.

As Representative Fuller might remark, "I care not who makes the laws of my country so long as its Federal employes can sing its national anthem. And that's that!"

RELATIVES SEEKING RELEASE OF CURTIS

Dean Dobson-Peacock Turns Down Offer of Expenses for Jersey Trip.

Norfolk, Va., May 20 (A.P.).—As relatives moved today to have John Hughes Curtis, who perpetrated the Lindbergh hoax, released from a New Jersey jail, the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, associate of Curtis in the two months of "negotiations" for return of the kidnaped child, rejected a new offer to go to New Jersey for questioning.

New Jersey authorities, who are eager to confront Curtis with the Episcopal dean, offered to pay his expenses, but the clergyman said this did not alter his previously announced decision to remain here.

"Col. Schwarzkopf has my answer to that already," the dean said. "I have my legal advisers and I have been advised not to go to Hopewell." He reiterated he would answer questions here.

Meanwhile it was learned from the Curtis family that efforts toward the release of the hoaxer were under way. It was understood here that an attorney from Norfolk would go to Flemington, N. J., to arrange for the $10,000 bail.

Two separate investigations of the activities of Curtis in his fantastic search for the murdered baby and his dealings with men now confessed to have been figments of his imagination were being pressed.

Norfolk authorities have never relaxed their efforts to trace the movements and dealings of Curtis despite a statement from New Jersey officials yesterday that there was nothing to link Curtis with the kidnaping or collection of the ransom.

John M. Arnold, Commonwealth's attorney of Norfolk, announced he planned to interview Lieut. George L. Richard, naval air pilot used frequently by the Norfolk trio of "negotiators," in an effort to determine whether Curtis violated any Virginia law.

Norfolk police and Federal authorities pursued a different course, and Director of Public Safety Charles B. Borland said he was expecting a "new development."

It was learned tonight that W. C. Pender, Norfolk attorney, has been retained by relatives and friends to represent Curtis. He was expected to arrive in Flemington, N. J., tomorrow.

Salesman Gets 5 Years In Kidnap-Slaying Plot

Kansas City, May 20 (A.P.).—Walter Ogborn, 36-year-old former rug salesman, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment today as the result of his confessed attempt to extort $6,000 from Harold Negbaur, rug merchant, under threat of kidnaping and slaying Negbaur's 3-year-old son.

Ogborn pleaded guilty to a charge of blackmail. The sentence was the maximum for the crime. His plea was entered less than 24 hours after police arrested him as he approached a rendezvous with members of the Negbaur family.

Wheeler Launches Oil Inquiry Move

Wants Mitchell Quizzed on Merger Plans of Standards.

(Associated Press.)

A resolution calling upon the Attorney General to report to the Senate what steps he has taken or intends to take to prevent consolidation of the Standard Oil companies of New Jersey and California was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana.

Immediate action was requested by Senator Wheeler, but Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, objected.

The resolution said: "It is reported that the officers and directors of the Standard Oil companies of New Jersey and California are reported to be seeking to consolidate" the two companies "notwithstanding the decision of the Supreme Court and the Sherman antitrust act."

Atlantic Fleet Kept In Pacific Till Fall

Pratt's Order Refers to Steaming and Gunnery Economies.

(Associated Press.)

The scouting force of the United States fleet, comprising what is known as the Atlantic fleet, will be kept in the Pacific until October 1.

Announcement of the Navy's decision was made yesterday by Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations. The reasons given in his statement for the decision referred to economies "of steaming" and gunnery practice.

The decision, however, is in line with a request made to the Navy recently by the State Department that the scouting force be kept in the Pacific.

President Will Attend House Baseball Game

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic and Republican captains of the rival House of Representatives baseball teams yesterday obtained an autographed baseball from President Hoover and a promise to attend "the big game" at Griffith Stadium June 4.

Representative McMillan, of South Carolina, captain of the Democratic team, and Representative Carter, of Wyoming, captain of the Republican club, both exuded confidence as they stood on the south lawn of the White House for a photograph with the Chief Executive. The proceeds of the game will be turned over to the Community Chest.

Author Still Missing After French Ship's Fire

Marseille, France, May 20 (A.P.).—The noted French newspaper writer and novelist, Albert Londres, author of "The Road to Buenos Aires," was still reported missing today, after a recheck of the lists of survivors of the motor ship Georges Philippar which burned at sea Monday.

Forty-nine persons were reported still missing, but it was hoped that some of them had been picked up by ships not equipped with wireless or by coastal craft.

questions regarding the dean with these two paragraphs:

"Mr. Curtis' statement shows the part that Mr. Peacock played in these negotiations and it is desired to give Mr. Peacock an opportunity to verify or deny the allegations uttered by Mr. Curtis.

"The question of the possibility of criminal action on the part of Mr. Peacock was advanced by the press and at their request was submitted to the Attorney General for decision. No decision has been reported to us by the Attorney General as yet."

Newspaper Ad Discounted.

(4) A police disclaimer of any significance in an advertisement in a New York morning newspaper saying: "Citizen — Guarantee absolute confidence. Jimmy." The New York Evening Post said it had learned Mayor James J. Walker had received a letter promising Lindbergh information if a guarantee of safety would be made to the writer.

Apparently the continued check regarding Curtis was proceeding without further questioning of the boat builder himself. Curtis, held in default of $10,000 bail on a charge of obstructing justice and furnishing false information, sat alone in Flemington (N. J.) Jail while the warden took extra precautions against the possibility he might attempt to take his own life.

Curtis was given only a spoon with his food, which was served in tin bowls and cups with rolled edges.

The best information available thus far has placed the time of Curtis' arrival in New York City on April 2 at 10 a. m. After spending four days in the metropolis, authorities were told, he motored to Philadelphia, from where he was taken in a plane back to Norfolk by Lieut. George L. Richard, naval aviator, who acted frequently as his pilot.

In Norfolk, Commonwealth's Attorney John Arnold, who has been conducting an exhaustive inquiry there into Curtis' movements, said he planned to question the lieutenant.

It became known during the day Lieut. Richard had been ordered transferred to a flying squadron aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington effective as soon as the Lexington arrives on the East Coast. She is now at the Puget Sound Navy Yard.

More Rogues' Galleries.

His grand jury appearance was only a small part of the day's work for Dr. Condon, aged educator, who treated with the supposed kidnapers partly through newspaper advertisements signed "Jafsie."

Police also made known that a busy program still lies ahead of Dr. Condon. They said they expected to take him to large rogues' galleries in New Jersey and Philadelphia.

He already has viewed the likenesses of several thousand criminals in New York City and Westchester County, New York, in the hope of identifying the Scandinavian named "John" with whom he dealt in the ransom payment.

Inquiry was being made direct from Hopewell regarding the New York taxi driver who, during the course of the Condon negotiations, delivered to "Jafsie" a note from the supposed kidnapers. Arrangements were being made for the cab driver also to view the rogues' gallery pictures.

Dr. Condon motored from the Bronx grand jury chamber to police headquarters at New Rochelle, N. Y., where he engaged in a heated argument with James Curley, director of public safety there.

He refused to answer several of Curley's questions and merely shook his head when asked if the man he sought to identify was connected with the Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Fleigenheiner gang.

To other questions Dr. Condon replied in a loud tone by asking "Who are you?"

Finally Curley said:

"Never mind who I am. You'll find out soon enough."

Dr. Condon was permitted, however, to study 750 pictures in the Rogues Gallery there. He then departed for a New Rochelle school to conduct an examination of the teachers.

Clew in Money Exchange.

In emphasizing their continued interest in Curtis' part in the case, police said flatly:

"The entire story of Curtis is being investigated. All of Curtis' associates, including those previous to the Lindbergh kidnaping, will be questioned by investigators. The persons with whom Curtis was associated in Philadelphia are known to investigators and will be interrogated."

Another of the day's ramifications was a statement to Watervliet, N. Y., police by Frank Rebel, 35, a tailor, that two strangers had approached him there and made an unsuccessful attempt to have him exchange large amounts of United States currency for Spanish currency. Inquiry was being made to determine whether the pair might have been attempting to dispose of Lindbergh ransom money.

Doak Tells U. S. Position On 'Red' Johnson's Case

(Associated Press.)

The case of Henry "Red" Johnson, alien sailor suitor of Betty Gow, Lindbergh nurse, was described yesterday by Secretary Doak as a "routine deportation" matter.

Despite pressure being brought to bear, the Labor Department head added, Johnson, now held at Ellis Island, will be deported unless some court or other action is taken to prevent it.

Doak, who has interviewed the Swedish sailor, said he had received numerous calls, letters and telegrams. The Scandinavian Society, he said, appears to be the most intensely interested in the case.

"He told me that he was going to return to the United States as soon as possible if he is deported," said Doak. "He wants, however, to be allowed to depart voluntarily."

If Johnson is deported he can not legally return to the United States, but if he is allowed to depart voluntarily he could come in again under the immigration quota laws.

The Secretary refused to give the names of any of the persons who had called, written or telegraphed him or to give the reasons they had advanced for asking Johnson's release.

BUS APPEAL SLATED BY ALEXANDRIA LINE

Decision on Intrastate Operations Sought From Virginia High Court.

Richmond, Va., May 20 (A.P.).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals is to be asked to review the ruling of the State Corporation Commission declaring motor bus carriers operating under an interstate certificate have no authority to engage in intrastate business.

The commission was informed that the court of appeals would be asked to pass on the ruling by the Alexandria-Washington Buses, Inc., which was fined $200 for doing such an intrastate business.

In its proceedings against the bus company, which is certificated to do interstate business between Alexandria and Washington, the Commonwealth charged that the carrier was hauling passengers between Alexandria and points in Arlington County and between points within the City of Alexandria without authority.

Counsel for the company denied the first charge, but admitted the second and filed a demurrer claiming that the corporation commission was without authority of law to restrain it from intrastate operation within the city limits of Alexandria.

The State produced witnesses who testified that the company on certain occasions had transported passengers between Alexandria and points in Arlington County. The company's drivers denied the charge.

On May 12 the corporation commission assessed a $100 fine against the company for operating intrastate between Alexandria and county points, and another $100 fine for intrastate operation within Alexandria. The company was given 30 days in which to appeal the case, and 10 days in which to file a $500 bond declaring their intention to appeal.

Notice of the filing of the bond was received by the commission today.

Crash Betrays Robbers Of South Dakota Bank

St. Paul, May 20 (A.P.).—Four men who robbed the Bank of Ipswich, S. Dak., Wednesday, shot the president, kidnaped the cashier and fled with $21,000 loot, were arrested and confessed to the police today. The quartet was apprehended yesterday after an automobile accident in St. Cloud, Minn.

Chief of Police Thomas A. Brown said the men described themselves as Reinhold Engen, Sidney Baycraft, accused also of having shot M. Plin Deede, president of the bank during the robbery, Phil Ray and Eugene Van Tress. Ray, nabbed in St. Cloud, had $17,000 in negotiable securities, $2,500 in cash, and a submachine gun when arrested, the police said.

Kemal asked Mr. Sherrill to transmit his respects to President Hoover and the American people.

CLERGYMAN DENIES GAY TRIPS TO PARIS

Counsel Also Attacks Girl's Story of Pajamas as Davidson's Garb.

London, May 20 (A.P.).—The Rev. H. F. Davidson, 62-year-old clergyman, who is being tried by church authorities on charges of immorality, took the stand in his own defense today and testified he had taken many girls to Paris, but only to get them jobs.

The rector was nonchalant on the stand—so much so that at one juncture the chancellor presiding over the Consistory Court at Church House, Westminster, reprimanded him.

"Sit up and take your hands out of your pockets," the chancellor said.

The rector's assertion regarding his trips to Paris came in connection with evidence that he had taken Miss Rose Ellis there. He explained his purpose on that occasion was to get her a job.

Mr. Davidson took the stand after his counsel, R. F. Levy, had introduced a new issue into the trial—the question whether the rector wears pajamas or the old-fashioned nightshirt.

Miss Barbara Harris, one of the witnesses against the clergyman, painted a lurid picture of what took place when she was in Mr. Davidson's room, the defense attorney said, and in her evidence she mentioned the pair of pajamas.

Mr. Levy informed the court his client never wore pajamas and promised to prove that point before the trial was concluded. Miss Harris, he said, was lying out of malice and was "biting the hand that fed her."

When Mr. Davidson took the stand he declared that never in his life had he been guilty of immorality.

Reichers Returns On Rescue Vessel

Blames Fog for His Failure to Reach Ireland on Solo Flight.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—While two other airplanes—the giant Do-X and the monoplane of Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam—were taking on fuel on the Newfoundland coast preparatory to transatlantic flights, Lou Reichers, forced down in the ocean 47 miles off the Irish coast, returned to New York today aboard Capt. George Fried's ship, the President Roosevelt, that rescued him.

Reichers, Capt. Fried, and First Officer Manning described how he was picked up in the darkness. Manning said he had to ram the monoplane Liberty to get his lifeboat close enough to take Reichers, who appeared to be dazed, aboard. He said the rescue was made without Reichers even getting his feet wet.

Capt. Fried said that when the Liberty struck the water, the sound was like that of a gun explosion. He said the airplane must have been going at a speed of 70 miles an hour. Reichers blamed the fog for his failure to reach Ireland and said he would try it again if he had another chance.

Official of Mine Union Says He Was Kidnaped

Charleston, W. Va., May 20 (A.P.).—B. W. Roberts, District secretary-treasurer of the West Virginia Mine Workers Union, said today he was kidnaped from Logan and warned to stay away from the town.

Roberts disappeared yesterday. He appeared in Charleston today and said he was forced into an automobile that brought him here. His abductors told him, he said, that it would be "too bad" if he returned to Logan. State police said they received information that Roberts entered the automobile voluntarily, seeking a ride to Charleston.

Tucker and Bland File Race Notices

Reelection Is Sought by Two Representatives in Virginia.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Tucker, of Lexington, whose new district—the Seventh—takes in all the old Seventh and the major part of the Tenth, yesterday filed his notice of candidacy with Democratic chairmen of both old districts.

Representative Bland, of Newport News, also announced yesterday he had filed his notice of candidacy with Thomas W. Blackstone, of Accomac, First District chairman. The declarations this year contain the new clause, provided by the last General Assembly, to prevent a candidate getting his name on the general election ballot after defeat in a party primary.

"If I am defeated in the primary," the declarations read, "I hereby direct and irrevocably authorize the election officials charged with the duty of preparing the ballots to be used in the succeeding general election not to print my name on said ballots."

House Acts to Protect U.S. From Flood Claims

(Associated Press.)

For the first time this session the House overrode yesterday its rules committee to kill legislation to make the Federal Government liable for flowage rights over land exposed to Mississippi River flood water by levee setbacks.

By a vote of 186 to 136 a Republican attack succeeded in defeating a Democratic resolution to secure a vote on the Wilson bill. The opposition was led by Representative Snell, the Republican leader, who contended the measure would "open the door of the Treasury wide to the expenditure of an untold amount of money."

3 Detroiters Honored In Soviet Tractor Plant

Moscow, May 20 (A.P.).—Three residents of Detroit, Mich., were among 29 workers at the Stalingrad tractor plant awarded the Order of Lenin, the highest decoration of the Soviet Union, for outstanding service toward smooth operation of the factory.

Their names were revealed in an announcement today as D. B. Honey, I. T. Passenko, and L. I. Gross. All of the others, three of whom were women, were Russians. The three Americans were among a group of workers who came from the United States more than a year ago.

U. S. CHAMBER ASKS SPEED ON TAX BILL

Convention Resolutions Also Seek Cut in Expenses; Harriman Is Head.

San Francisco, May 20 (A.P.).—Reduction of Government expenses, and speedy determination of an emergency tax rate that will permit balancing of the national budget were urged by the United States Chamber of Commerce in resolutions adopted today.

The national chamber followed, in adopting the resolutions almost without a dissenting voice in the closing hours of its 20th annual meeting, the tenor of speeches to which it had listened for four days.

After the final general session was adjourned, the directors elected Henry I. Harriman, of Boston, president to succeed Silas H. Strawn, of Chicago.

The following vice presidents were chosen: M. S. Sloan, New York; J. P. Fishburn, Roanoke, Va.; P. M. McWhirter, Indianapolis; F. P. Heffelfinger, Minneapolis; Nathan Adams, Dallas, and Paul Shoup, San Francisco. Oscar Wells, of Birmingham, was elected treasurer. The convention city for next year will be chosen at a later meeting of the directors.

Before adjournment the convention elected the slate of new directors nominated Tuesday by the national council. As Harriman was one of these, the directors chose Reddield Proctor, of Proctor, Vt., to fill the vacancy created in electing Harriman president.

Federal, State and local governments were urged by resolution to eliminate unnecessary and questionable activities to relieve business of the "present intolerable burden of economy."

"Increasing such equitably levied taxes as may be necessary" as an emergency measure to permit balancing the public budget was sanctioned, however.

Carl Laemmle to Face Operation.

Baltimore, May 20 (A.P.).—Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Pictures Corporation, will undergo an operation at the Johns Hopkins Hospital within the next few days, his physician, Dr. Hugh H. Young said today. He said that the proposed operation was not serious.

METHODIST BISHOPS FACE SALARY SLASH

Pay and Expense Cuts Range From 16 to 20 Per Cent in Economy Program.

Atantic City, N. J., May 20 (A.P.).—The economy program of the Methodist General Conference extended to episcopal salaries today as the committee on episcopacy placed before the delegates a scale of reductions for both the expenses and salaries of bishops.

The proposal, printed in the conference's calendar, calls for salary decreases of 16 per cent for both general conference and missionary bishops, and for expense allowance cuts which range up to 20 per cent. The date for legislation on the recommendations has not been designated, but no particular opposition to the plan is anticipated.

If approved, the recommendations of the episcopacy committee will effect the following reductions:

The maximum salary of an effective bishop will be cut from the present $7,200 to $6,000 and a missionary bishop will receive $5,000 instead of $6,000.

Maximum Allowance.

For retired bishops, the maximum allowance will be reduced from $3,000 to $2,500 and for a retired missionary bishop from $2,500 to $2,000.

The allowance for episcopal residences, now between $1,500 and $2,000, will be lowered to a scale ranging from $1,250 to $1,800, and the office expense allowance reduced to $1,500.

The only item in the episcopal fund appropriation which the committee recommended remain unchanged was the $1,500 pension allotted annually to the widow of a bishop.

The committee on central conferences submitted its quadrennial report and was ordered to continue its study of the problem presented by the formation of central conferences electing their own bishops. These reports have authority only in their own conference and not in the church at large, as is the case of a general conference bishop.

Central Conferences.

The committee on central conferences is seeking to clarify the status of these central conference bishops.

The report suggested that it might be feasible in another quadrennial to change the name of central conferences to regional conferences for the entire church. The regional conference plan was seen as a step toward the formation of a Negro regional conference and a subsequent invitation to the Methodist Church South to rejoin the Methodist Episcopal Church as a regional conference.

The adoption of a regional conference plan at the next quadrennial would reduce sharply the size and unwieldiness of the general conference.

The board of foreign missions, in two reports, informed the conference that it had not lost one dollar of income from its investments in bonds and guaranteed mortgages and that it has reduced its debt more than three million dollars in the last eight years.

Court Hearing Shows 50 Indicted in Liquor Plot

Philadelphia, May 20 (A.P.).—A secret indictment brought three weeks ago against alleged members of a rumrunning syndicate was opened in the Federal district court today and revealed that 50 persons had been indicted, most of them believed to be residents of Philadelphia and vicinity.

The indictments cite 139 alleged overt acts, outlining the syndicate's operations in liquor smuggling from Montreal, St. Pierre and the Bahamas. There were 69 persons in the alleged ring, but the other 15, who include two women, while mentioned as "coconspirators" are not indicted.

4 Escape After Robbing Bank in North Carolina

Biscoe, N. C., May 20 (A.P.).—Four men held up the Bank of Biscoe today and escaped in an automobile with an undetermined amount of money.

Bank officials said it was less than $10,000.

have only 194 delegates to choose to complete the convention total of 1,154. It is almost certain that Roosevelt will win enough of these to give him a majority, if his claim to 100 or more from New York and Pennsylvania hold at Chicago. However, two-thirds, or 770, are needed to nominate, and it will be up to his managers to swing to him 100 or more votes from opposition ranks if he is to be nominated.

President Hoover, although not entered in the Oregon primaries, had an opportunity there to foreclose the Republican nomination in advance in pledged votes alone, if the voters wrote his name on the ballot and checked it more times than they did that of Joseph I. France, of Maryland, the only entrant for the preference vote.

Mr. Hoover needed only six to give him a pledged convention strength of 678, the majority required for the nomination. His instructed, pledged and claimed vote without Oregon was 995.

Nashvile, Tenn., May 20 (A.P.).—Tennessee Democrats in convention here today unanimously indorsed the presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and instructed their national delegates to cast the State's 24 votes as a unit for his nomination at Chicago.

Cheers echoed through the auditorium as the convention adopted the following partial report of its resolutions committee:

"His comprehension and 'understanding of public questions, his magnificent record in the administration of the affairs of the State of New York, stand out in marked contrast with the miserable administration of public affairs by the Republican administration at Washington. The Democratic party may safely contrast the records of Gov. Roosevelt and President Hoover."

The convention failed to adopt a platform, leaving the six candidates for the nomination for governor to enunciate their own principles.

Canada Denies Seeking Trade Pact With Reds

Ottawa, Ont., May 20 (A.P.).—Premier Bennett today told the House of Commons that no negotiations are under way between Canada and Soviet Russia. The premier's statement was in response to advices he had received that reports published in the United States said negotiations between the two governments were under way looking to a trade agreement.

"I desire to say," the premier told the house, "that no negotiations of any kind, form or description whatever between Soviet Russia and Canada have been initiated or are under way or are intended to be initiated or put under way."

CHURCH LEADER HITS HOTELS' WET STAND

Ohio Methodist Protestants in Parley Get Resolution Backing Prohibition.

Columbus, Ohio, May 20 (A.P.).—The prohibition question came sharply to the fore at the twenty-sixth quadrennial conference of the Methodist Protestant Church here today when Boyd P. Doty, Westerville, Ohio, councilor for the World League Against Alcoholism, assailed Ohio hotel men for their stand on the issue.

At the same time Dr. J. C. Williams, Columbus, president of the Ohio Conference of the church, introduced a resolution at meeting of the social service committee calling upon the National Hotel Association to reconsider its stand on prohibition. It was indicated the resolution would be brought before the delegates soon for adoption.

Establishment of a board of administration for the church, consisting of presidents of State conferences, the president of the general conference, college heads and other administrative officers, was brought before the general meeting by Dr. James H. Straughn, Baltimore, Md., executive secretary and treasurer. The board would meet annually to review the work in all branches of the church, Dr. Straughn said.

In a move to consolidate all lay evangelistic activities, W. A. Melvin, Baltimore, Md., was recommended for the proposed office of secretary of evangelism. Both proposals were referred to committee.

Dr. Gideon Ireland Humphreys president of High Point College, was named "fraternal messenger" of the general conference to the Methodist Episcopal convention now in session at Atlantic City.

Warning Asserts Sugar Is Injurious to Cement

Chicago, May 20 (A.P.).—A warning against sweetening concrete with sugar has been sent to the building world by the research laboratory of the Portland Cement Association. It explains that news of a recent discovery at Mellon Institute, that sugar strengthens lime mortar was interpreted by many builders to include mortars containing this cement.

"Addition of a very small amount of sugar to the concrete mix," says the announcement, "retards setting and materially reduces the final strength of the concrete. One-third of 1 per cent of sugar will completely destroy the cementing action."

3 New Catholic Papers Started in Past Year

Buffalo, N. Y., May 20 (A.P.).—Three new Catholic papers were started in this country during the past year, Frank A. Hall, of Washington, news director of the National Catholic News Conference, reported today at the annual meeting of the Catholic Press Association of America.

"Despite the great financial stress of the present time," Mr. Hall said, "the last year of the News Service has been a period of expansion, both in point of Catholic publications served and in point of material provided."

Peru's Cabinet Resigns; New Ministry Formed

Lima, Peru, May 20 (A.P.).—The ministry headed by Luis Flores resigned today and was succeeded in a few hours by a new cabinet under the premiership of Ricardo Rivadeneira, who also took the portfolios of justice and education.

The change in government resulted from a vote of lack of confidence in the assembly last night.

CANNIBALISM IS LAID TO LIBERIAN TRIBES

League of Nations Receives Complaint; State Faces Financial Stress.

Geneva, May 20 (U.P.).—Indications that cannibalism exists in the hinterland of the Negro state of Liberia, on the West African coast, were presented to the League of Nations Council today in the report of its Liberian committee.

The report suggested severe punishment for "cannibalism, which still appears to exist among tribes in the hinterland of Maryland and Sinoe Counties."

In addition, the report went into the other troubles of Liberia, which recently has been the center of difficulty arising from enslavement of the natives and frontier police methods which led to the burning alive of native men, women and children in more than 40 villages of the Kru coast.

The council adopted the report. It provided for readjustment of loans and contracts with the American Finance Corporation and the Firestone Rubber Co. The committee recommended a moratorium on Liberia's interest payments and servicing on loans made by the American Finance Co., while the Firestone Co. will be asked to reduce the acreage of its concessions and pay about 50 cents an acre rent instead of 6 cents as at present.

Samuel Reber, American member of the committee, announced the attitude of the United States would be reserved until reforms have been made by the Liberian government. The council will immediately send a supervisor to aid in reconstruction of Liberian finances and a league representative to aid in pacifying the Kru country.

The Liberian financial condition was described in the report as "tragic."

"Liberia has no budget," the report said. "She has no accounts, and no money. Salaries have not been paid for months * * * economically and financially, Liberia is in imminent danger."

(United Press.)

The United States insisted yesterday in a memorandum given to the Liberian commission of the League of Nations that a firm policy be followed in ending outrages on natives and bettering sanitary conditions in the little African republic.

This memorandum, handed to the commission by Samuel Reber, jr., American diplomat, was not available in textual form at the State Department. But officials summarized its contents. It was, in effect, a reservation to the commission's recommendation that the league set up a board of advisers in Liberia.

More than advisory powers—wide discretionary authority—was insisted upon by the United States. This position, the State Department explained, was based upon the sad disappointments the United States has suffered in the past in trying to cure Liberia's ills by mere advisers.

Indiana Mayor Held Guilty in Rum Case

Muncie's Executive and 9 Aids Are Convicted on Conspiracy Charge.

Indianapolis, May 20 (A.P.).—George R. Dale, mayor of Muncie, Ind., and nine co-defendants, were convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition act in Federal court today. Only one defendant, Raymond Hoover, a police garage mechanic, was acquitted.

The men convicted will be sentenced Wednesday, June 1. Besides Dale, those found guilty are: Fred Massey, chief of police; Fred Ellis, member of the board of safety; Dan Davis, patrolman; Kenneth Horstman and Harry Nelson, detectives; Albert Parkhurst, night captain; Ray Powell, policeman under suspension; Ernest Flatters and Fred Kubeck, alleged bootleggers.

The Government sought during the trial to show that Dale and his police officers had entered into an arrangement for the protection of certain liquor law violators. Following Dale's indictment several weeks ago he went to Washington and demanded that the Department of Justice investigate his case. He contended that the conspiracy charge was "framed." Shortly before the trial the department announced that Dale's charge had been investigated and a report forwarded to District Attorney Jeffrey.

Los Angeles in Hangar After "Narrow-Casting"

Lakehurst, N. J., May 20 (A.P.).—The naval dirigible Los Angeles returned to her hangar today after a flight of more than 21 hours.

During the cruise, which began yesterday morning, the ship participated in a novel broadcast—"narrow-casting"—in which sound was transmitted from the ship to radio station WGY, in Schenectady, N. Y., on a beam of light last night. Among those who spoke was Commander F. T. Berry. At the close of the coast-to-coast broadcast a message was received from the naval dirigible Akron, at Sunnyvale, Calif., which said the broadcast was "received well."

Capt. Lancaster Favors Disinterment of Clarke

Miami, Fla., May 20 (A.P.).—Disinterment of the body of Haden Clarke in an effort to determine whether he committed suicide was sought today by James M. Carson, attorney for Capt. W. N. Lancaster, former British army flyer who is charged with murdering the young writer and fiance of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, the Australian aviatrix.

The attorney filed a motion to that effect in circuit court and said he would present argument to Judge H. F. Atkinson Monday. He quoted Lancaster as favoring the autopsy on the theory that careful examination of the body would reveal whether Clarke died from suicide or murder.

Man Jailed in $150 Taxi Fare Default

Capital Driver Took Him to Detroit Because He "Didn't Like Trains."

Detroit, May 20 (A.P.).—H. Mortimer Neiswanner, who rode from Washington to Deroit in a taxicab because he doesn't like trains, was in jail today because J. Sidney Hobe, Washington taxi driver, doesn't like to be beaten out of $150 in cab fare.

Hooe had the backing of David S. Proctor, Detroit taxi driver, in placing Neiswanner in jail. Proctor's complaint was that he "drove that guy to every important building in town" and then was unable to collect his fare. That was after Hooe had given his passenger time to raise funds from friends here to pay his fare from Washington. The friends, it was explained, were obdurate.

Hooe said he agreed in Washington to bring Neiswanner to Detroit in his cab for $150 if the passenger would permit the driver's two young sons to come along for the ride. In Columbus, Ohio, the chauffeur said, he paid the bill for a night's lodging on Neiswanner's promise that he would be repaid by friends in Detroit. Today Hooe was waiting for a reply from home to his telegram for money with which to buy gasoline for the trip back to Washington.

Downs Pleads Guilty to Gem Holdup.

Los Angeles, May 20 (A.P.).—Jerry Downs, former manager of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League, pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery in connection with a $352,000 jewelry store holdup.

Presbyterians Rap Economic Disorder

Aver Misuse of Wealth Is Likely to End Democracy.

Denver, May 21 (A.P.).—The committee on social and industrial relations of the Presbyterian Church in the United States believes that "unless Democracy mends the distribution of wealth, maladministration of wealth will end democracy." The committee made public today its report to be submitted to the general assembly of the church which convenes here May 26.

"No longer can we tolerate the evils of an extremely selfish, unbridled, uncontrolled and leaderless individualism," said the report.

"We are in an intermediate stage between automatic adjustment of supply and demand through keen individual competition and its deliberate adjustment by collective leadership and planning. Under these circumstances three possibilities face us—our present individualism, some form of Socialism or planned production. Certainly no one desires the chaos which has resulted from the present order."

Dr. E. W. Smith to Quit Church Post.

Montreat, N. C., May 20 (A.P.).—Dr. Egbert W. Smith, for the past 20 years executive secretary of the Southern Presbyterian Church's committee on foreign missions, has announced he will not be a candidate for reelection at the meeting of the General Assembly here next week.

INDUSTRY TAKES HOLD.

Powerful forces are being mobilized into a national committee of bankers and industrialists for a united drive against the depression. Apparently this movement was inspired by President Hoover and his financial advisers. At any rate, it has the full support of the administration and the President intends to coordinate the efforts of industrial and financial groups from all parts of the Nation into one gigantic national program.

The committee set up in New York includes many of the foremost entrepreneurs of the business world. Other sections may also be expected to mobilize their best financial brains for this endeavor. If the movement is properly executed, it should bring together the most powerful economic forces of the country into this common effort.

This is the most far-reaching attack upon the depression that has been planned since the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was organized. It arises out of a natural demand for leadership in the business world. The crisis has reached a point where banking and industry must come forward and make effective the flow of credit which the Government has unloosed.

A few months ago business was stagnant because it could not secure credit. Constructive legislation made credit available, and stopped the epidemic of bank failures. In recent weeks the Federal Reserve banks have been pumping credit into commercial banks through the purchase of Government bonds. But that credit has not been passed on to the public. A stalemate in the war on depression has been reached. Cooperative action to draw funds out of the banks where they lie idle is the urgent need of the hour.

The movement which has been initiated in New York is based on cooperation between the institutions that have idle money and enterprises that need money to forge ahead with industrial plans. Credit can do the country no good so long as it remains frozen in bank vaults. It must be drawn out into commercial undertakings where it will create jobs, stimulate purchasing and prime the pump of industry.

Through the purchase of Government bonds the Federal Reserve Banks have put into the money market funds sufficient to support $7,250,000,000 in bank credit. Yet banks are afraid to make loans to business when the prospects of realizing profits are so meager. Business men also hesitate to borrow or to carry forward their normal activities because they are penalized by falling prices. No one can afford to back the depression single handed. But if industrial leaders get together for a united attack, the whole cycle of negative elements may be changed into a positive upturn. In unity there is strength. A determined effort to divert the vast reservoir of credit which has been made available by the Government will redound to the benefit of every industry as well as agriculture and labor.

The Government has carried the war upon depression about as far as it can go. It is impossible for Uncle Sam to force industry into a revival. The means of recovery have been placed within the grasp of private enterprise. It remains for business leaders to mobilize their strength and take advantage of idle money to resume normal operations. Now that industry has reasonable assurance of sound financial backing there should be no further hesitation.

Considerable time will be required to effect working industrial organizations in each Federal Reserve district. If Congress is able to complete its business in the meantime and then adjourn so as to remove the element of uncertainty from the immediate future, the prospects for an upturn will be immediately improved. This seems to be the best opportunity the country has had for several months to drive back the forces of deflation and begin the new era of prosperity.

SPLIT BY THE TARIFF.

Log-rolling tactics won out in the Senate on Friday when that body adopted a tariff on oil. This duty could not have been approved had it not been for the fact that senators who have no interest in oil voted in favor of the tariff in order to secure votes for duties on coal, copper and lumber.

It may be assumed that the other tariff items written into the tax bill will now become law. The oil tariff is the least defensible item in the group. Congress could not consistently deny protection to the copper and lumber industries, which are admitted to be in distress, after having voted to exclude the present meager imports of petroleum.

The oil tariff was put into the bill by Democratic votes. Sponsored by that ardent "foe" of protection, Senator Connally, of Texas, it was supported by a considerable number of Democratic senators who have tariff axes of their own to grind. The effect of this vote is to split the Democratic party wide open on the tariff issue, and to make its cries against the Smoot-Hawley act the hollowest mockery.

Senator Tydings can not improve the record of his party by filibustering against the tax bill as a protest against the protective demands of his colleagues. The vital issue before the Senate is balancing the budget, and not protective duties. It is apparent that these tariff items must remain in the bill and that any attempt to eliminate them would cause more delay than to permit their enactment. Let the will of the majority be respected. If the senators who have fought these tariff items have any concern for their country's welfare, they will not resort to dilatory tactics in an attempt to make the wishes of the minority prevail.

Further agitation of the tariff issue by filibustering will put the entire Democratic party in the hole. Republicans can not be embarrassed by supporting protective duties. But every hour of filibustering by irate Democratic free traders drives the wedge of dissension deeper into the groove between the two Democratic factions, and adds to the disgust of the public.

ADMIRAL BENSON.

The United States loses a faithful servant in the death of Admiral William S. Benson. His lifetime of training and his exceptional ability enabled him to make extremely valuable contributions to the country's welfare. To this end his entire life was devoted.

After the usual service as a naval officer afloat and ashore Admiral Benson became Chief of Operations in 1915. He directed the strategy and movements of the United States Navy during the World War, and co-ordinated these operations with those of the allied fleets. He shaped the course of the armistice negotiations in the naval matters, and was chief naval advisor of President Wilson at the Paris peace conference. Subsequently he was chairman of the United States Shipping Board and president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Throughout his long and illustrious career Admiral Benson was a jealous defender of the naval interests of the country. His counsel on the general board was statesmanlike in its breadth and foresight. In private life and in public station Admiral Benson was the soul of honor. His career is an admirable example to all succeeding naval officers.

FAR EAST COMPLICATIONS.

Quick changes in the Far Eastern situation see active fighting removed from Shanghai to Eastern Manchuria, and menacing movements threatening disruption to the governments of both Tokyo and Nanking. A brief period has altered the position of Japan and China, so recently engaged in mortal combat, with the constituted authorities of both nations striving to maintain themselves against forces of disruption at home.

Japan is struggling to save constitutional government. The radical militarists, masquerading under the guise of Fascists, are advocating most of the confiscatory policies of Communists, though they propose to carry on a dictatorship under the emperor. Following the assassination of Premier Inukai it seemed possible that the military element might be appeased with a share of a coalition government, but negotiations between President Suzuki of the government party and General Araki, representing the military party, have not progressed favorably.

The army leaders are opposed to party control and constitutional government, but curiously their present demands turn upon local economic questions rather than international issues and conduct of the war in China. The lamentable condition of the agricultural classes calls for assurances of relief for the farmers before any combination is made with the government faction. Administration leaders feel that the army has slight comprehension of the responsibilities entailed in undertaking the economic and social reforms demanded. Unsettled conditions may force military control, which, if achieved, is certain to result in sudden changes of great significance in Japan.

In China the report that the Nanking government was to receive the support of former Premier Sun Fo and Foreign Minister Eugene Chen, and that they would proceed to Nanking to accept new cabinet posts, proves to be unfounded. These leaders remain in Shanghai and decline to accept responsibility in a government in which General Chiang Kai-shek retains supreme power. Well-informed circles even foresee the disruption of the alliance between General Chiang and Wang Ching-wei, in which event political and military developments may follow thick and fast.

In addition to the uncertainties of the political situation, the spread of the Communist raids in Central China threaten further large areas with domination by red armies. The financial difficulties of the Nanking government have precluded payment of troops and many soldiers are reported to be deserting to the Communists in order to secure food. While there has been some decrease in the tension on the Siberian border, following repeated assurances from Moscow that nothing but defense measures have been taken or contemplated, conflicts between Japanese and Chinese troops have attained the importance of serious engagements. General Ma Chen-shan has so augmented his force that he is attacking Japanese troops in the very outskirts of Harbin, where battles are witnessed by members of the league investigating committee.

From every angle the China-Japan-Manchurian-Communist situation becomes more involved, threatening to develop finally into war between Russia and Japan.

IRISH OATH ABOLISHED.

Ireland has eliminated itself from the British commonwealth of nations. By a margin of eight votes the Dail Eireann passed President Eamon de Valera's bill to remove the oath of allegiance to King George from the Free State's constitution. The bill now goes to the Senate. That body can delay but not prevent the measure from becoming law.

The Dail did not vote under any false assumptions. The British government had previously announced that removal of the oath would operate to deny to Ireland tariff preferences in the English market. It is expected that the dominions will follow suit, and that Ireland will find itself in distressing economic isolation.

The Irish people do not wish to forgo the economic advantages of being a member of the British commonwealth. Mr. de Valera apparently thought he could destroy the only remaining political tie between Britain and Ireland and retain all the advantages of free trade with the dominions and the mother country. He was too stubborn to turn back when it became evident that his program would put Ireland in the position of an independent state.

In spite of his isolation program, President de Valera announces that he will attend the imperial conference at Ottawa. That gathering may bring the issue of Ireland's status to a showdown. It is absurd to suppose that the other nations in the British commonwealth will allow Ireland to retain economic advantages while throwing off allegiance to the crown.

If the Senate should not sustain the action of the Dail, the issue would be deadlocked for 18 months. During that time the Irish people might suffer because of the loss of the British market. In view of the closeness of the vote and the uncertainty as to what would result from repudiation of the oath, it is not safe to assume that the Irish people are determined to throw off allegiance even at the cost of their country's welfare. The issue can not be considered as settled until the people have actually experienced the economic stress that will visit Ireland when that country is confronted by hostile tariff walls, against which it can not retaliate.

The Garner plan commands the enthusiastic support of the Speaker of the House.

FILIPINO REACTION

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

The reaction of the "man in the street" in Manila to the passage of the independence bill in Congress is set forth by G. Rivera, leading Filipino columnist and editorialist in the Philippine Herald, exponent of Philippine independence and organ of the party in power.

Mr. Rivera wrote (note his clean-cut English):

"Congress will vote on the Hare bill today (April 4). The measure provides for Philippine freedom with a transitional period of from eight to ten years. Speaker Garner seems determined to settle the question now. And he does not mind forcing the issue upon the House.

"But outside of the screaming headlines in the papers, I don't see any excitement here about it. Everything is quiet along this front.

"According to the papers the members of the Philippine Legislative Commission in Washington are jubilant over the bright prospects of the Philippine situation in Congress. Here, however, the people seem more interested in the Manchurian question, and in the conquest of the provinces by 'One-Shot Teddy' [Governor General Roosevelt].

"The trouble, of course, is that for the last 30 years, the Filipino people have been listening to speeches on independence, only to find out that they are all mere talk."

On the next day Mr. Rivera wrote:

"Well, Garner did it. In spite of Stimson's letter to Bingham, made public by Bacon, saying that granting freedom to the Philippines would be 'selfish cowardice,' Garner succeeded in forcing the issue upon Congress.

"The Hare measure is the first Philippine independence bill to reach the House. And in record time (40 minutes) passed it by 306 to 47 vote.

"Now you have to believe in miracles. This morning I was expecting a riot at the Plaza Goiti [busy Manila square]. I thought that paper vendors would be mobbed by the eager public. But the sale of papers seemed normal. There was not the least excitement.

"Independence in eight years with a can tied to its tail—that's the Hare bill.

"Let's see how this thing would react on our daily life here. Of course, there's nothing certain about the Hare bill. It may, and it may not get the final O. K. of President Hoover. But generally a political event of such magnitude as the passing of an independence bill has immediate effects upon economics and even upon our ways of reasoning. Now, let's watch ourselves."

In the foregoing Mr. Rivera places Filipino journalism on a high plane of service and purpose through his exhibition of clarity, fidelity, circumspection and fearlessness.

Anyhow it was quite a feat to suppress the static in that radio pool for three years.

Modern giants of industry and finance will join the Federal Reserve in showing up what pikers the ancient alchemists were by transmuting $300,000,000 of idle reserves into $3,000,000,000 of credit.

Pouring oil and gasoline on the fiery waves of debate is another senatorial idea for saving the Ship of State.

Members of Congress must feel considerably miffed that no one has proposed postponing the Chicago conventions to wait for them.

Newton Baker says Congress could function promptly if guarded by Marines. Possibly just a flit brigade against lobby locusts would do.

Gov. Roosevelt is making so many speeches it is a mystery how he can always so accurately miss hitting the old nail on the bean.

Log jams are cleared by dynamite, and the congressional jam may yet be broken up by explosive public opinion.

Tariffs required for national revenue cause enough trouble on the Hill, but not to compare with tariffs needed for political retinue.

House Democrats and Republicans will oppose each other in a baseball game. It may develop the advantage of having a congressional umpire.

The fact that Mr. Morris Rosner knew and could so promptly organize all the mob and gang leaders in a kidnap search would indicate that his usefulness should not be allowed to stop there.

It also recalls that Porfirio Diaz organized Mexican bandits into rurale guards that became the world's most effective force for peace and order.

If congressmen want to be ready for legislative work in Chicago next month all they have to do is to cut out the politics at the conventions on the Hill.

Some mathematician is Newt. Baker; nine-tenths of the members of Congress, he says, could each produce a better program than Congress altogether has been able to produce, but they can't go 472 different ways at once, so in this crisis they must follow the executive lead.

If filibustering tariff racketeers attempt to hold up the revenue bill, the first duty of the new vigilantes will be to attend to them. Of course, we do not refer specifically to the Thomas and Tydings threats—not yet.

To offset inconsistencies in tariffs for full-grown infant industries, Congress levies taxes on pre-natal beer.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE SAFE GOLFER.

He is never in a bunker, and he's never in the rough,
A drive of ordinary length to him is quite enough.
He plays the game the surest way; he never lifts his eye,
And never thinks to risk a shot where danger's apt to lie.

This sort of golfer doesn't know the game's supremest thrill—
He's never driven two hundred yards, and what's more, ne.er will.
He slaps the golf ball down the course, a most complacent soul,
Quite satisfied to take a five or six on any hole.

He never stamps his foot in rage or flings his clubs in air.
The man content with safety doesn't very often swear;
He plods his way around the course, but when the game is done
He hasn't had much trouble—and he hasn't had much fun.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise: You cling to your own happiness with the tenacity of a bear trap when you happen to disagree with me, but several times recently I have heard you express ideas that came from one of your friends.

I suppose all of us borrow most of our ideas somewhere, but it is a dangerous practice and may lead to slavery if it isn't checked.

You have read enough history to know that slavery can exist in a free country. And you know, too, that the master may be less free than his slave.

Many a slave in ancient Athens, bought in the market or captured in the wars, became the instructor of his master's children or the manager of his household and thus enjoyed every right and privilege except that of calling himself free.

And many a free man in this land of the free is so enslaved by his possessions and his duties that he can not remove his chains for a day or scarcely for an hour.

Slavery doesn't require physical servitude. It is simply the opposite of freedom. If you are independent you are free, and if you aren't independent you are a slave.

Please try to remember that, dear.

I don't mean to say that you are a slave if you aren't independent enough to break laws and scoff at authority. Willing obedience to the rules is necessary where free people cooperate for the common good, and restrictions willingly observed are not restrictions at all but mere self-control.

But you are a slave if you have lost the ability to think for yourself.

Make a test of your intellectual freedom.

Do you despise Jones because you have reason to think him despicable, or because other people make it a rule to despise anybody who has been in jail?

Do you attend church because you enjoy public worship, or do you endure boredom because church-going is a custom of your community.

Are your opinions of dancing, gambling, college education, Hoover, Shakespeare, cigarettes, European travel, modernistic furniture and rolled stockings—are your opinions of these and other things honest and free opinions, the products of your own reasoning, or have you slavishly accepted the opinions of your associates without testing their soundness?

Your mind is your greatest treasure, dear. Don't let it drift into slavery because you are too lazy to use it. If you can't give a reason for the faith that is in you, look for chains. Love, DAD.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

More Deadly Parallels.

Detroit News.

On April 8, Representative LaGuardia of New York addressed the House in committee of the whole. His speech was not reported in the Record of that day, which announced that it would appear later in the appendix. On the same day, Representative Buchanan of Texas delivered a speech, which was given similar notation in the Record. These speeches at last appeared in the appendix, one on May 4, the other May 5. Apparently they had been revised and corrected by Messrs. LaGuardia and Buchanan. Otherwise the House would have noted that Mr. LaGuardia said (or says he said):

"If cooperating marketing under the agricultural marketing act were not succeeding, the Macedonian cry of one cotton gambler to another would not sound up to heaven, 'Help me, Cassius, or I sink!'"

While at the same session Mr. Buchanan said (or says he said):

"If cooperating marketing under the agricultural marketing act were not succeeding, the Macedonian cry of one cotton gambler to another would not sound up to heaven, 'Help me, Cassius, or I sink!'"

This curious parallel, and nine other similarities in the two speeches, was pointed out by Representative Woodrum of Virginia. Mr. Woodrum offered the suggestion that some agency be appointed to guarantee that "if we want a good speech we could be sure to get it fresh and unused and not meet it next day delivered by some other member of the House."

Why Not?

Forbes Magazine.

Why shouldn't the salaries of our lawmakers be reduced in common with all other salaries? Why shouldn't the Government be compelled to live within its means? Pork barrel politicians are courting a rude awakening. They are destined to learn unmistakably how impoverished taxpayers feel.

No Army Cut.

Houston Post.

There is such a thing as being penny wise and pound foolish. Congressmen need to bear that truth in mind when they meddle with the national defense. There are any number of civilian bureaus it would be much safer to abolish outright than to cut the Army strength lower than it is now. We might well learn a lesson from China.

Sound Sense.

Chicago News.

There is sound sense in President Hoover's proposal that Congress pass a reasonable economy bill before taking final action on a revenue bill. In urging that course Mr. Hoover voices the sentiment of the country. Where income must be determined by taxation, and where all increases in taxation amount to exactions that can be met only at sacrificial cost, determination of the minimum need of revenue is manifestly the primary matter for action. Economies should not be based on mere effort to balance a budget after fixing a rate that will bring in all the traffic will bear. A scientific, just policy of economy would first eliminate all costs that are not absolutely essential to the thrifty management of the country's affairs, and then discover means of obtaining revenue sufficient to meet the irreducible minimum of requisite expenditure.

Large Idea.

Boston Transcript.

One thing that this neglectful Congress has not thought of is an excise tax on waistlines.

Just a Man.

Topeka Capital.

Democrats had a good deal of fun in the last two years and more over the reputation given Hoover along about 1928 as a magician and miracle worker. It appears that he isn't. But for all that, he is the only man in sight who has contributed a workable idea, in or out of politics.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Birds in the Glade South of Lincoln Memorial Pool a Fascinating Study for Alfred Sandboy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The little section of woods directly south of the Lincoln Memorial Reflecting Pool abounds with bird life. I walked through the trees located at this point one afternoon, found a comfortable place under one of the trees and sat down for about an hour, watching the never-ending parade of birds around me. Upon approaching the trees, I saw a number of starlings, a few robins, some English sparrows and a chipping sparrow on the grassy expanse in front of the trees.

When I first entered the woods, I saw a cardinal, then a catbird whose singing attracted my attention. I had walked but a few steps before I noticed a tufted titmouse flitting about in the trees above my head. At the same moment, a pair of yellow warblers crossed my line of vision.

I then walked toward the center of the glade and sat down. I did not have long to wait before I noticed quite a flock of gold finches and purple finches in the top of a maple tree. The next in the parade was a song sparrow that approached very close to me while seeking food on the ground. The other birds I saw while sitting under the trees were some purple grackles, a flicker, brown thrasher, myrtle warbler, wood, thrush, black and white warbler, fox sparrow and a brown creeper.

This little group of trees affords an ideal haven for many of the smaller birds found in and around Washington. It is a nice quiet place for any one to sit and study the habits of the feathered folk. I think if one were to sit here for half a day with a pair of field glasses, one could easily make a list of 50 different kinds of birds, without having to move at all.

ALFRED SANDBOY.

Pleads for Navy Bands and Says Congress Should Attack Major Extravagances.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The navy bill, as reported by the House appropriations committee, provides that the total of enlisted men in the ratings of bandmaster, first musician, musician, first class, and musician, second class, shall be reduced by 355 by discontinuing all with less than two enlistments. If this provision is allowed to stand, it will mean the discontinuance of all Navy bands except those of the Philippines, training stations and the Naval Academy.

The saving thus obtained will be very small. It will probably not amount to more than a few thousand dollars, and the public will be deprived of the splendid music which the different Navy bands in the United States supply. If it were a matter of a major saving, the public would favor the abolition of the Navy bands, but as that is not the case, I do not think the public wants to see these bands abolished.

Representative Britten, former chairman of the House naval affairs committee, is waging a fight to restore the Navy band item to the naval appropriation bill. Representative Britten should be thoroughly familiar with the subject because of his service on the naval affairs committee.

The members of the House seem to be storming about, making slashes right and left upon minor items, whereas there are hundreds of major instances staring them in the face, which, if looked into carefully, studied diligently and taken up in the proper manner, would afford vast savings to the Government and not prove injurious to the general public. Until the House abandons its stampede and settles down to adopting sensible economy methods, it is not going to get very far.

C. C. PARSONS.

Sanctuary for Grizzly Bears Advocated by A. K. W.—Admiralty Island Suggested.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The grizzly bears of Alaska are threatened with extermination. There are a few thousand grizzly bears left on the islands of Admiralty, Baranof, Chicagof and Kodiak, but the trouble is that all these islands are surrounded by numerous small islands on which foxes are raised for commercial purposes, and the men who raise foxes, kill the grizzly and brown bears when they visit salmon-spawning streams in summer. The bear meat is used for fox food. It is also reported that the crews of the salmon fishing vessels kill many bears.

Protecting the bears by placing a yearly bag limit on them will not save them. What is needed is a bear sanctuary. Congress should pass a bill designating one of the above mentioned islands as a bear sanctuary, making it unlawful to harm any of the bears at any time on this island so designated. If Admiralty Island were chosen for the sanctuary, it would mean no extra expense to the Government as this is already Government property. As a matter of fact, it would be an asset, as a bear sanctuary would result in the annual visit of many tourists to the location. Something must be done to save bears of Alaska before it is too late.

MUSEUM OF DREYFUSIANA.

It is not generally known that there is a Dreyfus Museum in Paris, but its existence is revealed by the announcement that Mme. Bjornson-Sautreau has given two letters to this museum, one of them written by Emil Zola and the other by Gen. Andre to her father, the famous Norwegian playwright. The Christian Science Monitor says the official title bestowed on the museum is Fondation Ochs, and it is housed at the Institut d'Histoire, de Geographie et d'Economie, next to the Carnavalet Museum. It contains 17,000 documents relating to the celebrated Dreyfus case.

Smith Reynolds, 20, Weds Libby Holman

Tobacco Heir, in Second Trip to Altar, Marries Torch Singer.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Libby Holman, torch singer, and Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir, are married. She is 26, he is 20. It is her first marriage, his second. Their secret wedding several months ago was disclosed today. They are living at the Ambassador Hotel, where they came from a honeymoon in Honolulu.

Reynolds, an aviation enthusiast, has just returned from an airplane jaunt about the Far East with Jean Assolant, French flyer. Miss Holman made a name for herself by her singing in the "Third Little Show." She is a dark, almond-eye contralto, whose forte is "moaning low" as the bookers have it.

Reynolds is an heir to the immense Reynolds tobacco holdings founded by his father. His first wife, the former Anne Cannon, divorced him last fall in Nevada and he was reported to have settled $1,000,000 on her. He flew her and their infant daughter to the Western courts. He said then he would never marry again.

U. S. Will Commission 365 in Annapolis Class

Special to The Washington oPst.

Annapolis, Md., May 20.—Although the class of midshipmen to be graduated from the Naval Academy June 2 has a roll of 422, approximately 365 will receive commissions and go into the service, it was learned today. Upward of 25 will resign voluntarily, upon receipt of diplomas, it was said, and a like number will leave the service because of physical disqualification or other causes. Until recently, when Congress made the necessary provision, there was grave doubt whether commissions would be available for more than 60 members of the class.

Socialists Deplore Dry Law as Issue

Party Hopes to Avoid Talk About Prohibition at Its Convention.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 20 (A.P.).—The Socialist party, on the eve of its national convention here, hopes it will not be necessary to talk about prohibition. The issue may bob up when 300 delegates from 43 states begin making platform suggestions, but party chiefs are trying to avoid any definite pronouncement. The Socialist party, leaders explained, has always been opposed to prohibition and its attitude is well known.

"It's easier to get interested in beer than in sound social legislation," said Clarence Senior, of Chicago, national secretary. "The prohibition question is being dragged into the American picture by the old parties at this time to befog the real issues. Old parties are planning to make so much noise about prohibition that the voices clamoring for social justice will be drowned out."

Executive committeemen have decided, however, to make the convention democratic and to allow suggestions to come from the floor.

Holy Rood Cemetery.

Holy Rood Cemetery, the oldest burial place in the District of Columbia, and the cemetery of Holy Trinity Church, is to be reopened and made a fitting place where the beloved dead of Holy Trinity, St. Ann's and St. Stephen's parishes may be buried.

This old cemetery dates back to the time when in 1793 Holy Trinity Church became a part of old Georgetown, and within its sacred ground, are reposing those who in their days were among the most prominent people of their times. It has a beautiful location, resting, as it does, on a hill and commanding a wonderful view of the entire city.

The present pastor, the Rev. Father McEneany, S. J., has vainly tried to restore the cemetery.

A coterie of lot owners headed by Mrs. Rossa Downing, of St. Ann's parish, have set in motion a scheme to bring the place back to its original beauty, and to assist the rector of Holy Trinity in his laudable effort.

A mass meeting was held on Tuesday evening for the purpose of forming a Holy Rood Cemetery Association, the attendance being large and all showed an interest in making the place what it should be in the future.

A temporary organization was formed, John Hadley Doyle acting as chairman; Miss Mary Kelleher as secretary, and Miss Ida Garrity as treasurer. Tentative plans were mapped out, a committee of fifteen was appointed to look into all details, to report back on Tuesday evening and to induce others to attend.

SCHOOLS' EXPENSES DEFENDED BY BOARD

Arlington Body's Chairman Issues Statement Showing Financial Status.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 808. Clarendon, Va.

Replying to statements made by members of the Arlington County Board relative to county school affairs, the County School Board, through its chairman, Thomas J. DeLashmutt, last night released the following statement:

"Certain members of the County Board have recently made statements that have been given wide publicity, indicating that the schools of Arlington County have been extravagantly operated. They first stated at the April meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation that an increased levy of 25 cents for school purposes would be required, as the School Board faces a deficit of $50,000 for the present year, even if all taxes are paid, and in addition thereto, owes a note of $50,000 which it had discovered. Again on May 1, when the County Board adopted the budget, the chairman of the board is reported to have said, 'The School Board expenditures have exceeded receipts for the past several years, but we will make them present a real budget and live within their income next year.'

Expenditures Detailed.

"The people of Arlington County are entitled to know the facts about school expenditures, and to judge for themselves whether such statements are justified.

"First—It is a fact that the school board faces a deficit of $50,000 for the present year, even if all taxes are paid.

"At the time of the shortage in the treasurer's office there was to the credit of the school board approximately $81,000. Because of this shortage the school board has had to borrow up to May 1 $63,000 to keep the schools open and $52,000 from the State literary fund to take up defaulted bonds. The school board doubtless will receive this shortage from the bonding company. Since the time of the shortage the county treasurer has received from taxes and other sources to the credit of the school board approximately $30,000.

"The audit now being made shows that on February 25 of this year there was approximately $468,000 of delinquent uncollected taxes for the past five years. The school board is entitled to about $136,000 of this amount.

"It thus appears that instead of the school board facing a deficit of $50,000 for the current year it actually has to its credit, including uncollected taxes, a surplus.

Denies Deficits Blame.

"The school board should not be held responsible for deficits due to shortages and uncollected taxes, which must eventually be paid and credited to the school fund.

"Second—What now are the facts relating to the $50,000 note which a member of the county board said must be paid?

"The first school bond issue was not sufficient to complete the school buildings, due to the increased cost of labor and material. Some of this additional cost was paid out of current revenue and there resulted a current floating indebtedness of approximately $250,000. To take care of some of these most pressing obligations C. C. Lamond in 1928 loaned the school board $50,000 at 6 per cent interest.

"In the last bond issue of 1930 for school purposes it was provided that $223,000 could be used to refund this current floating indebtedness, as it was money used to complete the prior building construction program. The Lamond note was not included, however, in the sale of these bonds in 1930, as he stated that the note might be renewed from year to year, and it was not deemed advisable to obligate the county to pay 4½ per cent on $50,000 of bonds for 20 years, when in all probability the note could be paid off in two or three years out of current revenue. In fact, if delinquent taxes were collected this note could now be paid. There remains, however, of this bond issue of 1930 $78,000 of unsold bonds which could be sold, if necessary, to take up this note.

Budget Estimated.

"The county school board presented to the county board an estimated budget for the next year, beginning July 1, of $343,404. The present assessed valuation of property in the county is $25,650,000. The school levy being $1.05 for each $100 assessed, would bring in an estimated revenue of $269,325 for school purposes. In addition to this amount, the school board will receive from the State approximately $70,000 and about $6,000 from other sources, such as night school tuition.

"The total estimated revenue, therefore, for school purposes is $345,325, as compared with the school budget of $343,404.

"The largest item in the school budget is for instruction, which amounts to $170,358, or approximately 50 per cent of the total budget. Our teachers are not overpaid. They receive one-third less than the District of Columbia teachers doing the same work. The State superintendent of schools, who has examined this budget, has stated that this is a very low percentage, as the average cost for instruction in the State is more than 70 per cent of the total budget, and he also stated that our overhead and administrative expenses are low.

Minimum Expenses.

"If the members of the county board are so concerned over the alleged extravagance of the school board, why have they, in adopting their budget, allocated $196,315 for resurfacing all the streets in the county, surfaced last year, in addition to the improvement of many new roads and streets, when the county could save, according to Delegate Hugh Reid, approximately $133,000 by remaining under the provisions of the Byrd road act?

"The schools are being operated at a minimum expense to provide efficient instruction for approximately 5,500 pupils. Arlington County now ranks foremost of all the counties in the State in public school facilities. The graduates of our high school receive equal rank in entering other colleges and universities with the graduates of the high schools of the District of Columbia. Our good schools are an important factor in bringing many people to live in Arlington County, and in the building of new homes which will produce an increasing tax revenue.

"The school board believes that the people of Arlington County do not want their children deprived of opportunities for a good school education by reducing school expenditures."

partment and the Bethesda Rescue Squad to Widewater.

The firemen from Cabin John carried a boat on their truck to the scene. From it they dragged the canal for the body.

Culver's body was found by the searchers after several hours of dragging. It was removed to the District Morgue, pending completion of funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Nunamaker was prostrated when she learned of her son's death. The youth stood very high in his scholastic ratings at McKinley.

more than a comparatively small percentage of the liabilities.

7. That negotiations have been started to ve the Swedish Match Co. a chance to undertake reconstruction work. Meanwhile, its affairs are under control of a special administration.

"This administration probably will invite foreign and Swedish creditors as well as others interested, to sit in a special committee to formulate a plan for reconstruction looking to gradual settlement of the company's liabilities and preservation of assets and good will to the ultimate benefit of shareholders," the report said.

"Regarding the Ericsson Telephone Co., it seems that a considerable part of the capital can be considered intact, provided difficulties connected with the company's cash position can be overcome. Negotiations are being continued, but have not yet led to an agreement."

Kreuger attempted to sell the telephone company to the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., which paid him $5,000,000 down, and promised $6,000,000 more after investigating the company. The investigation showed Kreuger had withdrawn cash reserves of the company.

The sale of the Ericsson Co. was then canceled.

Discussing the lack of assets of the Kreuger & Toll Co., the report said:

"This being the case, there is no longer any reason for maintaining the existing moratorium. Therefore, the committee recommends that the directorate should request the government to recall the moratorium and thereupon take the necessary steps to have the Kreuger & Toll Co. declared bankrupt."

New Plane Development Hinted in Italy's Senate

Rome, May 20 (U.P.).—The development of military and naval aircraft to a point far superior to present planes was hinted in the Senate tonight, when Air Minister Italo Balbo announced that Italy had regained the speed supremacy of the air from Great Britain.

Although Balbo did not announce any figures, he referred to the recent speed tests at Lake Garda, where Lieut. Neri was unofficially credited with breaking the world speed record for seaplanes by flying about 460 miles an hour.

Piscataway School Merger With Oxon Hill Proposed

The closing of the Piscataway School and transportation of the pupils to Oxon Hill is the latest move to be proposed in the campaign of school consolidation which is proceeding in Prince Georges County, according to Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools.

Piscataway is a one-room school, and it is said that the teacher and most of the patrons favor the plan to take the children by bus to Oxon Hill. Two years ago, it was reported, the plan was discussed, but the majority of the patrons were against it and it was dropped. A few days ago the closing of several other small schools was also proposed and is being considered.

In all of southern Maryland, Mr. Orem said, the consolidation plan is coming into favor. Charles County now has only one one-room school and there will be only a few in Calvert County next year.

In Calvert County eleven one-room schools are to be consolidated into a single large one, which is being built on the new section of the Southern Maryland boulevard. Mr. Orem said that 188 out of 189 patrons voted in favor of this move when it was presented to them by the school officials of Calvert County.

Road Warnings Remain Though School Is Closed

To the Maryland State Roads Commission a school is a school, and maybe that is why the Patuxent School in Prince Georges County has caution signs painted on the road in front of it although it has been closed for four months.

The commission has been painting the word "School" on the road on both sides of school buildings, and has been marking off safety zones to be used by children crossing the road.

Alexandria High School Graduation Is Arranged

The baccalaureate sermon to the graduates of the Alexandria High School will be preached at the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Sunday, June 5, by the Rev. Ernest W. Aaron, pastor.

On Tuesday, June 7, the class will hold class day exercises, while the senior prom will be held at the George Mason Hotel on the following day.

U. of M. Graduation Will Be in Coliseum

600 College Park and Baltimore Students Are to Get Diplomas.

Graduates of both the College Park and Baltimore schools of the University of Maryland will receive their diplomas at a joint commencement exercise to be held in the new Ritchie Coliseum on June 4, the 126th anniversary of the founding of the school.

More than 600 graduates will finish their college courses at this ceremony, the first commencement to be held in the new Coliseum. The graduates from the Baltimore schools will be brought to College Park in special trains, accompanied by their friends and members of the faculty.

Dr. John H. Finley, former commissioner of education of New York State and now associate editor of the New York Times, will make the commencement address. Others who have been invited to be present are Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and Dr. William H. Welsh, of Johns Hopkins University. The ceremonies will start at 4 o'clock, with the graduates on the main floor and the spectators in tiers around the side.

TEXACO

FIRE-CHIEF

GASOLINE

Here is a gasoline that was originally developed to put snap, dash, action in fire engines. The U. S. Government specified this type of motor fuel for use in its own emergency vehicles—"ambulances, fire engines, naval and military equipment."

(Excerpt from Federal pamphlet VV-M-571, July 21, 1931)

Texaco Fire-Chief gasoline is alive with power—power you can feel right under the accelerator of your own car—power that means snap, dash, action in any engine, old or new.

Mass production of this remarkable new power-gasoline was made possible only by advanced Texaco refining methods. It has an Octane Rating that is outstanding. In all 'round performance it is "way out in front." Yet Texaco Fire-Chief gasoline costs no more than ordinary old-fashioned gasolines.

And if you prefer driving with a premium gasoline remember that Texaco Fire-Chief plus Ethyl equals Texaco-Ethyl, now more than ever the leading premium gasoline.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ELMER TWITCHELL ON CHEAPER FOOTBALL.

"I SEE," said Elmer Twitchell, "where the big colleges have announced a price cut in football tickets for next fall. It is a good idea, but I still think they did not get anywhere by lopping a mere dollar off the price of admission to the big games.

* * * *

"Judging from the vast open spaces in the football bowls last year, the colleges are not going to fill them this year just by saying they will take $4 instead of $5 per customer. Everything has come down, including the cost of arnica, liniment, bandages, water buckets, plaster casts, crutches and other football commodities.

* * * *

"You can feed a half back for about a third of what it cost in 1929 and I understand a good rangy end can live through an entire training season on 25 per cent of the former cost, due to the decline in eggs, butter and milk.

* * * *

"They tell me that at present levels four backs can be kept at Yale on less than it cost to keep one in the old days. The same goes for the coaches; you can feed at least three on what one used to cost, and there is no good reason why they couldn't cut tickets more than a dollar each.

* * * *

"In fact, I can't see why American colleges don't show good showmanship and take some bold steps to fill the stands until things pick up. It seems to me that they should provide bigger and better entertainment as well as cut the prices. What is to prevent them taking a cue from the moving picture magnates and the big theatrical producers and providing a bigger cast for each game?

* * * *

"Why couldn't they double the number of participants by putting 22 players to a side instead of the conventional eleven. You have no idea how the game could be pepped up by eight men in each backfield. I would also use two footballs at all times to make it more exciting and I think that as a spectacle it could be improved by putting in a third goal post.

* * * *

"I would not increase the number of officials but I would hire two comedians of national fame to act as linesmen instead of the amateurs who do it now, and I would have the cheer leading done by some good looking showgirls. You have got to do something to draw the crowds in times like these.

* * * *

"Anyhow, those $1 cuts in the price of tickets will not do the trick. That is just like the poultrymen saying that as eggs are now 20 cents a dozen they will no longer charge 65 cents as in 1929, but let the customers have them this year for 63 cents."

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

This Week's Question Box.

"BRUNETTE:" The judicious use of creams, even at a very young age, will not cause the muscles of the face to sag. If your skin is quite clear you need only a good cleansing cream followed by a skin tonic. Keep the tonic on ice, and when using it moisten a pad of cotton in cold water, wring out thoroughly, then dip into the tonic and pat face and neck up and outward, briskly. If the skin is dry a little skin food may be added after the tonic. Of course, you want to avoid "overburdening" your skin with too many preparations.

Elsie Pierce.

M. B. (Buffalo): Since your face is small and your nose prominent, I will tell you what hair dress to avoid. First, avoid too many very small and regular waves, as these only serve to accentuate and enlarge the features; avoid severe and extreme effects; do not part your hair in the center; do not expose the entire ear. Choose a softening style, fairly wide waves, have the hair fall on the brow and another wave below the temple, wear your hair a little below the natural hairline in the back, and if you have a knot this should be arranged quite low, and never on a line with the tip of the nose or it will accentuate this defect. Avoid a very fluffy coiffure, however, with very large loose waves falling over the face as this will make your face seem smaller. A soft arrangement and quite close to the face should be most flattering. As for your rouge, bring it out on your cheeks with the deepest color far out on the cheeks and very little near your nose. You can wear softening influences around the neck—choker beads and flesh collars, bows and scarves to advantage.

* * * *

J. B.: The only way to permanently remove tiny broken blood vessels is to have an electrolysis expert touch them with the electric needle. For the tiny red spot you mention, try applying a little zinc oxide ointment every night for a few nights. Also avoid ice or hot water in this area. And avoid any harsh treatment, rubbing with coarse cloth or vigorous massage.

* * * *

Mrs. H. S.: A brunette with black hair and brown eyes should find a true rachel shade of powder and a medium or raspberry shade of rouge flattering. Lip rouge should always be the same basic tone as the cheek rouge. The perfect "oval" shaped face should apply rouge exactly where the natural color appears. After a warm bath, or after patting the face, or after exercising this key, color area is very apparent. Study it carefully.

* * * *

Mary K. C.: For granulated eyelids, many physicians recommend the use of a boric acid solution night and morning. Bathe the eyes thoroughly and hold small pads of cotton moistened with the solution over the eyes for several minutes. At night, after bathing the eyes, very lightly apply a salve made of 1 per cent of yellow oxide of mercury along the rims of the lids, being careful not to get this into the eyes. Allow to remain until morning. Make sure you are not straining the eyes, and see an eye specialist.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Two and two make one; modishly speaking! (A Dah-ray Idea.)

NEW YORK, May 20.—The idea is to make the most out of a dress—even if this consists in making two dresses out of it! Paris offers the two-time dress, using the current whims—cresia, epaulets, boleros, etcetera, for the "most." And Miladi, ever a bargainer at heart, joyfully seizes upon the idea—and makes this or that on almost every dress made of it "something that it ain't."

Tulle ruffles edged in silver or gold binding, and on a satin foundation, is the Dah-ray offer! For these ruffles, oh, not too very ruffled, of course, make capelet sleeves on one party frock. Of cuffs on another or even on the same one—a mode whimsey of the moment. Or, snapped together, make a tiny muff! All the fastenings are cleverly done, of course—so cleverly done that there is neither the slightest suspicion that this is being done, nor the least bit of awkwardness. Takes brains!

The varieties are infinite—one can hardly decide just what to do to give one frock the many-many look. Thursday of this week I sketched an evening gown, for instance, of black sheer crepe, which changed from an informal dinner gown to a most formal and elaborate one by merely adding a salmon pink satin crepe effect banded at the sleeves with silver fox.

Vionnet perhaps unconsciously gave many a budget stretching miss an idea in her brassiere corsage and overskirt of sheer material—tulle, usually spangled or embroidered. These two parts slip on over a simple yet beautifully made satin dress—and the dress can be worn quite as well without them.

Sleeves are another "additional" idea. Sleeves which button right to the bodice in capelet or loose or even elbow sleeve effect, are no longer just a whim of the designer's—they are calculated, my deahs—plummed and designed—to be or not to be, as their little wearer wishes!

Guessed that I would have to make you a leaflet of exact combination ideas sooner or later—so made it this week and sent it on to be printed and ready for you next week. You can send your stamped, self-addressed envelope for it today, though, because it is just about to get here any minute—and this is one leaflet that is going to be t-o-o-o-o-o-o popular for anything!

How to make a dress into several with the addition of little "thisis" and "thatis"—that is what the leaflet is! If you want to just increase your wardrobe by about ten times, for a few dollars and a few minutes of work, well, just send your self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and find out how it's done!

* * * *

If you aren't sold on the dotted or checked blouse idea with a separate skirt—no jacket, either—let it be be known that at the famous Aintree steeplechase, this was the dominant costume of the day! When the dots are dark and the background a neutral shade—well, and the skirt can either match the darker color or not, as you wish—the effect is chic!

* * * *

Maybe it just became too easy to have seven or eight little inexpensive velvet evening wraps—anyhow one of the couturiers thinks so, and is offering embroidered velvet jackets, with the embroidery at edges in a very elegant manner. Of course, this velvet comes by the yard, too, so clever fingers need not despair—but her little velvet evening wrap is acquiring a bit of elegance of which she must take note—and get out her embroidery silks!

Au revoir!

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES McDONALD

THE RELUCTANT SWAIN.

DEAR FRANCES M'DONALD: How long do you think a girl should let a man drag along taking up her time before asking him just what his ideas are? My girl friend is three years older than I am but she acts as if she was about 12 years old when it comes to the men. For over a year now she will not go anywhere except with this one fellow. What she sees in him I do not know, but that would be all right if he felt the same about her. But she does not know what he feels. I ask her and she says he "does not say."

Now I am going to be married and will have to go to Philadelphia to live and I want her to come along and find a job there and live. I hate to leave her here all alone, for she does not know any one and we both come from the same town and have lived together here. We have had a pretty hard time, too. That is why I am getting married. He eats. That is more than I did for a good many days the past year. He is nobody's idea of a husband but he at least knew what he wanted when he saw it. This other sheik who is camping on the doorstep but does not "say" whether he wants my friend or is just killing time, makes me sick. He has a steady job and is 24. She is 22. She has no folks and it is certainly going to be nice if I go away, and he then blows. Especially if she loses her job again. My boy friend sent us money all the time we were out of work. But this other fellow just called around each evening all dolled up and said "How about a little walk?"

Would it be out of the question for me to ask him before I leave? This girl is like a sister to me and even my intended thinks I am justified in worrying about leaving her here. But she seems to like this fellow. So what can I do?

WORRIED SICK.

The girl is old enough to do a little thinking on her own account so give her that chance. No self-respecting young woman asks a man what he means to do about marrying her. No halfway sensible woman would want the type that can not or will not speak for himself. Forcing such an issue robs the whole proceeding of all romance. So do not inject yourself into what is so distinctly another's affair.

On the other hand, you are surely a wonderful friend to be so concerned. There are few like you on earth, and some man is getting a first rate wife. With such a generous nature you should be very happy in your marriage. Do you intend to be? Your reference to your future husband is not very reassuring. Do you appreciate his good qualities? He was surely more than kind to you and your friend. Do not let any foolish notions render you oblivious to real worth and tried and true affection. Movie heroes make poor husbands. Remember that. And now here is our idea of what you should do. Leave for Philadelphia and the great experience. When you are settled, if the girl friend is in need or unhappy, you can then send for her. Meanwhile she will have an opportunity to work out her own problem—an experience she needs. She may surprise you. Things work out that way sometimes! Meanwhile be happy yourself. It is our opinion you are getting a very real man. And they are scarce.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THERE were two broadcasts from Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday in connection with the third annual convention of the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education. The speakers were Federal Radio Commissioner Harold A. Lafount and William Hard, radio reporter of international politics.

Commissioner Lafount pointed out that there were 44 stations operated by educational institutions in the United States on January 1, 1932, while throughout the whole of Europe not a single college or university owns or operates a broadcasting station, and that this fact was verified by the Geneva Union.

"I may say without fear of successful contradiction," Mr. Lafount continued, "that the United States broadcasts more hours of educational programs than any other nation in the world, the total broadcasting hours of each considered.

"After a careful study of broadcasting systems in use in many of the foremost countries of the world, the commission is of the opinion that the American system has produced the best form of radio entertainment to be found anywhere. Under our system, broadcasting is carried on by private enterprise and advertising furnishes its economic support, without which it would not exist. The principal objection to our system seems to be the kind and amount of advertising in which stations have indulged.

"The commission believes the amount and kind of advertising can and should be confined within the limits consistent with the largest possible range of service to the public and these factors should be considered by it, among others, in determining whether the licensing of or continued operation of a station will serve public interest, convenience and necessity.

"In conclusion, I want to say that, speaking for myself, I think our system of broadcasting is typically American and that it suits our democratic temperament as no other system I have yet encountered would."

EUROPEAN government-controlled broadcasting, Mr. Hard told the convention, exceeds American broadcasting in the potential cultivation of taste, but American broadcasting exceeds the European type by a vital margin in the potential cultivation of citizenship.

"Governmental broadcasting does a bit more for man as a student. Private broadcasting does a great deal more for man as a citizen. That is the paradox, and it is ineradicable. Private broadcasting, since it is supported by advertisement, must give to those advertisements a certain number of minutes which a tax-supported radio organization can devote to cultural objectives.

"Government broadcasting, since it is supported by the state, must be careful not to offend the state and must, therefore, while it escapes commercialization, embrace censorship and forfeit freedom.

"When American radio meets European radio in the only field of direct comparison, the international field," Hard concluded, "it is not European radio, it is American radio that proves its superior interest in non-commercial public affairs and instant world-wide political international education."

THE United States Army Band, directed by Capt. William J. Stannard, will present a "Program Unique" as one of a series of Saturday evening concerts over the Columbia network (WMAL, 8:30 o'clock).

Capt. Stannard will present soloists with instruments seldom used for solo purposes, all to be accompanied by the band. The instruments to be featured are the glockenspiel, a German instrument formerly used often in marching bands; the English horn, a tenor oboe, the bassoon, a wooden, double-reed instrument of eight-foot tone; the bass clarinet, and the marimba.

The complete program:

March—"National Spirit" (Hummel), featuring glockenspiel, played by Ernest L. Thompson.

"Fantasia Originale for the Cor Anglais" (Lalliet), featuring English horn, with Foster Anderson, soloist.

Solo for bassoon—"Andante et Rondo Hongroise" (Weber), Lewis R. Shearer, soloist.

Solo for bass clarinet—"Elegie" (Massenet), John B. Clemmons, soloist.

"The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" and "Xylorimba," marimba solos by Joseph L. Young.

HAZEL ARTH, well known Washington contralto frequently heard over the air from the New York studios, who is here for a rest, made a microphone appearance from the studios of Station WMAL last night in behalf of the National Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Arth will be heard in joint recital with Lawrence Tibbett on May 31 in a Connecticut city.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking Democrat of the Senate finance committee, will discuss "The Pending Tax Bill," as the speaker in the Institute of Public Affairs program tonight (WMAL, 9:15).

Felix Salmond, famous English 'cellist, will be guest artist on the Civic Concerts Service program tonight (WRC, 7:15) * * * Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, will talk on "Uncle Sam's European Debtors" when he appears as guest speaker on the National Grange program today (WRC, 12:30 p. m.). * * * Walter V. Bingham, director of the Personnel Research Federation of New York, and Felix Morley, of the Brookings Institute, will be speakers in the final program in the series presented under the auspices of the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education (WRC, 7:30 p. m.) * * * Thomas Bryan George will describe the Metropolitan Handicap from Belmont track at 2:30 this afternoon, via WMAL * * * Three prominent Socialists—Norman Thomas, Mayor Hoan, of Milwaukee, and Heywood Broun—will speak tonight (WMAL, 8 o'clock) in a half-hour program.

VACATION schedules are difficult to arrange for radio artists and few of the entertainers ever see their vacation hopes materialize. Sitting around the Columbia studios the other night a number outlined their wishes, as follows:

Ruth Etting would spend her vacation on her Nebraska farm. The Boswells at home in New Orleans. Alex Gray sunning himself in Majorca. Arthur Tracy in Venice. Ann Leaf playing tennis at Deauville. Col. Stoopnagle and partner Budd seeing Bermuda on a tandem bicycle with free wheeling. The party broke up when Gracie Allen declared she wanted to leave for Shanghai and see the Chinese riding in gin rickeys.

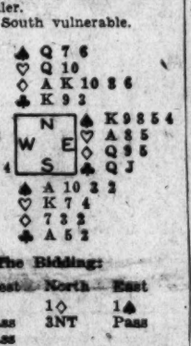
THE TACTICS OF CONTRACT.

AS bidding is the strategy of Contract—the part of the game which deals with selecting the battlefield—so the play of the hand deals with the question of tactics, and thus the Declarer is in the position of a general making a plan in regard to the disposition and use of his troops where battle has already been joined. This is the reason, so frequently emphasized by writers on Bridge, that, when the first lead is made and the Dummy goes down on the table, the Declarer should make an adequate plan. This plan, of course, is subject to change, as the battle wages and tricks are won or lost, but even a bad plan is better than none at all.

The following hand illustrates vividly the value of a playing plan and the means whereby it was carried out:

North—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1◇	1♠
2NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Against this game contract, West opened the Knave of spades. How should South plan the play? It is, of course, obvious that he must play for the diamond suit and it is probable that he will lose a trick in that suit. He is sure of 2 tricks in spades, probably four in diamonds and two in clubs. However, he faces the danger of East establishing tricks in spades to defeat the contract, if he holds three diamonds to the Queen. To cover the Knave of spades with the Queen would be to limit South to 2 tricks in the spade suit.

South, therefore, with this holding, should not cover, but should play the six from the Dummy and win the first trick with the Ace. East's bid of spades, coupled with the holding in the North and South hands, indicates quite clearly that West can never lead spades again. North has three stoppers in that suit, provided East leads a spade.

This hand, which was played in a Duplicate game in Akron, Ohio, was bid at all tables in the same manner, but where the Queen of spades was played from the North hand, East covered with the King and South won with the Ace. The contract of three notrump was defeated, as East, in with the Queen of diamonds, was able to clear the spade suit so as to make 3 tricks in that suit, which, with the Queen of diamonds and Ace of hearts, defeated the contract.

One player, in making his plan of play, visioned this possibility, and seeing that he could gain nothing by playing the Queen to the first round, played the six and won with the Ace. The diamond suit was then cleared by conceding to East a trick in diamonds, but the making of the game contract had been assured.

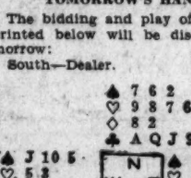
TODAY'S POINTER.

An adequate plan for the play of a hand should be made known before even the first card is played from the Dummy. This plan, of course, is subject to change as greater knowledge is learned of distribution, but even a bad plan is better than none at all.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

South—Dealer.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

"MARKING" CHILDREN.

SOME time during the past winter one of the magazines carried a piece of fiction, in which the following dialogue occurred: "Mother," he said, "what was it that marked Sam and me to be so ugly? What was it?"

To which the mother replied to her daughter:

"And when my body was given and taken without love, and I knew I was going to bear a child, I put my will in making the child as ugly as the living of my body had been to me. First Sam and then you; I marked you both."

Of course, people read fiction for reasons other than learning science, but in spite of that it would be somewhat better if the victim did not muddy the waters.

We recall that that very able writer, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, used her writing ability to mix up fiction and fact on this inheritance question in a way that caused unhappiness to many thousands of the readers whom she otherwise tried to make happy. Her particular offending lay in perpetuating the age-old myth that birthmarks were the result of mental shock to which some prospective mothers were exposed. Uselessly, she caused some good women to develop anxiety states and fear neuroses that did them much harm, even though their babies escaped birthmarks.

The truth in the statements quoted from this bit of fiction is that children inherit their features from the parents. In some instances, the child resembles one parent; in others, the other. In some cases the child resembles a grandparent, or, occasionally, some even remoter ancestor. However, most children have features that are conglomerates—one from one line, another from the other—the Jones nose and the Smith mouth, for instance. This, the novelist need not have said, since everybody knows it. The fiction consists in the statement that the prospective mother can wish her features, or any features, on her child; that the features can result from the emotions, and that the laws of inheritance are different in love marriages.

When a child begins to develop, ten lunar months before birth, the plans and specifications of that child's features are already in the builder's hands. The architect has done his job and has gone away on a vacation. The builder has the blueprints before him and he follows the specifications. No amount of wishing or hating on the part of the mother or father will alter the plans, then or thereafter. The mother supplies the food but she has no telegraph lines running to the baby by which she can send her mental or her emotional reactions to him. The mother might wish day and night for twins, or for a brood without adding in the slightest to the size of the family. And that is sometimes just as well for the Sams and the heroines of fiction.

The next error is that a loveless marriage brings about some new inheritance laws. I presume ducks represent the last word in polygamy. If a drake has any family love, any continuing affection for a duck, or for his and her ducklings, there is no evidence of the fact, and yet every young drake in the flock will resemble his daddy. On the other hand, certain birds mate for life, and still others for a year. The inheritance laws in the three groups are the same.

CAUSE OF SEED WARTS.

H. L. E. writes: What causes big seed warts to come on the head?

REPLY.

Warts have different causes. Many people think seed warts are due to bacteria. That variety of wart is somewhat contagious.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I POTTED some French cannas, following your directions. The plants are now in fine shape. Do you think it is too early to plant them outside? I have the bed prepared.

MRS. HERBERT G. L.

No, this is the right time to plant cannas.

Please tell me when to prune a honeksuckle vine which has become matted. MRS. JOHN D. S.

A honeysuckle vine should be pruned in the spring, cutting out all the old growth and shortening the new canes. Then as the season progresses it will be necessary to cut the vine back every few weeks. Honeysuckle is a rampant grower and must be kept within bounds.

I am about to repot my oleander plant. Can you please tell when this plant makes its strongest growth? Does the oleander require much water? MRS. BRONSON F.

An oleander plant likes a sandy soil. It also demands a great deal of water when making its strongest growth, which is usually in the spring and the early part of summer. You can hardly give it too much. It has enormous quantities of very fine roots, which enable it to drink up water from the soil with great rapidity.

I have a wisteria which is 50 years old. Last year it was beautiful and this year it has six buds. It is very thick at the ground in the stalk. When and how shall I cut it off? Would it harm it to saw it off?

MRS. ALFRED S.

This might just be an off year or the buds might have been injured by a late frost. Pruning should be done immediately after the vine has finished blooming. Reduce the plant in keeping with its support. A wisteria is a real treasure, so unless you have had some experience in pruning it will be better to have an experienced gardener do the work.

Please tell me how to root a pandanus plant. I refer to suckers taken from established plants.

MRS. MOORSE G.

The sprouts taken off pandanus plants will root readily if you place them in damp sand. The sand must never be permitted to become dry for even a few hours. The plants, while rooting, should also be shaded from intense sun.

How can I prevent caterpillars from destroying my linden tree?

HOWARD E. L.

Remove and destroy all egg clusters now and spray when the foliage matures with arsenate of lead, 3 pounds to 50 gallons of water.

I top-dressed my lawn this spring with good loam, sheep manure in powder form and later added some bonemeal. Do you think I have burned the roots of the grass? I only used a small quantity of fertilizer and about one-half inch of soil.

MRS. PAUL R.

You gave your lawn the proper treatment.

Please tell me how to prepare the ground for day lilies.

JOSEPHINE G. P.

The ground must be prepared to a good depth and enriched with manure. Day lilies grow best in moderately rich soil with a good supply of moisture. They grow in either sunlight or shade. The ideal location is one where they get morning sun.

What Today Means

"TAURUS."

IF MAY 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:45 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:15 p. m.

The planets will be adversely placed on May 21, and it would be advisable to tread carefully, speak prudently and to keep your ear to the ground to prevent some hidden disaster tumbling into your life. Every danger will be well signaled, however, if you are not blind to the signs.

Children born on this May 21 will be indifferent and rather cold-blooded little individuals. They will have decided ideas and will cry hard for the things they want. They will take a keen interest in games and sports and will prefer an outdoor life and work. Great care should be taken of their nutrition, as intestinal disorders are indicated.

Born on May 21, you are a wide-awake, highly strung individual, and you possess both nerve and nerves. Your spirit often urges you on beyond your physical and mental endurance, and although you are too gritty to ever say "quit" until you have seen a thing through, the finish often finds you on the verge of a collapse. One part of your make-up is in need of a sedative; the other part of you is constantly seeking stimulation.

Your actions are often both erratic and illogical. You do things for your own immediate satisfaction, which may seem pointless to another. You do not strive for any set pattern in life, and your crazy weaving is almost a puzzle to those who make it a study. If you are an inspirational talker and writer, and although you can not help "romancing" a little, it is a pleasure to listen to you or to read one of your chatty letters. You are superficially intellectual, and create an impression of having greater knowledge and education than you actually possess. You talk around subjects without touching any of their vital parts. You have a parrot-like memory, and readily pick up information for stories which can be passed on.

You are so versatile that you can do many things with an equal degree of efficiency—it is all a matter of interest or indifference whether you do anything well.

Successful people born May 21: Nelson Sizer, phrenologist. Stanley Waterloo, author and journalist. Edmund J. James, president of Northwestern University. Edward W. Scripture, psychologist, director of Yale Psychological Laboratory. Glenn Curtis, pioneer aviator. Armida, movie artist.

STATUE OF AYCOCK PRESENTED TO U.S.

North Carolinians Dedicate Likeness of Educator in Statuary Hall.

A statue of former Gov. Charles Brantley Aycock was unveiled yesterday in Statuary Hall of the Capitol in the presence of a distinguished group of North Carolinians, including Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, who presided.

In his presentation of the statue on behalf of the State, Gov. Gardner said: "Gov. Aycock was an educational statesman, crusader for cleaner politics, as a lawyer who made justice regnant in his community. North Carolinians revere him because he had the exalted goodness as their governor to demand equal right of every child born to have the opportunity to burgeon out all that there is within him."

He praised the universal education campaign of Gov. Aycock, and said that Aycock, beginning a regime in the fury of a "white supremacy campaign," told a mighty throng of his own people that a commonwealth could be neither great nor good at heart if it supported the "monstrous doctrine that ignorance can be a cure for anything."

The statue was unveiled by Charles Aycock McLendon and William Benjamin Aycock, grandsons of North Carolina's chosen son for Statuary Hall.

"He wrought his immortality in his ministry to the child," Gov. Gardner said.

Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, outlined the career of Gov. Aycock, and told of Aycock's fight against the combination of illiterate Negroes and unscrupulous whites to win the governorship on the platform of educational requirements for suffrage.

Aycock was not prompted by a prejudice against the Negro race, but insisted upon equal justice to Negroes, even to the extent of equal educational opportunity with the whites, Mr. Daniels said.

"By sheer power of personality and eloquence of words, he led a revolution that gave his people a rebirth," said Representative Lindsay C. Warren, of North Carolina, who accepted the statue on behalf of the Government.

Ornamental Eagles To Stay on Bridge

District Board Decides Against Removing Art Pieces From Span.

Weighing the arguments of Walter E. Kern, electrical engineer, and those of C. R. Whyte, engineer of bridges, the District Commissioners yesterday decided that most of the ornamental eagles on the William Howard Taft Bridge shall be retained, despite their somewhat corroded condition.

They agreed to the proposal of the electrical engineer, however, that four concrete plinths supporting lamp standards on each approach be removed and replaced by standard lamp fixtures.

Mr. Kern had suggested that the eagles on the remaining fixtures of the bridge proper be removed because one fell recently into Rock Creek Valley and was demolished. Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission, concurred in this view, but H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, sided with Mr. Whyte.

Pepco Gets Permit For Power Plant

Park and Planning Commission Approves Plan for Buzzards Point.

Approval yesterday was granted by the Park and Planning Commission to the Potomac Electric Power Co. for erection of the company's new $5,000,000 plant at Buzzard's Point on the Anacostia River.

The commission decided to investigate the possibility of allowing Washington-Hoover Airport officials to fill in a portion of the southern section of Boundary Channel near the Highway Bridge.

Plans drawn by Harvey Wiley Corbett, of New York, for the new War and Navy Department Building were tentatively approved provided the site in the vicinity of New York and Virginia avenues, for which plans were drawn, is selected.

Opera Here on June 5 To Use 250 Musicians

The grand opera performance of "Aida" at the Griffith Stadium on June 5 will give employment to 250 musicians, many of whom have not had employment since the closing of the Metropolitan season in New York, it was stated by Giuseppe Creatore, who will conduct the group. Many of the 350 artists who will be employed in the presentation also have been without work for a longer period.

Maestro Alfredo Salmaggi, general director of the musical enterprise, announced last night that he would need 500 supers on the stage and that he will ask the Washington committee on employment to furnish the required number.

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

METROPOLITAN

"THE BLONDE CAPTIVE." Columbia Pictures' release of the pictorial record of the Northwest Australian Expedition Syndicate's explorations in the Antipodes, led by Dr. Paul Withington, with running narrative by Lowell Thomas. A William Pizor production. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

It will strike the scientifically minded as perhaps a little odd that the Withington expedition should have discovered the living survivor of the Neanderthal man, untouched by the developing and refining processes of evolution, in northwest Australia, when the familiar museum relic of that civilization of some 50,000 years or so ago was unearthed in western Germany! That, however, is the claim this picture seeks to set up through its eloquent but somehow unconvincing mouthpiece, Mr. Lowell Thomas.

It is much to be doubted that the pseudo-scientific aspects of this more or less conventional travelogue were intended to be taken seriously. Mr. Thomas, while interesting and humorous a great deal of the time, frequently permits himself to be flagrantly contradictory and more than once betrays the fictional quality of much of his descriptive narrative.

And at the very end of the film, not content with a genuinely impressive revelation of much that is unusual and exciting in the South Seas and along the little known Antipodean coasts, its sponsors have appended an anthropological touch that is conspicuously bogus and serves only to reduce "The Blonde Captive" almost to the ridiculous level of "Ingagi's" counterfeit zoological phenomena in its attempted dramatic climax.

Viewed purely as a travel picture, this subject will be recognized as an interesting and informative elaboration of a similar film made in the same waters a few years ago by Gov. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania.

The itinerary progresses from Hawaii's languorous beauty—with some sinuous hula-hula dancers and a bit of expert surfboard riding thrown in—to the enchanting Isle of Bali, one of the world's beauty spots, thence to Pago-Pago, the American outpost in Samoa, where Sadie Thompson lived to make a play called "Rain," the Fiji Island, the Maori settlements in New Zealand and finally to the mainland of the smallest continent.

Along this picturesque tropical route are encountered many racial curiosities and many manifestations of the droll handiwork of nature—cannibal tribes, who deem bodily mutilation the highest form of personal adornment; strange beasts and terrifying denizens of the deep; turtles the size of dining tables that lay eggs by the dozen two at a time; Aborigines of both sexes living the primitive life of the Stone Age and indulging in tribal rites thoroughly repellant to modern Caucasian civilization; Bushmen whose most prized weapons are hand-made spears and crudely fashioned boomerangs; naked savages under 30 whose wrinkled faces and ill-formed bodies look more than 90; Neanderthal discomforts, filth and squalor, if nothing more tangible to serve as a connecting link with that remote period of man's emergence from the primordial ooze.

All of this Mr. Thomas describes and catalogues with diverting skill. It is only when he gets to playing around with the expedition's eager pursuit of a twentieth century Neanderthal and the "blonde" with the faulty makeup and hemp fright wig, ostensibly found living happily in a wild cave with a wilder aborigine, that he puts his tongue in his cheek! And who wouldn't! It is pretty hard to take.

Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, with Majorie Beebe prominent in their support, contribute a mildly amusing comedy, "Summer Daze," to the enlivenment of the program, but the real galvanizer is the "Merrie Melodie" cartoon comedy "It's Got Me Again," in which the mice outwit the cat. Swell.

The Paramount Sound News completes a bill that is recommended, with reservations, to everybody but Dr. Hrdlicka.

PALACE

"HUDDLE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the College Humor story by Francis Wallace, starring Ramon Novarro, supported by Madge Evans, Una Merkel, Ralph Graves and John Arledge. Directed by Sam Wood. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

As relentless in their onward rush as Time and Tide, even more eternal and recurring, are the epics of college football. Yet in spite of the tedium of another gridiron spectacle, "Huddle" has two points of interest which set it apart from the run-of-mill releases of this sort.

In the first place, the hero does not win the game. True, he scores what appears to be the victorious—and sole—touchdown, but the opposing team comes up from behind and in the closing seconds of play knots the score. The other point is this: bona fide institutions are represented, the climactic contests being staged between Yale, our hero's alma mater, and Harvard.

With Ramon Novarro impersonating an Italian worker's son in his struggle to attain an education, despite his explosive temperament and consequent near-ostracism at the crucial moment, "Huddle" never rises high above the limits of mediocrity.

Embellished with Yale and New Haven scenes, studded with Yale songs, and greatly concerned with fraternity rushing, "Huddle" grinds out the traditional story of a poor boy who makes the 'varsity. After painful, though inadvertent errors, he is yanked from the first team but finally reinstated for the last game. A couple of tender themes are interwoven for the purpose of alibi-ing the presence of the ladies in a men's dormitory. The girl's hostile brother adds complications, but, before he can be reconciled, the author has forgotten he ever was introduced.

Opposite Mr. Novarro is Madge Evans who wanders through her hectic role in quite the usual way. The real bright spot of the cast is the dependable Una Merkel, getting her Southern drawl under way and exposing her particular brand of dumbness at the most inopportune—to the cast—times.

Among the others involved in this tale are Ralph Graves, as the coach; John Arledge, as Mr. Novarro's roommate; Kane Richmond, as Miss Evan's brother, and Henry Armetta, as the hero's father.

The sports' world takes the fore in the supporting attractions with "Drive In," an M-G-M Sport Champion release featuring Georgia Coleman, Dutch Smith and Johnny and Mickey Riley in a pleasing demonstration of fancy diving. In "Sealskins," Thelma Todd and ZaSu Pitts are hard pressed by M-G-M's freaks for stellar honors in an amusing comedy. An issue of the Hearst Metrotone News rounds out the bill.

LOEW'S FOX

"MAN ABOUT TOWN." Fox picturization of Denison Clift's novel, adapted to the screen by Leon Gordon, featuring Warner Baxter, Karen Morley and Conway Tearle. Directed by John Francis Dillon. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Washington is a city of romance, mystery and intrigue; the subtitles tell us so. And if you'll just remember that, it will be so much easier to believe "Man About Town," a pseudo-thrilling yarn that E. Phillips Oppenheim might well have written, considering all its foreign treaties, ambassadors, beautiful ladies in distress, international spies, &c., &c., and &c.

We're sad to say we don't recognize the "Washington character," supposedly the basis of the drama. We do take occasion to warn of the dangers of cosmetics here illustrated, for the only incriminating evidence against the lovely lady murderess is not a fingerprint, but a lipprint incarmined on a wine glass.

Stephen Morrow and Bob Ashley, formerly inseparable friends, are at last separated, sadly on Stephen's part, bitterly on Bob's, by Helen, beloved of both, but loving Stephen.

Both men, as Department of Justice experts, are assigned to the murder of an international spy, involving the apparent theft of a treaty from the Embassy of Blank, and both discover, Stephen with horror and Bob with triumph, that Helena had shot the spy to protect her sister, the ambassador's wife. You can imagine, if you go in for this sort of thing, the ensuing battle of wits and desperation.

As for the last minute incentive-to-live speech, it would have scared us to death.

It is just a little too "you cur, you!" quite to click; but for all that, it is considerable fun, a bit exciting and certainly well played by a good cast.

Warner Baxter, looking a bit tired but very attractive, is likable and smooth and easy as usual, as Stephen. Conway Tearle, as Bob, seems a little heavy in a heavily despicable role. Karen Morley is excellent as Helena. Leni Stengel, Halliwell Hobbs, Alan Mowbray and almost every one concerned lend a hand in bolstering the affair.

As for that Washington background—the Capitol appears in the cast of characters, the Lincoln Memorial backs up the technical staff and L street is mentioned in headlines.

When Frank Cambria's "Three Screens" idea sticks to its screens—one brilliantly and colorfully Spanish, one pastel of olden France and one vivid black and white modernistic, it is lovely and artistic, and the dancing, particularly that of Chaney and Fox, a delight. When it goes afield, it permits Al Norman, a good eccentric dancer to waste time telling old jokes, and Franklyn O'Amore to waste more before performing his one really amazing, acrobatic feat.

Wesley Eddy has three swell moments this week, singing as only he can, his darky verson of "St. Louis Blues," rendering his familiar Italian telephone conversation and putting over with a pucker a song all about osculation. Phil Lampkin wears himself out leading the orchestra through a lively and realistic (thunder, lightning, rain, rainbow and everything) rendition of the overture from "William Tell."

And after all this there's Mickey Mouse and a grand newsreel.

COLUMBIA

"GRAND HOTEL." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel and play by Vicki Baum, adapted to the screen by William A. Drake, with all-star cast, headed by Greta Garbo, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis S. Stone, Jean Hersholt, Robert McWade, Purnell Pratt and Tully Marshall. Directed by Edmund Goulding. Two performances daily; three on Sunday. All seats reserved.

Fortifying its claim to preeminence among the finest motion picture productions of all time, this superbly executed cinema version of the novel and stage play by Vicki Baum entered its second week yesterday.

Impressive in the sweep of its drama, deft in the intertwining of destinies that seem to bear no relationship one to the other until an inscrutable fate sets its perverse schemes in motion, and acted with unimpeachable artistry by a group of the screen's most distinguished stars, "Grand Hotel" by every right may aspire to the respectful attention of even the most captious lover of the drama.

It is electric in many of its scenes and situations. It is played in a high key and never permitted to recede even momentarily from the dynamic emotional pitch of its early episodes. Indeed, it gathers momentum as the action progresses, and ends with its most powerful figures humbled and its weakest glorified. It deals with its characters without equivocation and seeks no compromise with interest. It is vigorous, driving, compelling drama that never falters, never lets down.

In the chain of stars that comprise the cast there is no weak link. Garbo, John and Lionel Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Wallace Beery, Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, Robert McWade, Ferdinand Gottschalk and scores more, all bring genuine luster to the roles they assume.

The developments in which these engaging figures find themselves enmeshed adhere closely to the movement of the printed story—the rehabilitation of Grusinskaya, the great dancer, through the love of Baron von Gaigern, who first conspired only to steal her pearls, in desperate need of money; the failure of Herr Preysing's colossal merger; the triumph of Kringelein, the underclerk, doomed to death by the doctors; the anguish of Senf, the doorman, whose wife is bearing a child; the pathos of the doctor.

All this, and more, is visualized amid a wealth of magnificent settings and gorgeous material investiture which have been so splendidly photographed as to make this doubly a picture under no circumstances to be missed. N. B. B.

RKO-KEITH'S

"ROADHOUSE MURDER." Radio Pictures' filmization of the stage play by Laszlo Bus Fekete, featuring Eric Linden and Dorothy Jordan. Directed by J. Walter Ruben. "CAIN," special feature directed by Leon Poirier and filmed on an island off Madagascar. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

Impossible as is the feature picture, "Roadhouse Murder," it must be given credit for greater entertainment value than "Cain," the special native film which has been billed above it.

Even to the uninitiated, the life of a newspaper man as portrayed in "Roadhouse Murder" will bring a laugh, and laughter follows entertainment. In "Cain" there is no humor, little action and much that is depressing.

The story of a young newspaper man who assumes the guilt for a double murder he did not commit, just in order to furnish first page material for his paper and earn a raise on which to get married, furnishes the plot for "Roadhouse Murder." The cub reporter, played by Eric Linden, has plenty enthusiastic and just as rattle-brained—but he's in love. That is enough, and Eric Linden does a pretty fair job as the overly ambitious reporter. Dorothy Jordan is entirely acceptable as the sweetheart, although she fails to convince in her emotional scenes.

There is a good cast supporting the principals, with Purnell Pratt, as the police inspector; Roscoe Ates, as an amusing witness at the murder trial; Bruce Cabot and Phyllis Clare, as the guilty parties, who finally split with resultant acquittal for the reporter, and Roscoe Karns in a swell role, as the hard-boiled city editor of Eric's sheet. David Landau is capable as a detective sergeant.

The whole business is decidedly tabloid-minded. However, the characters have entered into the spirit of the thing and it's nothing if not lively. Hard to swallow in a great many places, it still packs a punch or two, and to the members of the press it will probably be the season's finest comedy.

If "Cain" was filmed on the island of Nossi-Be, off the mainland of Madagascar, as is claimed, that is where it ought to be shown, unless, of course, you care for shipwrecked sailors on desert islands, longing for the civilization just cursed; seeking consolation with a native woman captured by force; babies dying of snake bites and remorseful criminals taking back the stolen jewels but returning to the jungle after hearing radio reports of crime and disaster in the larger centers of population. It's all rather absurd. There are few moments when the pulse beats any faster and a great many in which the chief reaction of the audience would be to cheer—if the picture ended. If "Cain" has any entertainment or educational value, it escaped the eye and ear of this reviewer.

An issue of RKO-Pathe News completed the bill.

Trap, Set for Thieves, Kills Owner.

St. Louis, May 20 (A.P.).—John Hays, poultry raiser, was shot and killed early today by a shotgun trap he had set to catch chicken thieves. Apparently forgetting about the device, he entered the building with a pail of corn, and the gun fired, striking him in the chest.

RECORD OF FERRARA LAUDED BY STIMSON

Retiring Cuban Ambassador Is Pan-American Board Guest of Honor.

Contributions of Dr. Orestes Ferrara, the retiring Ambassador from Cuba, to the work of the Pan-American Union were praised yesterday by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson.

Dr. Ferrara was guest of honor at a luncheon of his colleagues on the governing board of the union at which Secretary Stimson, the chairman, presided.

The Cuban Ambassador, who will soon return to Cuba to become secretary of state, was vice chairman of the Pan-American board.

He has played a prominent part in the activities of the union, as well as in several Pan-American conferences that have met in Washington in recent years.

Regret His Leaving.

In honoring Dr. Ferrara, Secretary Stimson said: "Our gratification at the high honor which has come to him is tinged with a deep feeling of regret that we are to be deprived of his counsel and companionship.

"As a member of the board and as its vice chairman, he has never wavered in his enthusiasm and devotion to the purposes for which the union was founded. I tender him our sincere thanks for the important service which he has rendered to the unfon."

In replying to Secretary Stimson, Dr. Ferrara said: "The practice of Pan-Americanism has elevated my international principles. Pan-Americanism today is, in my opinion, not merely a continental institution, but a notable step in the progress of ideas and in the improvement of our collective life."

Attending Dignitaries.

In addition to Secretary Stimson and the Ambassador of Cuba, those present at the luncheon were as follows:

The Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel Freyre y Santander; the Ambassador of Brazil, Senhor Dr. R. de Lima e Silva; the Ambassador of Argentina, Senor Dr. Felipe A. Espil; the Ambassador of Mexico, Senor Dr. Jose Manuel Puig Casauranc, the Minister of Guatemala, Senor Dr. Adrian Recinos; the Minister of Venezuela, Senor Dr. Pedro Arcaya; the Minister of Haiti, M. Melendez, special representative of El Salvador on the governing board of the Pan-American Union; the director general, Dr. L. S. Rowe, and the assistant director, Dr. E. Gil Borges.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

THE plans of the Washington Civic Opera Company do not end with next week's presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Yeoman of the Guard, or the Merryman and His Maid," to begin Monday night and continue through Saturday, with Saturday matinee, but no performance on Friday, at the McKinley Auditorium, Second and T streets northeast.

This McKinley Auditorium is looked upon as an ideal spot for a season of "summer opera." It is located within easy driving distance of downtown Washington, affords ample parking space and, being high above the business area on a wide plaza it will be immune to midcity heat when temperatures mount as is their wont in the Capital during July and August.

It is the present purpose of the Civic Opera Company to invite distinguished guest stars to participate with local principals and choristers in future productions. The plan is attracting considerable attention in music circles and further details will be made public in due course.

The use of the McKinley Auditorium for the summer opera productions is made possible through the cooperation of the Community Center Department and, it is believed, may be developed into a project not unlike the old-time Aborn Light Opera Company that used to occupy the National Theater every summer in years now long gone by.

At any rate, we shall see.

When a musical number or a recitation or, in fact, any distinctive specialty, once becomes definitely identified with any given performer, it is apt to be pretty hard for him to shake it off. The curse is on him and he might as well make up his mind to make the best of it.

De Wolf Hopper, once the audience habit was formed, never could evade the necessity of reciting "Casey at the Bat." Similarly, Tom McNaughton, the English comedian, once so popular on this side of the water, had a tough time trying to wriggle out of his orchestrally embellished, semirecitative "Three Trees." And now Wesley Eddy has gone and got himself into the same mess.

Wes no more than sets his foot in the District than requests begin to roll in for him to sing "St. Louis Blues"—and, boy, he can sing that thing! This visit has proved no exception. It was the first thing called for at the National Theater Players testimonial last Sunday night and how he ever got by his first week at Loew's Fox without doing it, I shall never know.

But that first week was as far as he could get. He is singing the Handy lament this week and will probably have to keep on singing it all the rest of his natural life!

Roscoe Ates, the stuttering comic—who, of course, does all his stuttering to order and has no natural impediment in his speech—arrived in Washington yesterday morning, one day in advance of his week of personal appearances at the Earle, beginning this afternoon. He spent the day in sightseeing tours under the guidance of Master William C. Ewing, but the boys all call him "Bill," of the Warner Brothers' publicity department, who confides that Mr. Ates is "one swell fella."

So hearing what wifie had done, Sidney Blackmer—in private life, Mr. Lenore Ulric—filed himself a tax appeal, too.

Sidney is kicking about a deficiency assessment of $783.32 against his 1929 income tax return, and another of $291.22 against his 1930 return. He says practically the same thing Lenore said—spent $860 on theater tickets and $1,080 on other professional entertainments for critics, authors, &c., in 1929; $840 for tickets and $1,276 on other entertaining for ditto in 1930. Bessemer-hearted Uncle Shylock allowed deductions in only half of the amounts named.

Mr. Blackmer, it seems, had a valet to match Miss Ulric's maid. He worked for First National on the Coast when Miss Ulric worked for Fox. While she was getting $100,000 Sid was getting fan mail!

In fact, he got so much fan mail in 1930 that it cost him $1,165 for photos and postage and the mailing "thereof to admirers of petitioner's professional work."

That would seem to leave hubby one up on friend wife—she never mentioned fan mail. The old memory, probably.

The newsreels this week are carrying one of the liveliest boxing bouts District fight fans have ever seen.

Each of the contestants finds it expedient to clamber through the ropes from time to time to avoid too severe punishment, and one of them tangles with the referee before the scrap is over.

Of course, the principals are a couple of chimpanzees, but what of it? Nobody but a monkey would go in for mayhem like that anyhow!

And that reminds me. We of the critical fraternity are chided no end for not always viewing plays and pictures through an eye single and rendering identical verdicts accordingly. In comparison with the ringworm reporters, it seems to me, we are unanimity itself.

For instance, when the Messrs. Bob Godwin and Bingo Joe Banovic exploded grenades on each other's chins at Portner's Arena last Monday night, no two ringsiders saw it the same way. Charlie Short, the referee, called it a draw, although conceding that Bingo Joe had not taken a round after the first, when he deposited Mr. Godwin in the resin with a big berths to the button. One morning paper gave the fight to Banovic by a mile and Mr. Espey, of The Post, gave it to Godwin by a shade. Another score sheet I saw gave Godwin every round but the first, which he lost, and the seventh, which was called even. And that's the way it goes.

When it comes to the right answer on shows, it generally turns out that as among the five local reviewers at least four out of five have it. And I don't mean what you mean!

Well, Mr. Snider, your barbecue better be good!

FORT MYER HORSES WIN SHOW AWARDS

Team From Virginia Stars in Six Events on Program at Wilmington.

Special to The Washington Post.

Wilmington, Del., May 20.—The Fort Myer horse show team of seven of the United States Army's finest mounts from Fort Myer, Va., made an outstanding showing in six of the events on the opening day's program of the First Annual Wilmington Horse Show, Inc.

The show was held on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Norman P. Rood, Meadows-on-the-Brandywine, about 6 miles outside this city, the permanent headquarters and show grounds for this show.

In class 29, sweepstake jumping class, Flash, the Army's little mare which won the 5-foot jumping class at the recent Atlantic City, N. J., horse show, carried off first honors, and 50 per cent of the stakes.

Squire, the gray gelding holding the first award for the championship jumping class at Atlantic City, won the Olympic class at the Wilmington show today. Third honors were also taken in this event by the Army when Miss America came through. This mare has been a member of the Olympic team and has competed in international competition three different years.

The Fort Myer hunt team, made up of Temptation, Royal Oak and Salida Sands, took second prize in the event for teams. Garcon, another Army entry, took second in the open touch and out class, as did Squire in the jumper sweepstake class.

Maj. Gen. Blanton Winship, judge advocate general of the United States Army, had his mount, Royal Oak, come through for a third in the lightweight qualified hunters class.

Among the other prize winners of interest are Mrs. Ellsworth Augustus' entries from Keswick, Va.; Mrs. Cary Jackson's entries, also from Keswick; Thomas H. Somerville's horses, from Montpelier and Miss Julia B. Whiting's, from Middleburg, Va. Mrs. Cary Jackson's Shere Kahn, winner of several events at the National Capital Horse Show this month, was adjudged the best mount for the day's program. Shere Khan won first prize in the $500 stake class, class 40, hunter trials, and class 27, the open touch and out class.

In class 28, ladies' jumpers, first award also went to Mrs. Jackson's stable and was won by Gift Girl. Mrs. Augustus' Cherrykin and Capt. Lawton, respectively, were awarded third in the green, middle and heavyweight jumpers class and the model jumpers class.

Mr. Somerville's stables took two second prizes when Bee got the red ribbon in the model hunters class, and Dr. Graves did likewise in hunters class with amateur riders.

Quickdriver, an entry of Miss Whiting, took one first in the jumper sweepstake class and a second in class 29, a sweepstake event, and class 31, the $500 jumper sweepstake class.

Letts Delays Ruling In Raichle Charges

Has Under Study Motion to Quash Charges Facing Attorney for Pitts.

Justice F. D. Letts, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday took under advisement the motion made by Frank G. Raichle, Buffalo lawyer, to quash the indictment against him on the grounds that the paper does not aver that Raichle knew in advance of G. Bryan Pitts' going on the witness stand that certain of Pitts' testimony would be false.

Raichle, who acted as chief defense counsel for Pitts in the latter's trial on charges of embezzlement, also contended that the fourth count of the indictment, which accused him of obstruction of justice, was vague and indefinite. There are only two counts in the indictment now, as Raichle succeeded in having two others nolled by the Government.

The remaining counts charge him with suborning Pitts to testify falsely, and with obstruction of justice, in that he had the court stenographer mark for identification 22 promissory notes signed by Emory L. Coblenz, former Maryland banker. These papers were never used in evidence.

City Heads Favor Widening 2 Streets

U and Florida Avenue Are to Be Made 56 Feet; To Cut Walks.

Plans to widen U street, between Ninth and Tenth streets, and Florida avenue, between Seventh and Ninth streets, were approved yesterday by the District Commissioners and the highway department was instructed to let the contract. Both streets, which are in effect one thoroughfare, were scheduled to be repaved.

The streets will be widened from 45 to 56 feet by cutting 5½ feet from each sidewalk. The widening will necessitate the removal of 15 silver maple trees.

The thoroughfare is a main artery of traffic and is heavily traveled, H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways stated in his report. It constitutes a main approach to Griffith Stadium.

The commissioners also ordered a contract awarded to McGuire & Rolfe, Inc., for the resurfacing of certain concrete roadways throughout the District. The low bid was $49,667.50.

Pope Receives 4 From This Area.

Four persons from the Greater Capital area were received by Pope Pius XI yesterday, according to Associated Press messages. They were among a group touring Europe before visiting the Eucharistic Congress in Dublin this summer. The four, from a group of nineteen, were: Leo J. Flynn, and the Rev. Brother Gabriel Hollywood, of Washington, and Mrs. Christiana Bales and Miss Catherine C. Ahern, of Alexandria.

MENUS FOR SUMMER WEATHER ASKED FOR

Food and Fruit Drink Recipes for Hot Season Are Being Sought.

Summer menus and the healthful food and fruit drinks which accompany them are very much on the minds of the homemakers who read the Saturday Food Page of The Washington Post just now.

The Food Editor would like to receive some attractive menus for suppers for summer nights.

The best summer night supper menu received will be awarded a special book prize.

Among the recipes awarded book prizes and honorable mentions today are the following:

COCONUT-CORNSTARCH PUDDING.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

2 cups water
1 cup shredded coconut
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 Sanitary navel oranges
1 cup District Grocery Stores sugar
2 large tablespoons cornstarch

Mix sugar, cornstarch and coconut together, moisten with water and stir into boiling water. When smooth and thick remove from fire, add vanilla and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Set in icebox to chill. Peel orange, remove membrane, cut in small pieces, sprinkle with powdered sugar and set in ice box to chill. Serve as sauce with the pudding.

So far as I know this is an original recipe—that is, I have never seen it anywhere. Yours truly,

MARTHA JONES.

Gives Recipes Necessary for Week-End Menus

SO comes Saturday with its usual number of recipes needing no particular explanation, but as it happens this day the number seems to be rather greater than the aforementioned "usual;" so with few words we must be about them. A happy week-end to every one and we'll be with you again, come Monday, Providence willing.

Fruit Cocktail.

1 grapefruit
1 banana
2 oranges
¼ cupful confectioners' sugar.
Grape juice

Peel and remove all connecting tissue from oranges and grapefruit, and peel the banana. Dice the fruit and chill thoroughly. Just before serving add the sugar. Arrange in cocktail glasses and to each glass add a tablespoonful of grape juice.

Braised Leg of Lamb.

Leg of lamb
1 onion—sliced
1 carrot—diced
1 turnip—diced
1 sprig of parsley
1 sprig of thyme
1 bay leaf
4 tablespoonfuls drippings
3 cupfuls hot water
12 peppercorns
1½ teaspoonfuls salt
Cracker crumb stuffing

Have the lamb boned. Stuff with cracker crumb stuffing, sew and place in a deep pan. Cook the onion, carrot, turnip, bay leaf, parsley and thyme in the drippings for a few minutes. Add the hot water, salt and peppercorns and pour the mixture over the meat. Cook, covered, in a 350-degree oven for two hours, then remove cover and cook for one-half hour. Make a brown gravy of the strained broth in which meat was cooked.

Mint Jelly.

Cut in eighths 1 peck of apples and put in kettle with 2 quarts cold water. Cover, bring to boiling point and simmer until apples are soft. Drain through jelly bag and measure. Bring juice again to boil and boil 20 minutes. Add three-fourths cupful of heated sugar to each cupful juice, stir, and boil 5 minutes. Wash and bruise a bunch of fresh mint. Steep in boiling sirup until desired flavor is obtained. Add 2 tablespoonfuls lemon juice and color with green vegetable coloring. Skim and pour into glasses.

Drawn Butter Sauce.

4 tablespoonfuls flour
1 pint boiling water
¼ teaspoonful salt

Heat 4 tablespoonfuls of butter until it bubbles, and stir in the flour a little at a time, forming a smooth paste. Gradually add the boiling water, stirring constantly over hot water until the sauce comes to the boiling point. Simmer until thick and smooth. When ready to serve add the remaining butter and salt and beat vigorously.

Cracker Crumb Stuffing.

4 tablespoonfuls boiling water
2 tablespoonfuls fat
¼ teaspoonful poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoonful salt
Dash of pepper

Mix the melted fat with the crumbs. Add the water and seasonings. When using this stuffing, a greater allowance than usual must be made for swelling.

Rusks.

1 pint scalded milk
4 tablespoonfuls butter
4 tablespoonfuls sugar
1 teaspoonful salt
1 yeast cake, dissolved in ¼ cupful lukewarm water
Flour—about 6 cupfuls.
2 eggs—well beaten

Dissolve butter, sugar and salt in scalded milk. When lukewarm, add the dissolved yeast cake and three cupfuls of flour. Cover and set in a warm place to rise. Add the eggs well beaten and enough flour to make a stiff batter. Knead until smooth and elastic. Cover again and allow to rise. Form into rolls any shape desired. Let rise again and bake in a hot oven. Before removing from oven, brush over with slightly beaten egg white, diluted with a little cold water, and sprinkle with sugar.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: Will you please tell me why I cannot gain weight? I take plenty of butter, milk and cream. I like candy and sweet things. I have a fairly good appetite. In fact, I eat frequently between meals, but still I never gain an ounce. Lots of my friends say, "You are always hungry and always ready to eat, but you don't get fat." I know I would look much better with a few additional pounds, and will appreciate your advice. BETTY.

It is quite a long story, Betty, this matter of gaining weight. There are so many things to be taken into consideration before definite diet plans or suggestions may be made. The degree to which one is underweight, considering build, heredity, environment and occupation; the possibility of an infection from tonsils, teeth, &c., nervous disorders and the like—all are important contributing factors. That is why it is always wise for an underweight person to consult a competent physician before adopting any definite plan of diet or exercise. If there are digestive disturbances to be corrected, he will be best able to advise and prescribe. Also, the necessity of reporting for examination from time to time will aid greatly in stimulating one to greater care with regard to proper diet, sufficient rest, &c.

Remember that in order to gain weight it is necessary to eat more than you actually require for energy needs. Unless this is done there will never be any surplus to be stored away. You will always be running a little below par. However, constant nibbling and eating between meals is by no means desirable. The appetite for meals at regular hours is spoiled, with the result that the sum total of food taken during the day is relatively very little. Try always to master your appetite. Eat at regular times each day and give your "digestion" adequate rest between meals. Take candy and sweets only at the end of a meal and then in moderation. For the rest, a normal, well-balanced diet, with plenty of fruits and vegetables and at least a quart of milk each day, is all that should be needed. If you should like our folder of menus and further suggestions, just send us a self-addressed envelope. We are very anxious to help you.

'UPPISH CAKE' WINS POST RECIPE PRIZE

Mrs. Leisher, Takoma Park, Is Adjudged Winner in Week's Contest.

This week's $5 recipe prize was won with a formula for an oven product with a very interesting name. It is "Red Cherry Uppish Cake."

The winning recipe was submitted by Mrs. D. L. Leisher, of 32 Woodland avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

RED CHERRY UPPISH CAKE.
(Awarded $5 Prize.)

1 quart basket large red cherries (Sanitary)
2-3 cup white and brown sugar mixed (Sanitary)
3 tablespoons (Land o' Lakes) butter
1 cup white sugar (Sanitary)
3 eggs (breakfast)
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup (Sanico) flour

Pit and halve cherries. Melt 2-3 cup sugar and 3 tablespoons butter in frying pan. Add drained cherries. Make batter of 1 cup white sugar, juice drained from cherries (makes about a scant ¼ cup), yolks of three eggs well beaten and 1 cup flour sifted with 1 teaspoon baking powder and salt. Lastly, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour butter over contents of frying pan and bake slowly at about 375 degrees. When done let stand a few moments before turning over and removing. Serve upside down white warm, plain or topped with whipped cream, with Sanico coffee.

Raspberries made their first appearance in one of the larger downtown markets this week. Their price is several times that of strawberries.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Head of Large Marketing Association Advises Housewives to Preserve Strawberries Now; Price Is Not Expected to Go Lower This Season.

"When should the housewife buy strawberries for preserving?" the Meanderer asked the president of one of Washington's largest market associations. "Are berries to be any cheaper? Will the coming of the home-grown berries lower prices in Washington?"

"Any time now," was the answer to the first question. "Berries will not be any cheaper," the strawberry-wise marketer said to the second question. And in reply to the inquiry about home-grown berries, the fruit dealer said: "The nearby crops of strawberries are not sufficient in quantity to affect the prices on the Washington berry market. The home-grown berries are no better in quality than the berries coming now from farther South."

So with the assurance from the above-mentioned authoritative source on strawberry information, it can not be a mistake to get out the kettle and the necessary sugar for preserving the luscious juicy red-ripe strawberries now with us at every market. Sugar has been priced as low as 4 cents a pound. The berries sell two quarts for 25 cents in practically all markets. A whole shelf of strawberry jam and preserves should cost less this year than it would have cost for many years.

The dealer in strawberries the Meanderer interviewed deals also in many other food commodties. He keeps his finger on the food pulse of Washington, or literally speaking, handles hundreds of bushels of beans, many crates of asparagus, mounds of turnips, as well as the trucks and carloads of strawberries. As a dealer in foods at wholesale prices, he keeps habitual scrutiny of the size and probable cost of crops as they are due, and is better able to inform the housewife on crop prospects than is her corner groceryman.

Pasteurized creamery butter, wrapped in quarter pound prints, sells for 22 cents a pound this week in one of the chain stores. A special price of 21 cents a pound has been placed on this butter in week-end price lists. The Meanderer wondered about this butter and traced it to its Washington source, a big butter, cheese, egg and smoked meat market in the Southwest section. From the manager in charge of the butter section of the plant she learned that this butter is of good quality, safe for use on any table, and quite edible. Its score is slightly under that of some higher priced butter, but not sufficiently lower to warrant the thrifty housewife overlooking a chance to make a definite saving on her butter bill.

Butter priced under 25 cents a pound is as low in cost or lower than are some butter substitutes, so it will now occur to the housewife that she may have butter cakes and use butter in many ways heretofore almost prohibitive to those of limited means. Surely now the added nourishment the use of butter rather than its substitutes will give to the family's food is worthy of serious consideration.

No sizable increases in prices of butter are expected through the summer, the butter authority in the Southwest market told the Meanderer. The largest production of butter of the year co es in June, he said, and changes in prices depend upon how much of that product is put on the market immediately and how much is stored for future use.

Increases in the price of eggs are expected through the summer, it is predicted by the poultry and egg dealers. The peak of the egg production of the spring is past and the subsequent supply will not make it possible to offer eggs by the dozen as cheaply as they have sold for the last several weeks.

Broiling or frying chickens have been sold for as little as 18 cents a pound, the Meanderer learned in visiting the farmers' section of a terminal market in Northeast Washington. The extremely low price was explained by the farmers' need of cash, which leads them to sell the young chickens now instead of saving them to market when they are larger.

Some of the most attractive of the shower and wedding cakes for Washington's gay parties and beautiful weddings are coming from a G street pastry shop. Shower cakes may have many original ideas used in decorating if the orders for the cake are placed a few hours ahead of the time needed.

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

FISHING IN WINTER.

I HAVE been wanting to tell you the story of fishing for cod and haddock in winter, as it was told to me by Peter Strawn, who has sailed out of Boston all his life, as his father and his grandfather did before him.

He told me how the fishing crew starts out, at daylight, and he painted a picture so vivid that I could see the crew—28 of them—boarding the fishing schooner early in the morning, moving silently, speaking in muffled tones, as men do in the hush of early dawn. It is snowing gently, as the skipper swings aboard. The engine rumbles, the schooner backs out into the harbor. There is a creaking and groaning of tackle as the sails are hoisted. The little vessel heels as the sails fill with wind and Boston fades away.

As soon as the sails are set the crew breaks out the fishing gear. Great tubs are set out on deck. These tubs hold the fishing line—thick cord with big hooks set in it every few feet. All the hooks must be baited and all the lines neatly coiled in the tubs, ready for use.

By this time, the fishing schooner has rounded the tip of Cape Cod at Provincetown, and the lighthouse there is only a pin prick on the murky horizon.

"Maybe the wind has come up quite strong behind us," says Peter Strawn, "and we're bouncing around a bit. It's snowing hard. We go below, eat and turn in."

Very early the next morning they have reached the fishing grounds, those underwater mountain ranges on the ocean floor, known as the "banks." Instead of the Atlantic Ocean being 2 miles deep here, it's only a couple of hundred feet to the bottom. There's plenty of food for fish on the "banks," and here they stay till the canny Gloucester fishermen come along.

"If the ship is rolling," says Peter Strawn, "it's easy enough to tumble out of bed, but not so easy to stay put, once you are out. The cook has been up for an hour or so, and there's a right square meal waiting for us. You can't work hard all day on a dainty breakfast. We stow away fruit, cereal, fried fish fillets, potatoes, beans and coffee. Then we climb into many thicknesses of woolen sweaters, and put on rubber boots, oilskins and caps. Then up on deck."

"Guess it's time to go," calls the skipper. "Get the dories and set a couple of tubs of line." Then everybody goes below for a last "mug up" of coffee. Coffee is a godsend to men who go down to the sea in ships—in the winter time.

"We climb in our dory," says Peter Strawn, "my mate and I. Two big tubs of fishing line are put in after us and we're swung over the side of the schooner into the swirling green-black water. A hail from the skipper, 'Let 'er go.' We cast off and row away."

If luck is good the dory is soon full of cod. The schooner comes up on one of her regular rounds. She comes alongside the little boat in which Peter Strawn and his dory mate are fishing.

If the sea has become nasty, their oilskins may be frozen so that they feel like sheet iron. Their hands may be getting numb even under two pairs of woolen mittens. So they go aboard, have another "mug up" of coffee, and then start cleaning the fish. Other dories come in and unload. It's long after dark when they've finished. Then the lines are baited again for the next day's work.

They get in two more days of fishing, then they head for home, their ship loaded with fish. Back at Boston they tie up to the pier. Refrigerated express cars are waiting at the dock. In a few hours the fish caught on the "banks" in a wintry sea are speeding inland to markets.

"Our work is done," says Mr. Strawn. "It was a good trip and we had a fine catch. We get two days of rest on shore, then back again."

And that's the story of fishing for cod and haddock in winter time, on the "banks" of the Atlantic Ocean.

INSURANCE FORCES SEEN AIDING REVIVAL

Maj. Roger Hull Is Speaker at District Underwriters' May Luncheon.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The field forces of American life insurance have within their grasp the opportunity of flattening the curves of depression and deflation, Maj. Roger B. Hull, of New York, managing director and general counsel of the National Association of Life Underwriters, informed the May luncheon meeting of the District Life Underwriters Association yesterday at the Washington Hotel.

Speaking on "The Road Back to Security—American Plan," Maj. Hull said it is the duty of the life underwriter to make others see that the fat years must create those life value reserves against the lean years out of current income just as scientifically as other business has been accustomed to accumulate its surplus out of current profits.

Underwriters, he reminded, must become missionaries preaching the gospel of the creation of individual estates for economic freedom; and those estates must be built through regular accumulation rather than upon speculative profit.

In outlining how American life insurance would become the cushion to absorb the shock of our next depression, Mr. Hull stated he believed there is no warrant for the abandonment of our traditional American spirit of self help nor for the laying of our burdens on the doorstep of State or national treasuries.

In closing, he said: "I believe that life insurance offers to America today and for the future more than any other economic factor, a society of individuals, made strong, made confident, made proud. And such individuals make the world; the rest just come along and live in it. The challenge of the present is for modern life underwriters to go out and sell this economic security with a new vision and a new passion that men everywhere may foreswear their reliance upon speculative uncertainties and enter into a land of financial independence."

New members elected to the association's directorate were Thomas P. Morgan, Mutual Life of New York; Horace Winter, Travelers, and Carl Dow Smith, Northwestern Mutual.

Elected to membership in the association were: P. L. Rogers, Robert E. Lee, jr., D. M. Crouch, Acacia Mutual; Maurice Soloman, John A. Edwards, Oscar G. Richter, Miss Katherine Wilfley, Mutual Life of New York; E. N. Wright, F. T. Kirk, Northwestern Mutual; Walter Ogus, Equitable Life Assurance; C. B. Balluff, Prudential; James O'Brien, D. M. List, H. M. Thompson, Berkshire Life; Walter C. Burke, E. E. Henderson, Pacific Mutual.

It was announced that Dr. S. S. Heubner, of Wharton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania, will be the speaker at the June meeting of the local association.

COTTON ADVANCES ON RENEWED BUYING

July Contracts Close at 5.78; Stocks and Finance News Influence Trading.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Cotton was affected only slightly by the overnight news of the formation of a committee of bankers and industrialists to aid in making credit available to business.

An early advance of 4 to 9 points was followed by reactions, but, after selling off from 5.81 to 5.72, July stiffened up again in the late trading on renewed covering. That delivery closed at 5.78, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 2 to 3 points.

Houses with Liverpool, continental and Japanese connections were said to be among the early buyers, while there was local buying on the action of the stock market and the announcement of the banking committee.

There was a little liquidation of May at the start, probably brought out by the circulation of the few additional notices, and switches from that delivery to later months remained more or less in evidence in the later trading, although the price stiffened up with the rest of the list.

Demand generally tapered off after the first flurry of covering subsided, however, and prices eased during the middle of the day under realizing combined with a little Southern selling. The failure of the stock market to hold its early gains and of demand to broaden on the upturn in cotton was probably a disappointment to early buyers, which contributed to the reactions to about or a shade below yesterday's closing quotations. The market rallied 5 or 6 points in the late trading on renewed covering.

The Government report giving the final figures on last year's acreage and yield per acre showed very little change from the December estimates. They placed the area under cultivation, July 1, last year at 41,189,000 acres, the acreage picked at 40,693,000 and the average yield of lint cotton per acre at 201.2 pounds.

Reports of further rains in the eastern belt were considered favorable, but attention seemed to center on the Washington news and the action of the stock market.

Friday was a holiday in Liverpool, which remained closed until Monday morning.

Exports today were 12,326 bales, making 7,817,210 bales so far this season.

U. S. port stocks now total 3,888,943 bales.

New Orleans Cotton Men Seek End of Farm Board

New Orleans, May 20 (A.P.).—Directors of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange directed a terse resolution at Congress and the Federal Farm Board today in which abolition of the board was demanded and protest was voiced against "continued waste and extravagant spending by the Federal Government."

The resolution implored that Congress eliminate all "unnecessary" boards, particularly the Farm Board, and seek a revival of world trade by amending the tariff laws. The directors claimed, among other things, that half a billion dollars of the taxpayers' money has been spent by the Farm Board which has not succeeded in helping the cotton farmer.

Wilkerson Called By Senate Group

Borah Says Subcommittee Wants to Quiz Nominee on Chicago Deal.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Borah of the Senate judiciary subcommittee considering the nomination of Judge James H. Wilkerson to the Circuit Court, said yesterday the committee has asked the nominee to appear and is waiting for a reply.

Wilkerson notified the committee, Borah said, that he was tied up in a court case and could not get away from Chicago immediately but would reply later if he could come.

Members of the committee want to question Wilkerson about his connection with the receivership of the Chicago street railways, in which the fees have been criticized.

Gold Exports Set Record Of $37,829,000 Total

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Today's exports of gold constituted one of the largest outward movements for a single day this year, amounting to $37,829,000.

Holland headed the list with a withdrawal of $21,015,300; France drew $6,831,100; Belgium, $4,084,600, and Switzerland, $3,000.

The net loss to the country's gold stock was reduced to $16,274,200. Due to imports and a decrease in earmark account, the latter was down $17,019,900.

There were imports of $996,000 from Canada and $19,900 from Mexico. At San Francisco $2,437,000 gold was received from Japan and $1,082,000 from China.

MARKET COMMENT

G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.—After each of the major declines of this bear market an approaching crisis has stimulated either official or unofficial action which has for the time being caused lifting of the pressure of liquidation, aroused hopefulness among investors and business men and brought about better markets for a while. We venture the guess that the announcement by Governor Harrison of the formation of a group of bankers and industrialists to find means of putting to work the increased amount of credit available will prove to be such a development. * * * It is doubtful if the participants in the committee would have accepted unless they were fairly well convinced that Congress is going to end this session on time and with satisfactory results. They also must think the time ripe for further constructive action. Of course the obvious question is what can be done. The equally obvious answer is that the bankers on the committee can stimulate use of surplus bank funds in the bond market, if commercial borrowers are not immediately available. Collectively they can exercise powerful influences.

Westheimer & Co.—Stocks held part of their early gains as the market turned quieter in the afternoon trading today. The concerted effort of the committee of twelve leading bankers and industrialists to put the Nation's financial reserves to work greatly encouraged investors. Nevertheless it became apparent on careful second thought that considerable time would necessarily elapse before these efforts could hope to bear fruit.

RAILROADS PROVIDE FOR INTEREST FUND

Payments Due Up to July 1 Will Be Met, Credit President Reports.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Provisions have been made for meeting interest charges on all railroad obligations due up to July 1, E. G. Buckland, president of the Railroad Credit Corporation, said following the monthly meeting of the corporation.

He added, however, that the corporation's receipts were falling below and its expenditures were running above the original expectations. He said that when the corporation was formed it was estimated that its receipts would be upward of $100,000,000 and its disbursements to meet interest due by railroads this year would be about $60,000,000.

Now it appears that about $100,000,000 would be required by the railroads to meet interest charges, while the corporation's revenues would amount to between $55,000,000 and $60,000,000.

An order was placed with the United States Steel Corporation for 8,000 tons of 20¾-inch seamless tubing for shipment to the Near East to be used in the construction of the 1,300-mile oil pipe line to be built by the Iraq Petroleum Co. from the Tigris River to Pallstinean and Syrian ports on the Mediterranean.

Firmness in burlap prices in the last few days is said to have been in response to cable advices from Calcutta predicting an early end to the labor difficulties of the burlap mills.

Directors of the Budd Wheel Co. have postponed action on the quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the first preferred stock due at this time until the next meeting of the board in June, it was announced today.

As a means of protecting traders against a possible import tax on rubber, the board of governors of the Rubber Exchange will recommend to members the adoption of two new contracts calling for delivery of the crude rubber from a bonded warehouse.

Prices for silver are not expected to advance sufficiently during the early future, materially to increase profits for metal producers deriving a considerable portion of their revenue from this source, says the Standard Statistics Co. It adds, however, that silver's fundamental position suggests that it would show at least a moderate advance in price during the early stages of strength in the general commodity list.

Stocks Fluctuate Narrowly As Bonds Continue Losses

New Credit Plans Cheer Traders, But Market Is Unimpressed; Rally in Loans Fails and Curb Prices Close Lower.

By JOHN L. COLLEY.

New York, May 20 (A.P.).—Security markets made a cheerful gesture or two today in response to new credit expansion plans, but refused to wax very enthusiastic. Stocks, after gaining 1 to 3 points at the opening, closed irregularly with narrow net changes so well distributed that there was no variation in the final average.

Some high grade bonds firmed: Nevertheless, sharp declines in more vulnerable sections were numerous and U. S. Governments weakened.

The share market seemed to have an eye on Congress and probably decided that the prospective battle over tariffs in the Senate had unfavorable implications affecting not only prompt action on the tax bill but also the possibility of a prolonged and perhaps an extra session. Prospects, brokerage circles believed, were still uncertain, pointing out that that factor alone well might be enough to counteract the latest moves along the credit front.

Some Stocks Hold Firm.

Some stocks held up fairly well. Westinghouse, for example, derived aid from the supposition that Pennsylvania's electrification program, facilitated by Reconstruction Finance Corporation aid, would help the company. Case followed the wheat market higher. Domestic oils held up their recent reputation for firmness. U. S. Steel rose a point in the first half hour, but closed with a small loss. American Telephone yielded all of a 2¼ point rise.

Heavy spots included Chrysler, Royal Dutch and International Telephone. In the later instance the market was apparently trying to discount a formal dividend omission at the meeting next month. Rails followed the initial rise, but lost heart, although assured that no July 1 defaults were coming. Receipts of the Railroad Credit Corporation are less than expected, while expenses are proving larger.

Trading was fairly lively for a quarter hour or so, but lapsed back into dullness when the market began to shade off after the first 30 minutes.

Transactions totaled 773,280 shares.

Effect of Credit Plans.

Announcement of the Federal Reserve credit plans naturally emphasized the lethargic response which member banks thus far have made to the expansion program. Bankers pointed out that impetus to the anti-deflation drive would be welcome, but that the reserve itself could do little more than provide facilities, leaving application thereof to member banks. The central banks, of course, have no desire to promote promiscuous lending, but they do feel that credit strings can be loosened.

Weekly mercantile reviews told of mixed trends in trade. Bradstreet's reports said that although a seasonal uplift had developed in some districts, gains are still lagging on the whole and have partially passed their peak. Dun's found an upward trend "becoming apparent in widely diversified commercial movements," notwithstanding many irregularities.

Bonds Continue Losses.

The bond market turned temperamental today and, after a rally and subsequent decline, ended up in about the same position as yesterday.

Announcement of the formation of a committee of industrialists and bankers to speed up the Federal Reserve System's credit expansion program acted as a tonic in the early part of the session. Most advances, however, failed to hold and, when the casualties were counted, a number of new 1932 lows were discovered.

While domestic loans were glimpsing a ray of light on the horizon, the United States Government department started to slip and hard-won gains began to disappear. The Treasuries were especially weak, four of them losing more than 1 point each. Liberties declined fractionally.

The declining action of the Federals was attributed partly to budget balancing delays, continuing uncertainties regarding new taxation and the fear that proposed unemployment relief measures may eventually mean the issuance of long-term bonds.

Rails Attempt Rally.

Second-grade rails were the rallying leaders at the start, but sharp breaks in special issues later dragged down this department. Losses of 6¾, 8⅞, 9 and 10½ points were recorded by New York Central 3½s, New York Central convertible 6s, Northern Pacific 4½s and Texas & Pacific 5s of 1979, respectively.

On the other hand some modest gains were retained by liens of Alleghany Corporation, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern, Chesapeake Corporation, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate and Pennsylvania.

The utilities and industrials were somewhat mixed. Loews debentures 6s reached a new low for the year with a net loss of 5 points, Federal Light & Traction 5s dropped 11¾ points, and International Paper 5s lost 4¾ points. Liens of Armour & Co. were in demand, as were those of Detroit Edison, Childs Co., Goodyear, Mead Corporation, Phillips Petroleum and Western Union. International Telephones and Postal sagged.

German Government 7s made a new 1932 low, losing 3¼ points, while other Reich bonds were easy or barely steady. Both French and British loans were moderately firm. Norwegian and Japanese bonds firmed as did the Argentines and Colombians.

Heavy trading in the governments brought the total sales to $14,520,000, par value, the largest in a number of weeks.

Curb Closes Lower.

The Curb Market reflected tempered enthusiasm in the early trading over the credit plans, but later turned dull and prices closed irregularly lower.

Aside from a modest spurt of early buying the market was characterized by apathetic trading. Transactions barely reached 100,000 shares for the day, against 110,000 yesterday. In leading stocks, small net losses outnumbered gains, but there were many inactive issues which showed fairly large gains.

Speculative interest centered largely in the oil stocks, as a result of recent indications of improvement in that industry. The statement of W. S. Farish, of Humble Oil, that the petroleum business is in better shape than any other major industry, attracted considerable interest.

Oil Issues Active.

The Standard Oil issues advanced fractionally in fairly active buying, and held part of these earlier gains in late afternoon trading with the exception of Standard of Kentucky, which reacted ⅝ points to 11¼. Gulf Oil reacted 1 point to 31 after an early bulge which carried up to 32¾. Stocks of some of the pipe line companies closed fractionally higher, while Buckeye Pipe moved up 2 points to 27.

The utilities displayed a mixed trend. Electric Bond & Share common was up ¼ to 9½, but the preferred issues sagged. Commonwealth Edison advanced 1⅞ to 64¼ and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore was up 1 point to 52, while lower-priced issues like Arkansas Natural Gas, Central States Electric, and Utility Power & Light reacted fractionally.

Great Atlantic & Pacific rallied 2 points to 113 after reaching a new low yesterday at 111.

Chesebrough dipped 3 points to 62.

Aluminum Co. of America was steady around 24¼.

Dissolution Asked In Consolidated Oil

$500,000,000 Pipe-Line Combine Is Attacked by Stockholders.

Chicago, May 20 (A.P.).—Dissolution of the $500,000,000 Consolidated Oil Corporation, formed several months ago by the merger of several pipe line and oil companies, was demanded today in a suit filed in Federal Court on behalf of William Roy Carney, of Chicago, owner of 3,825 shares of stock of the Prairie Pipe Line Co., one of the constituent companies. Mr. Carney asked also for the appointment of a receiver.

YANKEES, OUTHIT, BUNCH BLOWS TO BEAT NATS, 6-3

Gomez Tight in Pinches As Weaver Falters After Washington Gains Lead

Yankees Score Four Runs in Third on Four Singles, a Walk and Balk, to Clinch Game.

New York Southpaw Fans Eight as Nats Waste Scoring Chances; Pinch Hitters Are Ineffective.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

NEW YORK, May 20.—By dropping today's game to the Yankees, 6 to 3, the Nats lost half of the ground gained yesterday and now are half a game out of first place in the league standing. It was the native's display of power-hitting and Lefty Vernon Gomez's ability to tighten up in the pinches that spelled the difference between defeat and victory.

Actually, the Nats outhit the Yankees, 9 to 8, but they packed a punch in but one frame. The marker registered by the Nats in the ninth was a "courtesy" affair, for after Bluege had doubled, he was allowed to take third unmolested and to tally on Berg's infield tap to Lazzeri.

Otherwise, Gomez always had something in reserve. He fanned eight, including Pinch Hitters Dave Harris and Sam Rice, and ended three frames with a strikeout with Nats on the runways.

Monte Weaver Loses Cunning in Third.

It looked as though the Yankees were in for their sixth straight defeat at the hands of the Washington club when the Nats came from behind to become one up in the third, but Monte Weaver, who started for the Nats, lost his cunning in the third and the verdict was packed away in this one round.

Bluege and Berg with two hits each, led the Nats at bat, with Myer and Cronin furnishing the game's fielding high lights, each with an overhead catch after chases to the outfield. Tony Lazzeri was on the war path for the Yankees, adding a triple, double and single to his already high average. He was the only Yankee to hit safely more than once.

As the halfway mark was reached and the two teams turned into the homestretch, the Yankees were enjoying a three-run lead, four of these markers having been made in a third-inning rally. They had jumped into a slight lead, due to an error by Cronin in the first session, but the Nats had overcome this to become one up in their third, and then the Natives swung their big berthas into action.

The Nats benefitted from a hit batsman in the first and from a walk in the second, but did not break through Gomez's service until the third, when Weaver scratched a safety. He was forced by Myer, but Manush's double scored the latter and Heinie registered on West's liner single. Singles by Bluege and Berg were wasted in the next round. They came with one out, and Gomez then fanned Pinch Hitter Dave Harris and Myer.

Combs, First Up, Draws Walk.

It was not Weaver's fault that the Yankees got off to a lead. He walked Combs, first up, and Cronin apparently had a double play in sight when he fumbled Larry's roller, letting Combs carry on to third, from where he counted after the catch of Ruth's long fly.

A double play prevented Lazzeri's triple from hurting the Nats any in the second, but the Yankees got busy in the next session to do some real damage, coming from behind to go three to the good. Singles by Combs, Ruth, Chapman and Lazzeri, a walk and a balk figured in the making of these counters.

Burke, who had taken up the Nat mound duty starting the fourth, had a fine chance to get famous with his stick in the sixth when he fanned to end this round with Judge on third and Berg on second. The catcher was credited with a theft of second when Gomez forgot he was on first and took a long wind-up.

Burke was not scored on until the home half of this sixth frame when Lazzeri and Crosetti doubled in rapid order with one down. Bob fanned Gomez, walked Combs and then struck out Lary.

The Nats had visions of a rally when Cronin opened the eighth with a single, but he was tangled up in a double play when heading for second as Reynolds missed a third strike with the count three and two.

Opening the ninth Bluege doubled past Crosetti, and in view of their big lead and Gomez's fine form, the Yankees made no effort to prevent an advance to third. Bluege then tallied on Berg's infield out and the game ended when Rice, up for Burke, fanned, and Myer failed in his effort to beat out a bunt.

Macks Win Fourth Straight Game, 6-1

Philadelphia, May 20 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics made it four victories in a row today by taking their second straight from the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 1.

The Athletics pounded Ed Durham and his successors for eleven hits that included five doubles.

Rube Walberg, though he lost his effectiveness in the eighth and had to be relieved, held Boston to four hits and turned in his first victory of the year.

French Yields 2 Hits; Bucs Blank Cards, 5-0

St. Louis, May 20 (A.P.).—Larry French, Pittsburgh southpaw, allowed only two hits today in the Pirates' 5-to-0 shutout of the St. Louis Nationals.

Collins knocked a double in the seventh for the first hit off French and in the ninth, with two out, Delker made a two-bagger for the only other hit by the Cards.

Paul Waner led the Pirate batting attack with four doubles out of five times up.

This feat equalled the major league record for two-base hits in one game, held by nine players beginning with Adrian C. "Cap" Anson and Abner Dalrymple, who turned the trick for the Chicago Nationals in the same game on July 3, 1886.

NAT ROOKIE WILL FACE YANKS

Ragland Gets Chance With Crowder in Twin Bill Today.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The series between the Nats and Yankees ends here with another double-header tomorrow. Much depends upon the results and, unfortunately, Manager Walter Johnson is not prepared as regards pitchers. He has to call on General Crowder, who has been quite busy of late, and Frank Ragland, who will receive his first starting assignment in the second game.

Despite the fact that he toiled eight and one-third innings in the first game of Thursday's twin bill, the General has volunteered his services. It probably will be Henry Johnson, and the youngster, Johnny Allen, for the Yankees. The Nats need a double victory to go back home in first place, which is their ambition.

Catcher Roy Spencer appears to be due for a long rest. Some of his leg muscles have been pulled quite badly and he declared today that the member is in even worse shape than it was earlier this season, when he was inactive for more than a week.

Eddie Bennett, who has been Yankee mascot for several years, suffered a broken leg in an automobile accident last night.

Reynolds made a great try for Lazzeri's liner in the second but could not quite get to the ball and it went as a triple.

Weaver was credited with the Nat's first hit, opening round 3 with a one-baser over second.

When the Nats scored twice in the third, it was their eighth two-run inning of the 22 played here yesterday and today. In their only other two scoring frames of this series, Johnson's charges registered three times each.

Chapman raced over to center to rob Judge of a hit with a gloved-hand catch just as it appeared that Combs would charge into him, starting the fourth.

Reynolds hustled up the incline to the wall guarding right field to make a nice catch of Crosetti's looper in the fourth.

Bluege made a brilliant gloved-hand grab of Chapman's liner to end the fifth session.

Burke saved himself a balk in the sixth by quick use of his head. With Lazzeri on second, he wheeled to throw to the base, but no one was there to cover. Because of his motion he had to throw the ball and he tossed it to Cronin in deep short.

Myer made a brilliant one-handed overhead grab of Chapman's Texas leaguer in the seventh. He juggled the ball momentarily, but finally held on to it. It looked like a sure hit as the ball left the bat.

Cronin grabbed Dickey's looper in short left center while running with his back to the ball, to bring a lusty cheer from the galleries.

Petrolle, Down for Nine, Arises to Beat Battalino

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, May 20 (A.P.).—Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion of the world, tried to climb aboard Billy Petrolle, the Fargo Express, for the second time in two months tonight, but fell beside the rails, bleeding and beaten but courageous to the end.

Petrolle, off to an uncertain start when he was knocked to the canvas with a sizzling left hook in the first round for a count of nine, wavered for an instant and then charged ahead to win the unanimous decision of the two judges and the referee, Dave Barry at the end of the ten savage rounds, fought before 11,000 spectators in the Chicago Stadium. The receipts were estimated at slightly under $25,000.

Petrolle ripped and tore into Battalino, continually beating him to the punch and battering him into a bloody smear. At the finish Battalino was bleeding from cuts on the lips, an ugly gash across his nose and a slice along the head.

From the fifth round on, Battalino took a steady thumping, although he gamely charged ahead, swinging with both hands, in an attempt to land another blow that might upset Petrolle.

Barry scored 57 points for Petrolle and 49 for Battalino.

After being knocked flat in the first round, the Fargo Express started out methodically to repeat the triumph he scored over Battalino in New York two months ago. He failed to stop him, as he did in their previous 12-round engagement, and the fact that Battalino stayed the limit was due entirely to his courage.

The smash that floored Petrolle was a left hook that caught him flush on the chin as were in the midst of a furious exchange in midring. Petrolle apparently was not seriously hurt. He took the nine count casually, and arose to begin the relentless thumping.

To the surprise of ringsiders Battalino and Petrolle made the same weight, 140 pounds, when they weighed in at 2 o'clock. This was 5 pounds more than Battalino scaled when he fought Petrolle the first time.

LONDOS TOLD TO MEET SHIKAT

New York Commission Orders Match or Title Forfeiture.

NEW YORK, May 20 (U.P.).—Jim Londos, of Greece, must accept a title challenge from Dick Shikat, of Philadelphia, shortly or forfeit his claims to the world heavyweight wrestling championship, the New York Athletic Commission warned today.

William Muldoon, spokesman for the commission, told Londos' manager, Ed White, and Promoter Jack Curley that if Londos refuses a Shikat match he will discard his previous rulings against Ed "Strangler" Lewis' title claims, and declared the winner of a Lewis-Shikat match the world champion.

Muldoon criticized Londos for rejecting repeated requests that he meet Shikat in a milk fund match. The veteran commissioner said he could not understand why Londos, who has received such splendid support from the American public, refused to give them the match they are clamoring for and refuses to aid such a worthy cause.

Fuller Beats Berg With Body Attack

Madison Square Garden, New York, May 20 (A.P.).—A cool, calculating little puncher from Boston, scrappy Sammy Fuller, settled any question tonight as to his ability to lick Jackie (Kid) Berg, the British whirlwind, and his right to battle Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight title.

Disdaining the storm of leather the Briton tossed his way for twelve solid rounds, Fuller marched through the fire, made every solid shot to the body count and easily hammered his way to the decision. A few weeks ago their first ten-round match here was called a draw.

There was a question among the judges, one voting for Berg, while the other and Referee Gunboat Smith gave the award to Fuller, but there was little hesitancy among the ringside critics. The Associated Press score card gave Fuller nine rounds, Berg two, with one even.

A slim crowd of 6,500, far below expectations, saw a bitter battle, crammed with action from one gong to another.

BAY ANGON NEVER HEADED IN WINNING CHURCHILL SPRINT

Early Speed Wins From Habanero

Dis Dat Third After Swerving in Drive Down Stretch.

Moine, 12-1, Surprise Belmont Winner; Mills Scores.

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, Ky., May 20 (A.P.).—Bay Angon, racing for E. A. Igleheart, Evansville, Ind., sportsman, and ridden by the diminutive apprentice, G. South, gave a sparkling display of speed in the high class band of filly platers in the National Retail Coal Merchants purse, today's feature attraction.

Breaking with his usual alertness and dashing into the lead immediately, the 3-year-old son of Angon made every post the winning one. At the finish of the 7 furlong strain he was tiring badly from his early effort, but was home by a full length over C. V. Whitney's Habanero. The latter came from far back through the stretch to overtake the French Lick Stables Dis Dat, who forted the pace, in the last sixteenth and rapidly was getting to the winner. Dis Dat swerved badly under hard urging, but managed to hold the show portion of the purse.

Bay Angon's victory proved a popular one with the big off-day crowd, as he went to the post a warm favorite. Holders of each $2 ticket received $6.16.

Startling Reversal At Belmont.

Belmont Park Race Track, May 20 (A.P.).—The crowd which visited the home of the Westchester Racing Association here today witnessed a startling form reversal with the running of the Raceland Purse, 1 mile handicap for 3-year-olds and upward. Moine, a gelding, which has been beaten off in recent starts, suddenly ran as if inspired to win the event in a common jog, in the silks of the Montalvo Farm. Hank Mills booted the 12-to-1 outsider home by five lengths in 1:38 flat.

Second money went to the Brookmeade Stable's Raccoon, which was four spans before M. L. Schwartz's Barcelona Pete. Lucky Tom barely lost the show. Villon, heavily burdened under 118 pounds and favorite, folded up after showing a flash of early speed and finished far back.

Commuter had the early foot of the field for five furlongs. That colt cut out the running, with daylight to spare, over Lucky Tom. Moine meanwhile had been a trailer after breaking last, but Mills brought him around the field with a rush turning for home and the son of Friar Rock wore down the leaders to move into a wide lead through the stretch. Raccoon always was a forward contender and easily beat the fast-closing Barcelona Pete.

MARIE JEAN, away fast, steadied along under light restraint first quarter, sprinted into command at stretch turn and, maintaining fine speed to the end, won easily. WILKS moved up slightly at the stretch turn, went evenly thereafter and wore down FIELD GOAL in the final strides. The latter had speed from start, held lead briefly approaching the stretch and weakened in the final drive. THREAT had no mishaps. SWEEP RUSH began fast and raced greenly. FAIR ROCHESTER lost much ground from the start and could not reach a contending position. POLLY CRACKER, fractious at the post, but away fast, stopped badly after showing speed the first three-eighths.

OUR GRIEF, going in her best form, but unable to keep up the first half mile, gave greatly improved speed thereafter, overhauled the leaders in rapid order and won drawing out. GREENWAVE, always under energetic handling, had good speed, bore out slightly when entering the stretch and swerved when urging badly in the final eighth. ETIWANDA, strong factor throughout, held on fairly well. PAT C. weakened in five-eighths. CHARLIE BERGIN had no mishaps. LOVE OFFERING dropped out of it in a half mile. HOPEFIELD lost some ground and could not get up.

SIS AGNES, away fast, but allowed to drop out of it, responded well when urged, worked her way up gradually the last five-sixteenths and, wearing down COLD WAVE, was drawing out at the end. COLD WAVE had speed from the break, lost much ground at the stretch turn and held on creditably. RUNNING WATER, hustled from the start, saved much ground and weakened after reaching the last three-sixteenths. WATER GAP closed gamely but pulled up sore. HAMILTON had no mishaps. BARASHKOVA displayed early speed under light restraint and flattened out badly when put to a drive.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $900; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:24. Off at 3:24½. Winner, T. C. Platt's b. f. DOMINANT MISS moved fast after going an eighth, drew into command at the stretch turn and, maintaining good speed while racing wide the final quarter, was not seriously threatened, winning with something left. ST. JESSICA began slowly, saved much ground at the stretch turn and stood a long, hard drive gamely. HELEN BAB had slight interference but recovered quickly and closed with speed. SUE TERRY quit. NITUMA tired. GIRL GRADUATE was forced back sharply after going three-sixteenths and could not get up thereafter.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:53. Winner, E. A. Igleheart's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAY ANGON, $6.16, $4.30, $2.94; HABANERO, $6.06, $3.46; DIS DAT, $2.86.

BAY ANGON drew into a long lead before going a quarter and maintained good speed under light restraint for three-quarters and, stopping badly, had little left. HABANERO, away slowly, went sluggishly the first five furlongs, improved position thereafter and finished strong. DIS DAT showed speed from start, swerved under strong urging in the final quarter and weakened in the last eighth. PREDICT dropped out of it in the turn and weakened after rallying wildly in the stretch. OH DAVE had no mishaps. MONKS FIRST, in close quarters at the end of three-eighths, failed to improve position when clear.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:21. Winner, F. A. Whele's b. f. JOURNEY'S END, well ridden and rated under slight restraint first five-eighths, rallied when called upon, withstood a mild bid from MAJOR LANPHIER and came away fast in the last sixteenth. MAJOR LANPHIER, showing speed from the start, saved much ground and weakened after offering a weak challenge in stretch. CHENE, away fast, dropped out of it, moved up slightly at stretch turn and outstayed VALDOSTA in the drive. The latter weakened after nearing the leaders at the stretch turn and swerved in late stages. REVERBERATE was outrun. UNCLE MATT had speed and ran out badly when quitting at the stretch turn.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:45½. Winner, C. H. Bostwick's b. f. CENTRAL WINS, 16 TO 0, AS DE BETTENCOURT ALLOWS 1 HIT

Swamps Tech And Creates Triple Tie

Double by Crenshaw Ends Hope for No-Hit Performance.

Nau, Moran, Bryant and Chambers Lead Winning Attack.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL'S baseball team, operating full blast at the plate and working well afield behind the one-hit pitching of John de Bettencourt, yesterday battered its way into a triple tie for the top notch of the high school series by beating Tech, 16 to 0, at Eastern High field.

Central's victory places it on even terms with Eastern and Western for the league championship, all three teams having won three and lost one. They play it off starting Monday afternoon, at Eastern, when Central tackles Eastern.

Pitching the smoothest kind of baseball, De Bettencourt made life miserable for Tech's batters yesterday, baffling them with a series of curve balls and a change of pace. Tech went hitless until two were out in the sixth, when Gus Crenshaw, Maroon catcher, doubled to center. Thereafter De Bettencourt slipped them by Tech's stickmen effortlessly, and was ably abetted by fine defensive work, particularly that of Raub, on third, and Thompson, in center.

Tech Players Fail To Reach Third.

Not one Techian reached third base off DeBetencourt. Two gained second. He issued four walks during the game, which was his second series victory, having beaten Western in Central's last apearance.

Central scored in every inning but the fourth. It hopped on the straight ball offerings of Chewning Turner and Wills for eighteen hits, including six doubles and two home runs. Even Buddy Nau, hitless in fourteen trips to the plate, joined in the stickwork, doubling and lifting a home run over the rightfield wall. Shorty Chumbris, with a home run and a single, and the three hits apiece of Bryant and Mc an stood out.

Central's performance yesterday, even though it was achieved against the worst team in the series, impressed its followers, particularly in view of the fact that it holds a fine pitcher, Emmett Buscher, in reserve. Central beat Western during the regular series and Western beat Eastern. Eastern, in turn, beat Central.

Barry Ends Work For Rosenbloom

Reds Barry yesterday concluded hard training for his bout with Maxie Rosenbloom, scheduled next Monday night in the opening show of Twin-City Arena. The Southeast pride worked the equivalent of 13 rounds of boxing in the Mohawk Club gym, actually swapping punches for ten rounds.

After engaging Billy Edwards, Sonny Day and Billy Hoe in the ring, Barry sped through two rounds of shadow boxing and then took a turn at rope skipping. He finished the session with strenuous routine exercise.

Rosenbloom, who will be making his first appearance in this vicinity, is due in Washington tomorrow afternoon. He has been boxing quite regularly and is expected to report in tip-top physical condition.

Rosenbloom's light heavyweight championship will not be in jeopardy as the match is an overweight affair. Barry probably will scale 189 and Maxie about 180, five pounds over the limit.

3 'C' Club Marks Menaced With 500 in Meet Today

Trackmen From 30 Schools Vie Today on Central Field.

NEARLY 500 of the best high and prep school track stars in Middle Atlantic sector will participate this afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock, in the fourteenth annual "C" Club meet at Central Stadium. They represent 30 schools, who in turn range in their representations from the 36 boys of Tech, Central and Episcopal, to the 1 lone athlete from the National Training School.

Central, with its strongest team in years, is looked upon as favorite to win the meet, which four times before has fallen to the school. Tech, Episcopal, Woodberry Forest and possibly Eastern, 1931 winner, have many backers.

Three Records In Danger.

Fourteen years of constant competition have shaved the meet records down to almost impregnable plane, but at least three seem to be in acute danger of being shattered, viz: the 120 high hurdles, the broad jump and the mile run.

Bob Slye, who, at 18, is the best hurdler in the surrounding States, either college or high school, may break the 15 4-5 mark rung up in 1926 by Harry Flippen, of Episcopal. Slye bettered this mark Tuesday night in the District A. A. U. meet at Maryland under adverse conditions.

Grover Everett's broad jump mark of 21 feet 5½ inches, established last year, may be bettered by either Frank Koscis or Robertson, of Central, who leaped 21 feet 6 and 21 feet 8, respectively, in competition lately.

John King, of Baltimore Poly, ran the mile in 4:40 at the Maryland interscholastics this year.

Quarter-Mile Relay Is Added.

The meet will be made up of the standard events, 100, 220, 440 and 880, and mile runs, the 120, 220 hurdles "C" Club mile relay, and the shot put, javelin, high and broad jumps, pole vault and discus. Besides these there has been added a quarter-mile relay, with the Lamda Sigma Cup at stake and a sprint medley relay, for the George Washington Bicentennial Cup.

HOPKINS AND MARYLAND BATTLE

LACROSSE teams of Maryland and Johns Hopkins Universities clash today in Baltimore Municipal Stadium at 3 o'clock in the most important game of the 1932 stick-wielding campaign. Both teams are undefeated and to the victor most likely will go national championship honors besides number one ranking in the Olympic play-off series to be held next month. More than 10,000 persons are expected to watch the hostilities.

Maryland enters this crucial contest depending for victory largely on the strength of its defense. Coach Jack Faber has a fast and durable squad that thus far has shown more ability on the defense than the offense.

Hopkins is touted for its attacking ability, but is not so well regarded as a defensive unit. For instance, the Blue Jays scored twelve goals against Washington College last Saturday, whereas early in the season the same opponent yielded only seven goals to Maryland. On the other hand, Hopkins gave Washington three goals and Maryland but one.

The work of Gordon Pugh, Maryland center, will be watched with interest today. He has shown himself to be the outstanding center of the season to date.

G. U. NINE 13-0 VICTOR OVER MARINES

Lindquist Scatters 10 Hits to Win From Quantico Team.

Special to The Washington Post.

QUANTICO, Va., May 20.—With Elmer Lindquist, sophomore southpaw, showing brilliant form in the tight spots, Georgetown University's nine defeated the Quantico Marines here today by a score of 13 to 0. Lindquist allowed ten hits, but was equal to the occasion when the Leathernecks threatened to score.

Behind Lindquist's fine pitching, the Hilltoppers produced a seventeen-hit attack that shelled the Marines out of the ball game before the sixth inning was reached. The Georgetown flinger, himself, led the assault on Couch and Griffin, getting four safeties in as many times at bat.

Georgetown solved Couch's delivery for four runs in the third inning and piled up eight more tallies in the next two innings. Griffin relieved Couch in the seventh and was found for one run. In the meantime Lindquist squelched every Marine rally and slipped over the third strike on no less than eight batters.

Capt. Johnny Evers, jr., played well in centerfield for the winners and also collected a pair of bingles in four attempts.

The same teams meet here again tomorrow.

CITY HEADS FIX FEES FOR STREET SELLING IN MARKET SECTIONS

Farmers Must Pay for Use of Space Under Regulations Just Issued.

DISTRICT WILL COLLECT 25 CENTS FOR EACH DAY

Hucksters to File Requests With Superintendent for Locations.

Upon recommendation of George M. Roberts, superintendent of weights, measures and markets, the District Commissioners yesterday promulgated a set of regulations designed to bring some revenue into the municipal coffers from the farmers who sell their products from the sidewalks and other persons who do a produce business from parking spaces in the vicinity of privately owned markets.

Used Free Heretofore.

Heretofore the sidewalk and street space has been not only used free of charge but has often been rented by private persons or corporations without any of the revenue going to the District.

The superintendent of markets is authorized by the new regulations to collect 25 cents a day from each farmer who uses these public spaces to market his crops, and market house owners and all other persons are prohibited from charging him any additional fee for this privilege.

Limits Are Prescribed.

This fee will be charged to persons using the sidewalks in the vicinity of the Northern Market, Seventh and O streets; the New Center Market, Fifth and K streets; Riggs Market, Fifteenth and P streets, and the Northeast Temple Market, Twelfth and H streets northeast.

Any huckster who intends to occupy a portion of any business street or sidewalk for the sale of merchandise must first file application with the superintendent of markets and state the location and dimensions of the space he wishes to use. The monthly rental fee will then be fixed by the Commissioners.

CAPITAL MEN HELD IN ARLINGTON THEFT

Two Are Implicated in Confession of Prisoner of Virginia Police.

Malcolm Williams, 21, and Bruce Kline, 21, of Washington, were arrested here yesterday by Detective Sergt. J. A. Tolson and Arlington County policemen as the result of the confession of Lawrence Tinsman, 20, of Cherrydale, that he and two other men entered a chain grocery store in the latter town early Tuesday, stealing fourteen cartons of cigarettes and blowing open the safe.

Tinsman is said by Arlington County authorities to have freely admitted breaking into the store and in confessing implicated the two local men. They were arrested at a house at 1139 New Hampshire avenue northwest early yesterday and held until afternoon, when they were sent to the Arlington County Jail.

Charges of housebreaking and larceny were placed against all three of the men at the jail. They will be arraigned before Judge B. M. Hedrick today on the charges, Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas said yesterday.

The Washington men, police said, deny being connected with the robbery of the Cherrydale store. County Policemen James Scott and Norman Carson arrested Tinsman, while the same two officers, with Policeman Hugh Scott, accompanied Detective Sergt. Tolson in arresting the Washington men.

Woman Golfer Reports Robbery of $675 Ring

A woman golfer yesterday lost a $675 diamond and sapphire ring she had locked in the rumble seat of her car while she played a round at the Rock Creek Golf course. The thieves who jimmied the seat lid open disdained two less valuable rings and $1.58 in cash she left in her pocketbook.

Mrs. Annie J. Howard, of Hyattsville, teacher at the John Burroughs School, took off her rings and locked them in the rumble seat of her coupe before she teed off with Miss Genevieve Thomas, of 3130 Mount Pleasant street northwest, another teacher at the John Burroughs School. When she returned she found that the seat had been pried open.

This afternoon they invite all women and children to the matinee performances of the Bernardi Greater Shows, when no gate admission will be charged.

GROUP TRIES TO AID DISTRICT FRANCHISE

Move Made to Hurry Bill Through Committee to Get Early Action.

A movement was started in the House yesterday to shake loose from the rules committee Mrs. Mary T. Norton's bill for a study of the District franchise problem, with a view to giving local residents a greater voice in their own affairs.

Representative Edward W. Pou (Democrat), North Carolina, chairman of the rules committee, said the slate is heavy and expressed doubt that action could be had at this late date.

But Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York, a member of Mrs. Norton's District committee, is insistent.

He is framing a resolution for the District committee, calling on Chairman Pou to make a favorable report on the measure. Mrs. Norton has not yet given up hope for passage this year.

The bill provides for a joint committee of six House and Senate members, who would make a thoroughgoing study of the laws and government of the District, with a view to refurbishing antequated statutes and disposing once and for all of the local franchise issue.

Motorcycle Policeman Hurt in Traffic Accident

Private M. O. Bridges, of the Traffic Bureau, was injured last night when an automobile pulled out from a curb and forced another car into the path of his motorcycle. The policeman was thrown over the handlebars of his machine, receiving a deep scalp laceration and cuts about the body.

The policeman was traveling south on Georgia avenue when a car operated by Maurice Mehaney, 33 years old, of 1629 Monroe street northwest, going in the same direction, suddenly pulled out in the center of the street to avoid collision with a car leaving the curb. Bridges was treated at Walter Reed Hospital. Mehaney was charged with reckless driving.

Rum Seller Sentenced To Jail and Fined $100

Charles N. Brittle, arrested Thursday night on charges of sale and possession of liquor, yesterday was given two 30-day sentences and fined $100 when he pleaded guilty in Police Court.

Brittle was arrested by Policeman J. R. Birch at Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue after the latter had made a purchase.

Taxicab Is Victim Of Car 'Graveyard'

Trapped by Traffic Signs, Driver Is Arrested for U-Turn.

The taxicab "graveyard" at Seventh and F streets northwest yesterday got Barry E. Gingell, cab driver, into trouble. With taxis banned from Seventh street, and with a U turn banned at Seventh and F, Gingell drove a passenger into the middle of the 600 block of F street.

He was not allowed to U turn to get out, and he couldn't go forward because he faced a one-way street at Seventh, and he could not turn either north or south on Seventh street because of a ban on cabs there.

He dared a U turn and was caught. Judge Isaac R. Hitt took his personal bond.

DISTRICT BILLS SET FOR HOUSE MONDAY AFTER VOTE ON BEER

Mrs. Norton Will Ask Night Sessions if 24 Measures Fail to Come Up.

CHILD ACTOR PROPOSAL IS SLATED FOR ACTION

Liability Insurance for Big Traffic Offenders Also Is on Schedule.

Twenty-four District bills will play second fiddle to "beer" Monday. A "District Day" vote will be taken on the motion to clear House decks for a "beer for revenue" ballot.

House Democratic Leader Henry T. Rainey said that local measures will come up only after the House has disposed of its beer vote. He thinks, however, there will be plenty of time left, for the local bills.

Representative Mary T. Norton, rounding out her first term as chairman of the House District committee, has just about cleared her committee dockets. If the House does not get around to consideration of all 24 of her bills Monday, she intends to ask for night sessions on District legislation in the near future.

Senate Passes Eight.

Eight bills passed by the Senate are among the 24 she hopes to call up Monday, including a measure to require major traffic offenders to post liability insurance, and another voting congressional tags to House and Senate attaches.

Among the remaining sixteen House bills favorably reported by her committee and awaiting House action are the Bowman bill for resulation of District security sales, the Capper bill authorizing incorporation of credit unions in the District, a child labor law amendment permitting minors to appear on the stage in the District, and two bills for the industrial development of the Buzzards Point area of Washington.

Barber Shop Measure.

Other items pending include measures for closing barber shops "one day in seven," providing a board of indeterminate sentence and parole for the District, creating a wild bird and game refuge on the Potomac, establishing a new set of license fees for the District, setting up a commission to settle District-Virginia boundary disputes, and relieving the Daughters of 1812, the Colonial Dames and the Sons of the American Revolution from paying taxes on local property.

District legislation of late has been at a standstill in the Senate, where the revenue bill has reached an impasse and nine appropriation bills await action.

Veteran Loses His $9,000 Policy Suit

Claim Has Been in Court Since 1927; Three Trials Held.

Arthur Marvin, World War veteran, lost his fight yesterday to compel the Veterans Bureau to pay him $9,000, which he claimed was due under a war risk policy on the grounds that he was totally and permanently disabled.

The bureau, through Assistant United States Attorney John W. Wood, contended, in opposing Marvin's claim in the District Supreme Court, that Marvin was not a victim of tuberculosis and eye trouble at the time his policy lapsed. The Government contended Marvin was in good health when he allowed his policy to lapse.

Marvin's case has been before the Supreme Court since 1927. He got a judgment for $7,000 in 1930, only to have it set aside. A second trial resulted in a hung jury, and the third trial, before Justice Oscar R. Luhring, resulted in a victory for the Government.

Glassford's Plea Halts Dismissal of Policeman

Upon recommendation of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, the District Commissioners yesterday modified the sentence of the Police Trial Board in the case of William McEwan, police private, and fined him $50.

McEwan had been found guilty of being intoxicated while on duty and conduct unbecoming an officer. He was sentenced by the board to dismissal. Gen. Glassford made his recommendation because of what he termed the good record of the policeman.

$450,000 Taft School Specifications Approved

Plans for the Taft Junior High School, to be erected on South Dakota avenue, between Queens Chapel road and Quincy street northeast, were approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Bids will be opened about June 15. The estimated cost of the project is $450,000.

28 Suspects Taken In Police Crime Net

14 Are Released After Investigation; Victims to View Line-Up.

Fourteen men were being held by police last night for investigation in connection with recent holdups and other crimes. Fourteen others taken in a roundup of suspicious characters early yesterday were released durfing the day and evening.

The roundup was the upshot of a tip received by detectives that several men were planning a bank holdup and were carrying on their conversations in a downtown poolroom. A squad of detectives, headed by Detective Sergt. Larry O'Dea, of the holdup squad, descended on the poolroom but did not catch the men alleged to have been plotting the bank job.

Detective officials said last night that many of those taken into custody had been arrested previously, both here and in other cities. A number of victims of holdups will come to police headquarters tonight to view a lineup of those held.

ACACIA MUTUAL LIFE OFFICERS PROMOTED

J. P. Yort Made Vice President; Others Elevated; Company Prospers.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

J. P. Yort, secretary and actuary of Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., was elected vice president of that organization yesterday at a meeting of the directorate, the first held under an amended and liberalized charter.

J. W. Apitz was elected treasurer, Samuel E. Mooers, secretary, and L. K. Crippen, actuary. William Montgomery, head of the company nearly 40 years, continues in office; Dr. J. B. Nichols is its medical director; H. W. Kacy, general counsel and C. E. Baldwin, secretary to the board.

The board approved the promotions coincidental with announcement by President Montgomery of the increased sphere of activity permitted for the company under charter amendment passed by Congress and approved by President Hoover. This amendment removes the stipulation that membership be limited to members of the Masonic fraternity. It changes the organization's title from "association" to "insurance company" and under the amendment, the company plans to underwrite any men between 18 and 65, who can pass the required examinations.

Mr. Yort, the new vice president, has been with the organization more than fifteen years, his first position being that of actuary, later being named secretary and actuary. He has served for more than ten years on the board.

Discussing liberalization of the charter, President Montgomery told the board that already a highly substantial volume of new business has been written and that the outlook in the new field is bright.

Indicative of the strong position of Acacia is the fact that the board has voted a dividend to policyholders for this year amounting to more than $1,281,000. This dividend, President Montgomery explains, represents the usual average annual increase of approximately 6 per cent in the dividend paid individual policyholders.

2 Held for Grand Jury In Assault on Cabman

Sammie Lee Sanders and Willie Smith, both colored, were held yesterday for the action of the grand jury under bonds of $1,000, when they were given a preliminary hearing in Police Court on a charge of assaulting Harvey C. Watkins, a cab driver, in an alleged attempt to rob him.

Watkins appeared in court with numerous bruises on his face and head. He said the two men beat him, that he escaped and got two policemen who arrested the men in a house at Twenty-first and L streets northwest.

Lambert Estate Fixed At $76,584 by Widow

An estate of $76,584.14 was left by Walter E. Lambert, former automobile dealer here, when he committed suicide in his home at 1510 Emerson street northwest, May 12. His wife, Mrs. Edith E. Lambert, yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to appoint her administratrix of the estate, as no will has been found.

Through Attorney Alexander H. Bell she informed the court that her husband's estate comprised the premises on Emerson street, assessed at $17,333; a summer home at Edgewater Beach, Md., valued at $12,500, and personal property valued at $46,751.14. There are two minor children besides the window, who survive Mr. Lambert.

DR. MOTON IS GIVEN SPINGARN MEDAL BY CUTTING AT SESSION

Head of Tuskegee Institute Lauded for Leadership of Negro in U. S.

RECIPIENT DISCUSSES CASE AT SCOTTSBORO

Says Conviction of 7 Shows Adequate Defense for Colored Lacking.

The eighteenth Spingarn medal was awarded last night by Senator Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico, in the auditorium of the Department of Commerce Building, to Dr. Robert Russa Moton, principal of Tuskegee Institute, "for his thoughtful leadership of conservative opinion and action on the Negro in the United States; as shown in the United States Hospital controversy at Tuskegee; by his stand for education in Haiti; by his support of equal opportunity for the Negro in the American public school system, and by his expression of the best ideals of the Negro in his recent publications."

The committee of award consisted of Oswald Garrison Villard, Dr. John Hope, James H. Dillard, Gov. Theodore Roosevelt, William E. B. DuBois, Edwin R. Embree and Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson.

Salutes Dr. Moton.

Senator Cutting, in making the presentation, pointed out that the Negro in America had been forced out of the national melting pot, but that what two decades ago had appeared a tragedy in this respect, had in fact been of benefit to the race, by preservation of a group with an unusual contribution to American life. He saluted Dr. Moton as the man who "officially since the time of the World War has been recognized as the leading Negro in the United States."

Dr. Moton praised the work of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, especially in the courts, in its use of established processes of law to vindicate claims of the Negro to equality before the law and to equal rights to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness. In this connection he discussed extensively the Scottsboro case, in which seven Negro boys were condemned to death in Alabama.

"In the State of Alabama," he said, "and in that section of the country of which Alabama is representative, the Negro, with rare exceptions, is tried by a jury of white men, and everyone knows that by no stretch of the imagination can such a jury place themselves upon a plane of equality with the accused. Everyone knows that when a black man is haled into the courts charged with a felonious offense against a white man, the presumptions are against him even before his trial has begun.

Says Defense Inadequate.

"It is a bold jury indeed that would dare override with its judgment these presumptions of guilt without the most explicit testimony to the contrary. Indeed it is the defendant's innocence that must be established beyond a shadow of doubt before he can be released by the processes of the court. We are driven to the conclusion, by the Scottsboro case, that in America there is not yet any adequate defense of the rights of the Negro and no reasonable certainty of justice as over against the white man in any appeal to popular sentiment among white people, as represented by our present jury system."

A tribute to Florence Kelley, one of the association's founders, was made by Miss Lillian D. Wald, of the Henry Street Settlement, of New York, who bore a message of tribute also from Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago, for Mrs. Kelley's work "in improving morals of America." Mary White Ovington presided.

Boy, 16, Is Shot Twice In Camp Target Drill

George Ellis, 16, of 443 Tenth street northeast, was treated at Gallinger Hospital last night for gunshot wounds in the forearm and leg, said to have been received when he stepped in the range of target practice being conducted by a group of boys he was camping with near Great Falls, Va.

Physicians said Ellis' condition was not serious. He was brought to the hospital by a friend.

Seiberling Is Hurt When Autos Collide

Ohio Representative, 61, Has Broken Collarbone and Lacerations.

En route to the Capitol yesterday morning, Representative Francis Seiberling, of Akron, Ohio, 61 years old, suffered a broken collarbone, injuries to his knee and lacerations about the face and head when his machine was in collision with another at Twenty-second and K streets northwest.

The Representative was treated at Emergency Hospital and admitted as a patient. His condition was said last night not to be serious. TWO DRAW 10 YEARS IN POLICE SHOOTING

One, John Kendrick, Faces Term in New Jersey After District Sentence.

John Kendrick, reputed to have been the highly paid bodyguard for "Milsie" Henry, murdered gambler, and Harry Yudelevit, possessor of a lengthy criminal record, yesterday were sentenced to serve ten years in prison for the shooting of Policeman Thomas T. Bacon, of the First Precinct, last February.

Kendrick, it was developed just before sentence was imposed, is an escaped convict from New Jersey. Upon completion of his sentence, his attorneys informed Justice F. D. Letts, in the District Supreme Court, he will have to serve three years and six months in New Jersey. A detainer has been placed against him here.

Yudelevit, who probably does not weigh 110 pounds, received his sentence in the presence of his aged mother and father. His mother burst into tears when she heard her son sentenced, and the boy, now 27 years old, went to her side to comfort her. His father took an affectionate farewell when deputy marshals led the son away.

Kendrick and Yudelevit were convicted of shooting Bacon when he approached them in the early morning of February 19. The policeman was shot twice, in the foot and in the thigh. Though wounded, he maintained his arrest of Kendrick and Yudelevit was caught later.

Man Is Given 45 Years for Murder

Record in Former Slaying Results in Long Term Meted Here.

He came here and on January 23 he shot to death Aloysius Brown, colored, in a fight. Assistant United States Attorney Irvin Goldstein prosecuted Richardson on a first degree murder indictment.
